About the Authors

Robert C. Jones works for the Hewlett Packard IT Enterprise Architecture group, where he manages several internal forums and newsletters on the topic of emerging technologies. He has spent most of his 13-year career in HP IT working in advanced technology groups. During that time, he has worked exclusively in virtual teams (both geographically and organizationally). He has published numerous adult Sunday School courses, which are in use in churches of various denominations throughout the United States, Puerto Rico, Canada, England, Scotland, Ireland, Pakistan, Philippines, Togo, and Kenya. He is also President of the Kennesaw (Georgia) Historical Society, for whom he has written several books, including “The Law Heard ‘Round the World - An Examination of the Kennesaw Gun Law and Its Effects on the Community”, “Retracing the Route of the General - Following in the Footsteps of the Andrews Raid”, and “Kennesaw (Big Shanty) in the 19th Century”. He has also written several books on ghost towns in the Southwest, including in Death Valley, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, and Mojave National Preserve.

Robert Lee Oyung is currently an R&D Lab Manager at Hewlett-Packard. He has over 15 years of experience in Information Technology. He has held global management, strategy, and engineering roles in mobility, telecommunications, messaging, collaboration, and IT infrastructure services. He is a member of the Advisory Board for the Mobile Enterprise Alliance. He has managed and participated on virtual teams for the past 10 years. Rob is located in Palo Alto, California and holds a Bachelor’s degree in Computer Science from the University of California at Berkeley.
Lise Shade Pace currently works in the Enterprise Architecture area within HP IT. She has been a full time telecommuter for seven years, and she has worked on virtual, geographically distributed teams for about 12 years. In her assignments within HP IT, she has focused on examining emerging technologies and their potential impact. She resides in the metro-Atlanta, Georgia area and is a graduate of the Georgia Institute of Technology and Oglethorpe University.