Acknowledgment

We are very grateful to many people who have been helping during the editorial work.

First, we want to thank to IGI Global for accepting this book. We don’t know many of the people who evaluated our project and who made it possible for the handbook to be released. Nevertheless, we would like to mention them and express our gratitude for their support.

We would like to thank all the authors we accepted to be part of this project. They interpreted the book guidelines with great expertise and professionalism, offering analysis perspectives of great interest and full of stimuli.

A special thanks goes to the members of the Editorial Advisory Board, among whom are international experts. We are honored to have had the opportunity to collaborate with them in this project, and we are grateful to all of them for having trusted in our initiative.

We are also grateful to all the reviewers who contributed, providing to all authors useful suggestions about their manuscripts.

A special mention goes also to Erin O’Dea, Jan Travers, Kayla Wolfe, and Brett Snyder, from IGI Global for their qualified support and assistance during the whole process of publication.

We were fortunate to have Perry Haan as a collaborator. Perry provided us with an integrated vision about this book, and his involvement and support are invaluable.

Finally, we would like to thank ourselves for having worked together with the aim to give a significant contribution to knowledge in the field of retailer-consumer relationships. We are not in the position to judge whether we have achieved this goal, but we are sure that the result of our teamwork was greater than the simple sum of efforts that each of us would have been able to bear individually.

Fabio Musso
University of Urbino, Department of Economics, Society and Politics (DESP), Italy

Elena Druica
University of Bucharest, Department of Economic and Administrative Sciences, Romania