About the Authors

Chiraţa Caraiani is Professor at Bucharest University of Economic Studies, Bucharest, Romania and has a PhD diploma in accounting. She has more than twenty years’ teaching and researching activity. The disciplines taught in the field of accounting are: Introduction in accounting, Financial accounting, Managerial accounting, Controlling, Accounting for Financial Market etc. The research interest manifests in managerial accounting, intellectual capital, social and environmental reporting and accounting, sustainable development, accounting education by publishing various theoretical and experimental studies in national and international journals, and by developing national research projects as manager and team member.

Florian Colceag is a mathematics professor and has a PhD diploma in Economics, accounting field at the Bucharest University of Economic Studies. He is a former president of IRSCA Gifted Education and Educate Consortium. His interests manifested over time in various areas: development modeling, professional training and counseling, educational soft designing for gifted education, research and modeling in applied complexity instruments in various fields. He is a post-graduate fellow in gifted education and published various theoretical and experimental studies in national and international journals, and participated in developing national research projects as team member.

Cornelia Dascălu is Professor at Bucharest University of Economic Studies, Bucharest, Romania and has a PhD diploma in accounting. She has a more than twenty years’ teaching and researching activity. The disciplines taught in the field of accounting are: Bank accounting, Public accounting, Managerial accounting, Controlling, etc. The research interest manifests in managerial accounting, intellectual capital, social and environmental reporting and accounting, sustainable development, accounting education by publishing various theoretical and experimental studies in national and international journals, and by developing national research projects as manager and team member.

Camelia Iuliana Lungu is Professor at Bucharest University of Economic Studies, Bucharest, Romania and has a PhD diploma in accounting. She has a twelve years teaching and researching activity. The disciplines taught in the field of accounting are: Introduction in accounting, Financial accounting, Managerial accounting, Controlling, International Financial Reporting Standards etc. The research interest manifests in financial and reporting, managerial accounting, intellectual capital, social and environmental reporting and accounting, sustainable development, accounting education by publishing various theoretical and experimental studies in national and international journals, and by developing national research projects as manager and team member.