Table of Contents

Foreword ............................................................................................................................................. xxvii
Preface .................................................................................................................................................. xxix
Acknowledgment .................................................................................................................................... xxxvii

Section 1
Writing with WEB 2.0 and Social Media

Chapter 1
Designing Writing Tasks in Google Docs that Encourage Conversation: An Inquiry into Feedback and Revision................................................................................................................................. 1
   Rebecca Woodard, University of Illinois at Chicago, USA
   Adam Babcock, Spartanburg High School, USA

Chapter 2
Writing to Learn: Blogging about Language Arts and Social Studies in a Grade 5 Classroom......... 30
   Ewa McGrail, Georgia State University, USA
   J. Patrick McGrail, Jacksonville State University, USA

Chapter 3
Tagxedo: Using Digital Technologies to Support the Writing of Students in an Alternative Education Program................................................................................................................................. 51
   Peggy Albers, Georgia State University, USA
   Oscar Hernández, Central Valley, USA

Chapter 4
Examining Middle-School Students’ Uses of Diigo Annotations to Engage in Collaborative Argumentative Writing .................................................................................................................... 80
   Jill Castek, Portland State University, USA
   Richard Beach, University of Minnesota, USA
   Heather Cotanch, Teachscape, Inc., USA
   John Scott, University of California, USA
Chapter 5
Connecting In and Out-of-School Writing Through Digital Tools .................................................. 102
Emily Howell, Clemson University, USA
David Reinking, Clemson University, USA

Chapter 6
Virtual Vacations: Recursive Scaffolding in Digital Composition ............................................. 118
Lynn Baynum, Shippensburg University, USA
Christopher S. Keyes, Shippensburg University, USA

Chapter 7
Socially Networking the Past: Digital Mediation of Disciplinary Writing .................................... 133
Michael Manderino, Northern Illinois University, USA
Lisa Hoelscher Ripley, Leyden Township High Schools, USA

Section 2
Writing with Mobile and Multimodal Technologies

Chapter 8
Students’ Out-of-School Writing Practices in an Educational Facebook Application: The Case of Hot Dish ................................................................. 154
Thor Gibbins, University of Maryland, USA
Christine Greenhow, Michigan State University, USA

Chapter 9
An Argument for a Multimodal, Online System to Support English Learners’ Writing Development I .................................................................................................................. 171
Jo Anne Kleifgen, Teachers College, Columbia University, USA
Charles K. Kinzer, Teachers College, Columbia University, USA
Daniel L. Hoffman, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, USA
Kristin Gorski, Teachers College, Columbia University, USA
Jean Kim, Teachers College, Columbia University, USA
Andrea Lira, Teachers College, Columbia University, USA
Briana Ronan, California Polytechnic State University, USA

Chapter 10
Multilingual, Multimodal Compositions in Technology-Mediated Hybrid Spaces ..................... 193
Patricia Martínez-Álvarez, Teachers College, Columbia University, USA
María Paula Ghiso, Teachers College, Columbia University, USA

Chapter 11
Reading-to-Learn from Subject Matter Texts: A Digital Storytelling Circle Approach ........... 219
Maryann Tatum Tobin, Nova Southeastern University, USA
William E. Blanton, University of Miami, USA
Chapter 12
iLiterate: Exploring iPads, Multimodality, and Writing Pedagogy in Secondary English ..........243
  Georgina Kate Willmett, The University of Sydney, Australia
  Jen Scott Curwood, The University of Sydney, Australia

Chapter 13
Padlet Walls, Weebies, and Twitter: Incorporating Multimodal and Digital Literacies in the San Antonio Writing Project and in a Seventh-Grade English Language Arts Classroom ..........259
  Shannon Blady, San Antonio Writing Project, USA
  Roxanne Henkin, The University of Texas at San Antonio, USA

Chapter 14
Preschoolers as Digital Designers: Composing Dual Language eBooks Using Touchscreen
Computer Tablets ..................................................................................................................279
  Deborah Wells Rowe, Vanderbilt University, USA
  Mary E. Miller, Vanderbilt University, USA
  Mark B. Pacheco, Vanderbilt University, USA

Chapter 15
Young Writers Create Digital E-Books Using Nooks ............................................................307
  Sally Brown, Georgia Southern University, USA

Section 3
  Integrating Technology with Writing Instruction

Chapter 16
A Historical Overview of Writing and Technology: Seeking the Right Instructional Tools for the Job .........................................................................................................................................329
  Trevor Thomas Stewart, Virginia Tech, USA

Chapter 17
Supporting Young Writers through the Writing Process in a Paperless Classroom ..............337
  Rebecca S. Anderson, The University of Memphis, USA
  Jessica S. Mitchell, The University of Memphis, USA
  Rachael F. Thompson, The University of Memphis, USA
  Kim D. Trefz, Presbyterian Day School, USA

Chapter 18
Supporting the Development of Writing Abstraction with Technology ..................................363
  Kevin M. Oliver, North Carolina State University, USA
  Ruie J. Pritchard, North Carolina State University, USA

Chapter 19
Translating Traditional Writing Process Tools to Digital Ones: Integrating Digital Writing in
K-12 Classrooms ..................................................................................................................386
  Keri R. Franklin, Missouri State University, USA
  Kathy Gibson, Greenwood Laboratory School, USA
Chapter 20
Real World Writing with Digital Prompts .................................................................401
Amy Atkins, Boone County Schools, USA
Amy Braunwart, Kenton County Schools, USA
Amanda Klare, Beechwood Independent School District, USA
Sara Runge, Northern Kentucky University, USA

Chapter 21
Employing Digital Tools to Support Writing in Mathematics and the Implementation of the Common Core State Standards ..................................................................................419
Christie Martin, University of South Carolina at Columbia, USA
Drew Polly, University of North Carolina at Charlotte, USA

Chapter 22
Using Responsive Design as a Shared Approach to Address the Challenge of Composing with Digital Tools ...........................................................................................................431
Ralph A. Córdova, University of Missouri-Saint Louis, USA
Ann Taylor, University of Missouri-Saint Louis, USA
Jeff Hudson, Alton High School, USA
Jason Sellers, French American International School, USA
Jessica Pilgreen, Wesclin High School, USA
Donna Goetz, Mater Dei High School, USA
Dawn Jung, The CoLab, USA

Chapter 23
Online Peer Conferencing in Four Different Educational Settings: Practices and Insights ............459
Lori Czop Assaf, Texas State University, San Marcos, Texas, USA
Andrew Eickstead, Lutheran High School, San Antonio, Texas, USA
Stephanie Kaynes, Forest Creek Elementary, Round Rock, Texas, USA
Jennifer Woollven, Region 13 ESC, Austin, Texas, USA

Chapter 24
Composing Texts and Identities in an Alternative High School English Class ................................479
Mary Beth Hines, Indiana University, USA
Michael L. Kersulov, Indiana University, USA
Leslie Rowland, Indiana University, USA
Rebecca Rupert, Monroe County Community School Corporation, USA

Section 4
Preparing Educators to Teach Writing Digitally

Chapter 25
Preparing Teachers to Immerse Students in Multimodal Digital Writing Opportunities ..................499
Rachel Karchmer-Klein, University of Delaware, USA
Valerie Harlow Shinas, Lesley University, USA
Sohee Park, University of Delaware, USA
Chapter 26
Professional Development for Teaching Writing in a Digital Age ....................................................520
Victoria Gillis, University of Wyoming, USA
Megan Marshall, University of Wyoming, USA

Chapter 27
Pose/Wobble/Flow: Designing Connected Learning Opportunities for Preservice Teachers in the Era of the Common Core ................................................................................................................544
Antero Garcia, Colorado State University, USA
Cindy O’Donnell-Allen, Colorado State University, USA

Chapter 28
Professional Development 1.5: Two Models for Helping Teachers Implement Digital Tools in Writing Pedagogy ..................................................................................................................567
D. Bruce Taylor, University of North Carolina at Charlotte, USA
Jean P. Vintinner, University of North Carolina at Charlotte, USA
Karen D. Wood, University of North Carolina at Charlotte, USA

Chapter 29
Scaffolding Pre-Service English Teachers to Teach Secondary Students How to Utilize Digital Tools When Composing ..............................................................................................................589
Megan Guise, California Polytechnic State University, USA
Susanna L. Benko, Ball State University, USA

Chapter 30
The Integration of Digital Tools during Strategic and Interactive Writing Instruction ......................608
Jennifer Renée Kilpatrick, University of Tennessee, USA
Rachel Saulsbury, University of Tennessee, USA
Hannah M. Dostal, University of Connecticut, USA
Kimberly A. Wolbers, University of Tennessee, USA
Steve Graham, Arizona State University, USA

Chapter 31
What Now? Shifting Our Colleagues’ Perceptions of Digital Writing .............................................629
Troy Hicks, Central Michigan University, USA

Compilation of References ...............................................................................................................643

About the Contributors ....................................................................................................................700

Index .................................................................................................................................................717