About the Contributors

Amandeep Takhar-Lail is a senior lecturer in marketing at the University of Bedfordshire in the UK. She holds a PhD, MSc and BSc in Marketing. Her research interests focus on aspects of contemporary consumption, ethnicity, identity construction and qualitative research methodology. Her work focuses largely on adopting an interpretive approach to explore social, cultural and familial factors that influence everyday consumption experiences. She has published in internationally recognised journals such as the Journal of Marketing Management, Advances in Consumer Research and Journal of Macromarketing. She has also presented papers at key international conferences such as Advances in Consumer Research, European Advances in Consumer Research and the Consumer Culture Theory conference. She has also contributed to special issues of Journals and books and recently published two books within the field of consumer research. Dr. Takhar-Lail is also a Fellow of the Higher Education Academy (UK), Academy of Marketing and Association of Consumer Research (ACR).

Ali Ghorbani is an assistant professor of business administration in Payame Noor University (PNU), IRI. He holds PhD, M.Sc and B.Sc degrees in business administration from PNU. Ghorbani has published more than 35 manuscript and presented several papers in international and national journals and conference about e-commerce, e-business, e-banking, e-entrepreneurship, IT application in organizations and marketing strategies. In addition to he has attained the first rank at MCs Examination of Islamic Azad University, he has won third rank award in 6th Scientific Congress of Payame Noor University Students. Now, he is member of editorial board of several international journals. He has contributed in several special issues of journals and books as a member of editorial board.

***

Aliyu Olayemi Abdullateef is a Senior Lecturer at the Department of Marketing, School of Business Management, College of Business University Utara Malaysia. DrAliyu’s core expertise is in Marketing, with focus on quantitative analyzes of business performance. He holds a PhD in Marketing, Masters in Economics, Postgraduate Diploma in Financial Management and Professional Certificate in International Contact Center Management. He is also a full member of the Chartered Institute of Marketing London UK.

Shirin Alavi is an Assistant Professor Grade II at Jaypee Institute of Information Technology, Noida, India. She has earlier worked with the Standard Chartered Bank and has work experience in the domain of CRM operations and International Business and Marketing. She has research interests in the domain of Customer Relationship Management, Virtual Communities, Internet Marketing and Customer

Salvador Simó Algado is a lecturer at the Faculty of Health at the University of Vic-Central University of Catalonia. He has a PhD in Inclusive Education at the same University and he has been an invited lecturer in several countries: Portugal, Canada, Denmark, Holland, Sweden and Chile. He is the director of the Postgraduate course of Social Entrepreneurship, at the University of Vic-Central University of Catalonia. He has published his research in Occupational Therapy in international journals, such as the Canadian Journal of Occupational Therapy, Revista Nacional APETO or Revista de Terapia Ocupacional. He has been a coauthor of Occupational therapy without borders: learning from the spirit of survivors (Elseviers, 2004) or Terapia ocupacional sin fronteras (Editorial Médica Panamericana, 2006).

Richard P. Bagozzi is the Dwight F. Benton Professor of Behavioral Science in Management at the Stephen M. Ross School of Business, University of Michigan. A Ph.D graduate of Northwestern University, Professor Bagozzi has received honorary doctorates from the University of Lausanne, Switzerland, Antwerp University, Belgium, and the Norwegian School of Economics, Bergen. He has been a Senior Fulbright Research Scholar in Germany and recently received the Medal of Science from the University of Bologna, Italy, for his contributions to behavioral science. Professor Bagozzi does research into human emotions, decision making, attitudes, ethics, health behaviors, social identity, the theory of action, and the neuroscience, genetics, and epidemiology of consumer and managerial behaviors.

Massimo Bergami is Professor of Organizational Behavior at the University of Bologna and Dean of the Bologna Business School. Moreover, he is Chair for Emba Consortium for Global Business Innovation (www.embaconsortium.org), Honorary Professor at the Mirbis (Russia) and Guest Professor at the Nankai University (China). After receiving the Ph.D in Management, he has been Visiting Scholar at the Ross School of Business of the University of Michigan and Visiting Professor at the Warrington College of Business of the University of Florida, Gainesville. His research is focused on organizational identity and identification. He has published in leading scholarly outlets, such as the British Journal of Social Psychology and the Journal of Applied Psychology.

Pepukayi Chitakunye is a Senior Lecturer at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. His research interests bring critical perspectives to children’s food consumption practices, and critical methodological innovations. He has published in internationally recognised journals such as Journal of Marketing Management, Consumption Markets and Culture, Advances in Consumer Research, Qualitative Market Research, and Young Consumers. Dr. Chitakunye is a Fellow of the Higher Education Academy (UK), a member of different associations including the British Sociological Association (MBSA), Association for Consumer Researchers (ACR), the Chartered Institute of Marketing (MCIM), and is a Chartered Marketer.

