Dr. Lisa Dawley is an associate professor and chair at Boise State University, Department of Educational Technology. She also the founder and director of the Center for Online Educators. Dr. Dawley received her PhD in education from the University of California at Santa Barbara. Her areas of interest include the pedagogy of emergent internet-based technologies, online teaching and learning, and teacher professional development. She co-authored one of the first texts on integrating the internet into the classroom, and has published articles in the American Educational Research Journal, Teacher Education Quarterly, Teaching Education, and Research in the Schools. Dr. Dawley is also the recipient of the Distinguished Research Award from the Association of Teacher Educators, and was an invited participant at Stanford’s Summer Institute at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences.