Telecommuting and Virtual Offices: Issues and Opportunities

Table of Contents

Preface ............................................................................................................................................. i

Section One: COMMUNITY ISSUES

Chapter 1. Telecommuting and the Legal Aspects ................................................................. 1
   Ian T. Smith, University of East Anglia, UK
   Yehuda Baruch, University of East Anglia, UK

Chapter 2. Teleworking in Ireland: Issues and Perspectives ...................................................... 28
   Frédéric Adam, University College Cork, Ireland
   Gregory Crossan, University College Cork, Ireland

Chapter 3. TelewerkForum Stimulates Telework in the Netherlands ......................................... 50
   Kitty de Bruin, TelewerkForum, The Netherlands

Chapter 4. Public Communications Infrastructure Support for Telecommuting ....................... 59
   Joseph R. Bumblis, US West, USA

Section Two: EMPLOYER ISSUES

Chapter 5. Success in the International Virtual Office ............................................................. 79
   Kirk St. Amant, University of Minnesota, USA

Chapter 6. Organizational Compatibility as a Predictor of Telecommuting .............................. 99
   Susan J. Harrington, Georgia College & State University, USA
   Cynthia P. Ruppel, The University of Toledo, USA

Chapter 7. Telecommuter Selection: A Systems Perspective .................................................... 118
   Janet A. Henquinet, Metropolitan State University, USA
Chapter 8. Managing the Virtual Team: Critical Skills and Knowledge for Successful Performance .......................................................... 130
Richard G. Platt, University of West Florida, USA
Diana Page, University of West Florida, USA

Chapter 9. Case Study of the St. Paul Companies’ Virtual Office for the Risk Control Division .......................................................... 148
Nancy Johnson, Capella University, USA

Section Three: EMPLOYEE ISSUES

Chapter 10. The Impacts of Telecommuting on Organizations and Individuals: A Review of the Literature .................................................. 163
Alain Pinsonneault, McGill University, Canada
Martin Boisvert, S.I.X., Inc., Canada

Chapter 11. Making Remote Workers Effective .................................................. 186
D. Sandy Staples, Queen’s University, Canada

Chapter 12. Safety and Health in the Virtual Office .................................................. 213
Jay T. Rodstein, Honeywell Technology Center, USA
Katherine S. Watters, Honeywell Technology Center, USA

Chapter 13. Telecommuting Experiences and Outcomes: Myths and Realities .................................................. 231
Donna Weaver McCloskey, Widener University, USA

About the Authors .......................................................... 247

Index .......................................................... 252