Acknowledgment

First and foremost, we would like to thank Megan Z. Perez and Kaetrena Davis Kendrick, without whom this book would not exist. When the idea for this book first came about, Megan and Kaetrena provided much needed guidance and support during the writing of the proposal. While debating whether to submit a proposal at all Megan said, “What’s the worst that can happen? They could say no.” Megan has been a staunch supporter throughout. Kaetrena was the one who kept the proposal focused, contributed a chapter, and served as reviewer, encourager, and emotional dampening rod as needed. Special thanks also belong to Joan Giesecke and Beth McNeil who have been with this project since shortly after it was accepted by the publisher. They not only served on the editorial board, but also provided guidance, support, and introductions as needed.

To everyone who served as an editor, reviewer, or chapter author, thank you all for your hard work, patience, and contributions. Together, we have survived natural disasters, family emergencies, and the general chaos of being librarians in a rapidly changing environment. When we felt discouraged, you would pleasantly surprise us, and in the end, this book only exists because of the tenacity and persistence of all of you working toward a shared goal.

We would also like to thank our friends, families, and colleagues at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Rutgers University for putting up with us and providing support and encouragement throughout this process, even when it meant we had to hide ourselves away for days and hours on end. Thank you. We could not have done this without you.

Kiyomi D. Deards
University of Nebraska–Lincoln, USA

Gene R. Springs
The Ohio State University, USA