Gemma García Ferrer. Ph.D. has her doctorate in Business Sciences from UAM (Spain) and Master in Health and Social Methodology of Behavioural Science (UAM, UCM, and UNED, Spain). Gemma García Ferrer also has a Bachelor degree in Business from UAM. Dr. García Ferrer has been dedicated to undergraduate and graduate teaching and researching for over the last 18 years (it includes work in Business Environment and Psychology). Currently, Dr. García Ferrer is Professor of Market Research from URJC (Spain). Author of a book about Commercial Research (Last 2012, was republished its third revised and updated edition in Spain, and in 2013 was co-edited in Latin-America). García-Ferrer’s studies in the field of commercial research, retail and consumer psychology have been shown in renowned National and International congresses, and published in Scientific Journals as well.

Ziska Fields is an Academic Leader and Lecturer at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. Her research interests focuses on creativity and innovation specifically in tertiary education, business environments, entrepreneurship and research. She also developed two theoretical models to measure creativity in South Africa focusing on the youth and tertiary education specifically. She has published in international recognised journals such as the Journal of Social Sciences. Recent publications have looked at measuring creativity in various contexts. Dr. Fields is also a member of the South African Institute of Management (SAIM).

Fatemeh Jafarzadeh is PhD Candidate of climatology at Tabriz University, Tabriz, Iran. She has attained M.Sc of climatology from Humanities School, Mohaghagh Ardabili and B.Sc of Natural Geography from Tabriz University, Tabriz, Iran. Jafarzadeh has published some papers in national and international journals such as Journal of Applied Researches in Geography Sciences and New Trends in Human Geography. She has attained the first rank of MCs Examination at Mohaghagh Ardabili University. The research interest area of Jafarzadeh are climate information systems, Geography Information System (GIS), tele-connection, synoptic, climate shift, and climate change. Now he works as a researcher in Payame Noor University, Iran.

Miroslawa Kaczmarek - holds Ph.D. in economics. She works as lecturer at the Poznan University of Economics in the Department of Marketing Research. Her research interests are focused on the methodology of websites usability research, including possibilities of application eye tracking in this area. She works as a consultant for business and conducts quantitative researches based on quantitative methods.

Androniki Kavoura is an Ass. Professor and Head, Department of Marketing, Technological Educational Institute of Athens, Greece. She completed her MSc in Media Management, University of Stirling, Scotland, UK and her PhD on Communication and Culture, University of Stirling, Scotland, UK. She has been teaching at the Hellenic Open University on the MSc programme Cultural Organizations’ Management since 2006. She has participated on research projects and her research interests include qualitative communication research methodologies, branding, advertising, tourism and culture. She has published a monograph on place branding and communication strategies, chapters in edited volumes, numerous papers on highly academic journals and co-chaired and presented papers on international conferences. Her published work is associated with the role of communication in the marketing and advertising of services, cities, regions with the use of social media and other electronic means. She is member of the Editorial Board of many journals in communication, advertising, business and marketing.
Leng Ho Keat is currently an Assistant Professor in the National Institute of Education, Nanyang Technological University. He has been teaching business subjects in tertiary educational institutions for several years and is an accredited Teacher in Higher Education with the Staff and Educational Development Association, United Kingdom. He is also the Academic Advisor to Aston Group Hong Kong. His research interest is in the areas of sports marketing and education. Ho Keat holds a Bachelor’s Degree in Business Administration from the National University of Singapore, a Master’s Degree in Business Administration from the University of Leicester and a Doctor of Philosophy in Business and Management from the University of South Australia.

Gabriele Morandin is Assistant Professor of Organization Theory at the School of Economics, Management & Statistics of the University of Bologna. He is also Director of the Master in Human Resource Management at Bologna Business School of the University of Bologna. He received the Ph.D in Management in 2005 and he has been Visiting Scholar and Research Assistant at the Ross School of Business of the University of Michigan from 2004 to 2006. He studies sensemaking, organizational communities and the company-stakeholders relationship. He has published in management scholarly outlets, such as the European Management Review and the Journal of Applied Psychology.

Hosein Moridsadat is M.Sc of Business Administration in Islamic Azad University of Bonab, Iran. He has published some papers in national journals and conferences. The research interest area of Moridsadat are marketing, research methods, branding, value chain and biorhythm. He is a Fellow of the Marketing Association of Iran and has worked as a marketing consultant for several companies and organizations. Now he works as a researcher in Payame Noor University, Iran. Also, Moridsadat recently is serving as a member of editorial advisory board in Interdisciplinary Studies on Information Technology and Business and The International Journal of Management Review and Information Technology.

Xavier Ginesta Portet is a lecturer in Media Systems in the University of Vic-Central University of Catalonia, and the vice dean of Promotion and External Relations of the Communication and Business Faculty. He also teaches Political Journalism and Sports Journalism. He worked as a press and television journalist for several Catalan newspapers and the national Catalan television (TVC). His PhD thesis explains how Spanish football clubs adapted their communication strategies to the new digital age and its results have been published in several international journals, such us American Behavioral Scientist, Comunicación y Sociedad, Estudios sobre el Mensaje Periodístico or Esporte e Sociedade.

Minita Sanghvi is the assistant professor of marketing at Skidmore. She received her PhD from the Bryan school of business and economics at the University of North Carolina with a minor in feminist studies from Duke University. She received her Bachelors degree from Narsee Monjee College of Commerce and Economics and her MBA from Narsee Monjee Institute for Management Studies in Mumbai, India. After having worked in advertising at Leo Burnett, she got her Masters in Retailing and Consumer Sciences from University Arizona. She taught consumer behavior, integrated marketing communications and consumer product marketing at University of North Carolina Greensboro for 6 years. Her research interests are political marketing, power dynamics in consumption, gender and race in marketing, and interpretive research.

About the Contributors

Piotr Tarka, holds Ph.D. and works currently at the Faculty of Management, Department of Marketing Research of the Poznan University of Economics in Poland. His research interests are methods of statistical measurement, multivariate data analysis, marketing research effectiveness, customers’ data and computer-aided statistics. He worked for a few years as a data analyst and consultant at Research International, Imas International and Analyx. He is the author of 70 articles and numerous research works. As an active member of the Polish Statistical Association, and International Classification and Data Analysis, he participates in many academic works and scientific meetings.

Peter Tomaras is Professor and a member of the academic personnel of the Technological Educational Institute of Athens, Greece in the Marketing Department. He has academic and professional background and previous experience in SA Companies and Organizations of the public sector. In the past he has served as the Manager in Health Region of Central Greece and Manager and Vice President of main Greek Hospitals. He is the author of four Marketing books and coauthor in two more. His main research interests are in the fields of the Marketing and Marketing Research.

Przemyslaw Tomczyk is a PhD candidate at the Centre of Value-Based Marketing, Institute of Value Management, Warsaw School of Economics. Author of the doctoral thesis on the relationship between the customer lifetime value management and the firm performance (based on the example of insurance market in Poland). Scholarship holder of the European Union program, co-financed by the European Social Fund (ESF). Author of publications on marketing management, customer lifetime value management and the methodology of science. Leader and participant of research projects on customer lifetime value management and mixed-method analysis to the triangulation the research results or deepening of knowledge gained as a result of classical hypotheses testing by means of statistical analysis.

Ben Tran received his Doctor of Psychology (Psy.D) in Organizational Consulting/Organizational Psychology from California School of Professional Psychology (formerly known as the Marshall Goldsmith School of Management) at Alliant International University in San Francisco, California, United States of America. Dr. Tran’s research interests include domestic and expatriate recruitment, selection, retention, evaluation, & training, CSR, business and organizational ethics, organizational/international organizational behavior, knowledge management, and minorities in multinational corporations. Dr. Tran has presented articles on topics of business and management ethics, expatriate, and gender and minorities in multinational corporations at the Academy of Management, Society for the Advancement of Management, and International Standing Conference on Organizational Symbolism. Dr. Tran has also published articles and book chapters with the Social Responsibility Journal, Journal of International Trade Law and Policy, Journal of Economics, Finance and Administrative Science, Financial Management Institute of Canada, and IGI Global.
Jordi de San Eugenio Vela is a professor at the University of Vic-Central University of Catalonia (Spain) and Vice-Dean of the Faculty of Business and Communication. From 2011 to 2013 he was the head of the Communication Department. He received his PhD (with honours) in place branding from Pompeu Fabra University. He holds an MA in Environment Management from the University of Girona, a BA in Journalism from Pompeu Fabra University and a BA in Geography from University of Girona. Member of TRACTE research group (Audiovisual Translation, Communication and Territory). Coordinator and co-author of Manual de comunicación turística. De la información a la persuasión, de la promoción a la emoción (Documenta Universitaria, 2011). More recently, he has published Teoría y métodos para marcas de territorio (UOC, 2012). His research interests include place branding, public diplomacy, environmental communication and humanistic geography.