About the Contributors

Denis Ushakov holds degree of Doctor of Economy (macroeconomic, international economy) from Russia’s Academy of Entrepreneurship, Moscow, Russia (since 2009) and academic title of Professor in Russia Presidential Academy for National Economy and Public Administration, Rostov-on-Don, Russia. He works as a lecturer in International College at Suan Sunandha Rajabhat University, Bangkok, Thailand, is a Member of Russian Academy of Natural Science, National Tourism Academy of Russia, International Association of Organizational Innovations. His scientific interests include economy of tourism: theory of tourism market’s function, modern trends of development, corporative management; multinational corporation in service production: organization, strategic management, global competitive resources; government regulation of the service market; innovative modernization in economical government regulation and production organization. He has published 35 research papers in federal Russian scientific magazines, 40 research papers in international journals, participated in 35 scientific conferences, and prepared 10 training manuals for students of the service professions.

***

Ekaterina Andreeva is a candidate of philosophy science (since 2007) and senior lecturer, deputy dean of humanitarian faculty in Rostov State Transport University, Rostov-on-Don, Russia. Her scientific interests include problems of cultural transformations of the modern society, economic and innovative aspects of tourism and hospitality, the economic problems of the regions of Russia. She has published more than 30 scientific and methodical works, monographs, teaching, and training; participated in international conferences, including in Russia, Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand, Philippines, International Congress on tourism and hospitality (“Greek forum”).

Aleksey Arkhipov is a Professor in Southern Federal University, Russia, Director of Institute of Economics and International Economic Relations of Southern Federal University, scientific interests include international financial market, international movement of capital, international migration, economical geography, multinational business. He has published more than 160 researches in Russian and international journals, participated in 110 conferences, and prepared 29 training manuals for MBA and PhD candidates.
About the Contributors

Shieh Chich-Jen holds PhD in Global Leadership from Lynn University, FL, USA (since 2003) and academic title of Professor in Department of International Business at Chang Jung Christian University, Taiwan, ROC. He is an Executive director of International Association of Organizational Innovations (USA). His scientific interests are International Human Resource Management, International Marketing Management, Entrepreneurship, and Innovation. He has published 50 research papers and participated in 15 international scientific conferences.

Evelyn Chiloane-Tsoka holds Doctoral degree from the University of Johannesburg and is a professor at the University of South Africa (UNISA) in the faculty of Economic and Management Science. She is a key contributor of establishing center for entrepreneurship for further education and training and reviewer of manuscripts in different international journals. Her scientific interests include leadership, small and medium entrepreneurship. In 2013, she was awarded as a best professor in entrepreneurship organized by Africa Academy of Leadership in Mauritius.

Raeny Dwi Santy has PhD (Marketing) from Padjadjaran University, Bandung, Indonesia, and currently works in Indonesia University of Computer (Bandung, Indonesia) and is a member of Indonesia Management Forum and Indonesian Marketing Association. Her scientific interests include international marketing, consumer behavior, business innovation, organization, and human resource management. She has published more than 10 papers in research journals and participated in national and international conferences (Indonesia, Thailand, Philippines, and South Korea).

Babu P. George holds Doctoral degree in Management and works as a full-time professor at Swiss Management Center (Switzerland) and visiting professor at University of Nevada, Las Vegas, USA. He is editor of International Journal of Qualitative Research in Services and serves on the editorial and review boards of number of international research journals. His scientific interests cover international tourism and hospitality, customers behavior, factors of international tourism flows dynamic, tourist motivation, and transnational tourism manufacturing. In last five years, he has published more than 40 papers in science journals and participated in 25 international conferences.

Unathi Sonwabile Henama is a Magister Artium (Africa Studies) specializing on Tourism from the University of the Free State. He currently works as a lecturer in Tourism Marketing in the Department of Tourism Management at the Tshwane University of Technology. His scientific interests are tourism marketing, aviation, development of tourism in less developed countries, BRICS. He has published in 6 journals and participated in more than 10 local and international conferences.

Elena Kozlova is a candidate of economical sciences (since 2006); PhD candidate in South Russia Federal University, Rostov-on-Don, Russia (since 2013); senior lecturer, vice-head of “Social Technologies” department in Rostov State Transport University, Rostov-on-Don, Russia. Her science interests are concentrated around international migration, government regulation of international labor movement, and macroeconomic reasons of migration. She has published more than 9 articles in Russian federal and international journals and participated in 13 International scientific-practical conferences.
Oleg Lokota is a candidate of economical sciences (since 2001); PhD candidate in Russia Presidential Academy of National Economy and Public Administration, Rostov-on-Don, Russia (since 2012); and vice-rector of South Russia branch of Russia Presidential Academy of National Economy and Public Administration, Head of Department of International Economy. His scientific interests are governance, state policy in economical sphere, state procurements, budgeting, and fiscal control. Since 2005, he has published more than 25 articles in Russian federal and international journals, participated in 40 international scientific-practical conferences, and conducted research together with South Russia administration and administration of Rostov region.

Junior Mabiza-ma-Mabiza is a Lecturer at UJ in Quality and Operations Management, School of Mechanical Engineering, Faculty of Engineering and the Built Environment. His fields of interest are nanotechnology, renewable tech., clean energy & sustainability supply, energy efficiency, mining (PGM) sustainability, environmental sustainability, social development, physics, information technology, management services, and organization development. He is an author of several publications on life cycle inventory, impacts, assessments of manufacturing processes, quantification of equivalent carbon dioxide emissions, and determination of environmental CO2-eq impacts.

Refa Mayasari Buhari holds Bachelor Degrees from School of The Foreign Languages in Japanese Language major and University of Education. She is a Head of Pratama Education Foundation (Bandung, Indonesia) and is interested in education service, education development, human behavior in tourism, international tourism and hospitality, strategic management, rural development, and has created and published 20 English language studying manuals for students of elementary, junior high, senior high schools, university students, housewives, and office workers.

Andrew Onwumele holds PhD (Geography) degree from the University of Benin, is a lecturer in Osun State University, Osogbo (Department of Geography), Senior Research Fellow with the Nigerian Institute of Social and Economic Research (NISER) in the Social and Governance Policy Research Department (SGPRD). His scientific interests include rural development and natural resource-based livelihoods, resilience in rural livelihoods and natural resource management, adaptive responses to environmental change, community-driven and participatory development processes, impact of climate change on rural households, response strategies of rural households to climate change, particularly coastal communities in the Niger-delta, environmental degradation, spatial pattern of rural development, rural infrastructure, rural non-farm farm sector, among other rural issues. He has over 50 publications in both local and international journals.

Shadrack Baleseng Ramokgadi is a Master of Public Administration, Lieutenant Colonel, and researcher at the Center for Military Studies, Faculty of Military Science, Stellenbosch University, South Africa. His scientific interests include human security in African conflict settings with specific reference to global health policy issues. He published chapters in two international monographs and has three national conference papers and two international papers.
About the Contributors

Eteri Rubinskaya is a candidate of economical sciences (since 2003); PhD candidate in Russia Presidential Academy of National Economy and Public Administration, Rostov-on-Don, Russia (since 2012). Currently, she is a senior lecturer in department of international economy, Russian Presidential Academy of National Economy and Public Administration, Rostov-on-Don, Russia. Her areas of scientific research include impact of the integration processes on the Post-Soviet space on migration policy, international labor migration: comparative analysis of migration policy countries of destination, influence of cross-border cooperation on migration in Russia, immigration policy in system of the socio-economic policy. In the last five years, Eteri Rubinskaya has published 6 research papers in federal Russian scientific magazines and participated in 25 international scientific conferences and workshops and prepared 3 training manuals for students.

Siriwan Saksiriruthai holds a PhD (Economics) from National Institute of Development Administration, Thailand (since 2011) and is a lecturer in International College of Suan Sunandha Rajabhat University, Bangkok, Thailand. Her scientific interests include behavioral economics, business economics, migration, marketing, and strategic management. Her thesis was awarded by National Research Council of Thailand (NRCT) in 2013. She has published more than 20 articles and papers in Thai and international economic and business journals and participated in more than 5 international conferences.

Portia Pearl Siyanda Sifolo holds Masters in Business Leadership (since 2010) and currently is a PhD candidate at University of KwaZulu Natal, Durban, South Africa (since 2013). She works as a lecturer in department of Tourism Management, Tshwane University of Technology, Pretoria. Her interests include tourism supply chain management, economic development, collaboration in tourism and strategic management, entrepreneurship, leadership, tourism integration, and migration in Africa. She has published three research papers in tourism journals and participated in two international conferences and three national conferences.

José Vargas-Hernández holds a PhD (Public Administration) degree from Columbia University and PhD (Organizational Economics) from Keele University. He is a member of National System of Researchers of Mexico and a research professor at University Center for Economic and Managerial Sciences, University of Guadalajara, Mexico. Areas of his scientific interest include organizational economics, strategic management, and global marketing. He has participated in more than 200 international academic events and in more than 500 national events, has published 4 books and more than 200 papers in international journals and reviews (some translated to English, French, German, Portuguese, Farsi, Chinese, etc.), and more than 300 essays in national journals and reviews.