Table of Contents

Preface ........................................................................................................................................................................... xix

Chapter 1
Relationship between Social Media and Political Parties: The Case of Turkey ................................................. 1
   Kamil Demirhan, Hacettepe University, Turkey

Chapter 2
Social Media in Political Public Relations: The Cases of the Portuguese Social Democratic Party (PSD) and the Socialist Party (PS) in the 2009 Parliamentary Campaign .................................................. 32
   Sónia Pedro Sebastião, Universidade de Lisboa, Portugal
   Alice Donat Trindade, Universidade de Lisboa, Portugal

Chapter 3
Amplification and Virtual Back-Patting: The Rationalities of Social Media Uses in the Nina Larsson Web Campaign .......................................................................................................................... 51
   Jakob Svensson, Uppsala University, Sweden

Chapter 4
   Cristian Vaccari, Royal Holloway, University of London, UK & University of Bologna, Italy

Chapter 5
New Media in the Process of Shaping Local Democracy: The Case of Poland ........................................... 88
   Ilona Biernacka-Ligieza, Maria Curie-Skłodowska University, Poland

Chapter 6
Online Political Marketing: The Use of Facebook in the 2010 Greek Municipal Elections ................. 110
   Georgios Lappas, Technological Education Institute of Western Macedonia, Greece
   Prodromos Yannas, Technological Education Institute of Piraeus, Greece
   Amalia Triantafillidou, Technological Education Institute of Western Macedonia, Greece
   Alexandros Klefotidimos, Technological Education Institute of Western Macedonia, Greece

Chapter 7
Microblogging and the News: Political Elites and the Ultimate Retweet.................................................. 128
   Kevin Wallsten, California State University – Long Beach, USA
Chapter 8
Reframing Audience: Co-Motion at #SOTU ......................................................................................148
  G. R. Boynton, University of Iowa, USA
  Glenn W. Richardson Jr., Kutztown University of Pennsylvania, USA

Chapter 9
Sources and Formats of Campaign Information on YouTube ..............................................................165
  Robert Klotz, University of Southern Maine, USA

Chapter 10
Do Web Campaigns by Party Leaders Enhance the Images of Party Leaders Held by Voters?
Experimental Evidence from Finland ...................................................................................................179
  Tom Carlson, Åbo Akademi University, Finland
  Göran Djupsund, Åbo Akademi University, Finland
  Kim Strandberg, Åbo Akademi University, Finland

Chapter 11
Using Presidential Popularity for Understanding the Relationship between President Bush and Congressional Republicans’ Online Campaigning: A Preliminary Examination of Representative
  Christopher Latimer, Framingham State University, USA

Chapter 12
A Diachronic Analysis of Portuguese Digital Campaigning .................................................................210
  Rui Alexandre Novais, University of Porto, Portugal & University of Minho, Portugal &
  University of Liverpool, UK
  Álvaro Cúria, University of Porto, Portugal & New University of Lisbon, Portugal

Chapter 13
The New Interdisciplinary Fields of Political Engineering and Computational Politics .................226
  Ashu M. G. Solo, Maverick Technologies America Inc., USA

Chapter 14
The New Interdisciplinary Fields of Public Policy Engineering and Computational Public
Policy ........................................................................................................................................................233
  Ashu M. G. Solo, Maverick Technologies America Inc., USA

Chapter 15
Type-One Fuzzy Logic for Quantitatively Defining Imprecise Linguistic Terms in Politics and
Public Policy ...........................................................................................................................................239
  Ashu M. G. Solo, Maverick Technologies America Inc., USA
  Madan M. Gupta, University of Saskatchewan, Canada
  Noriyasu Homma, Tohoku University, Japan
  Zeng-Guang Hou, The Chinese Academy of Sciences, China
Chapter 16
Interval Type-Two Fuzzy Logic for Quantitatively Defining Imprecise Linguistic Terms in Politics and Public Policy ................................................................. 256
Ashu M. G. Solo, Maverick Technologies America Inc., USA

Chapter 17
Using Graph Theory Software for Political Discourse Analysis ........................................ 265
Bogdan Pătruţ, Vasile Alecsandri University of Bacău, Romania
Monica Pătruţ, Vasile Alecsandri University of Bacău, Romania
Camelia Cmeciu, Danubius University of Galaţi, Romania

Chapter 18
Online Election Campaigning: Exploring Supply and Demand during the France 2012 Presidential Election .............................................................. 287
Darren G. Lilleker, Bournemouth University, UK
Karolina Koc-Michalska, SciencesCom – Audencia Group, France

Chapter 19
Hungarian MPs’ Response Propensity to Emails .............................................................. 305
Norbert Merkovity, University of Szeged, Hungary

Chapter 20
Mapping Research Methodology in Online Political Communication ................................ 318
Rosanna De Rosa, University of Naples, Federico II, Italy
Valentina Reda, University of Naples, Federico II, Italy
Tommaso Ederoclite, University of Naples, Federico II, Italy

Compilation of References ........................................................................................................ 336

About the Contributors .............................................................................................................. 366

Index ........................................................................................................................................ 374