I pondered Africa’s future as I grew up, studied in (and about), and lived on the continent for the last two decades. I set up the think-pad Strategy3 in order to institutionalize and catalyze reflection (and action) on Ghana and Africa’s future in a way that focusing on short-term policy challenges (the prevailing policy formation approach on the continent today) cannot quite pull off. This book is a product of this intellectual journey made bearable and inspired by incomparable intellectual and professional mentors: Albert Adjei Amoah, Prof. Eugene Asamoah Amoah, Dr. Andrew Opare Amoah, Mrs. Esme Siriboe, Kwaku Addo Sakyi-Addo, Kwabena Bramdang Agyei Agyepong, Prof. Kwasi Agyeman, Dr. Martin Odei-Ajei, Prof. Kwame Gyekye, Prof. Ato Quayson, Prof. Kwesi Wiredu, Dr. Chinweizu Chinweizu, Dr. Nii Moi Thompson, Dr. Frantz Fanon, Prof. Cheikh Anta Diop, Prof. Paul A. Sabatier, Prof. Ding Huang, Prof. Ha-joon Chang, Prof. Justin Lin Yifu, Prof. George Ayittey, and Al Hajj Haruna Attah.

I thank Derek Laryea for providing vital research input and all the wonderful contributors to this volume for the hard, long, and unremitting work. This book is also dedicated very fondly to Ashesi University, my colleagues there, her students, and her visionary founder, Dr. Patrick Awuah.

This book is also for the following for a deep debt of gratitude impossible to redeem: Twereduapon Kwame, Nana Som, Adwoa Adjele, Nana John Kwame Ayew, Kwaku Asamoah, Ataa Ama Akotaa, Kofi Danso, Akua Oparebea, Abena Mansa, and Ama Otwiwa.

Here is to you, especially and warmly: Nana Akua Konadu, Kwame Adjei Amoah, and Akua Otwiwa Amoah.
