About the Contributors

M. Mustafa Erdoğdu is a professor of economics at Marmara University in Istanbul, Turkey, where he is head of Financial Economics. He received his MA and PhD in development economics from Manchester University, UK. He is associate editor of International Journal of Applied Behavioral Economics and International Journal of Productivity Management and Assessment Technologies, international advisory board member of International Journal of Sustainable Economies Management, editorial board member of Turkish Studies Journal, and co-organiser of International Conference of Political Economy. He has published articles on a wide range of issues, a book on social budget, and co-edited several books on economic development and public finance. His major research areas are international political economy and development, sustainable development, renewable energies, global commons and public goods, behavioral public finance, tax compliance, developmental states, industrial policy, technological capability building, employment policy, and financial crises.

Bryan Christiansen has progressively held the positions of President, CEO, and then Chairman in PryMarke, LLC, a Michigan, USA-based Business Analytics and Management Consultancy. Bryan has also been an Adjunct Business Professor at Capella University, DeVry University, and Ellis University (formerly Ellis College of New York Institute of Technology) in the USA, and a Senior Business Lecturer at Gumushane University in Turkey. Born in Washington, DC and raised in Asia, Bryan is fluent in Chinese, Japanese, Spanish, and Turkish, and has traveled to 40 countries during his 28-year business career involving Global 1000 firms. Bryan holds a Bachelor’s degree in Marketing from the University of the State of New York and an MBA degree from Capella University. Bryan will complete his Doctor of Business Administration degree (DBA) from Middlesex University in London, England in 2019.

Pinar Feyzioglu Akkoyunlu is a Professor in the Department of Public Finance in the Faculty of Economics, at Istanbul University. She has received her Ph.D.in Economics (1991) and M.A in Public Finance (1983) from Istanbul University and B.A.in Economics (1981) from Bogazici University. She was a visiting scholar in Wellesley College, USA, 2004 – 05. Her area of interest includes privatization, economics of education. She has published books and articles on public economic enterprises and privatization and economics of education.
El Mostafa Bentour is a researcher at the Arab Planning Institute in Kuwait. He holds an engineering degree in operation researches from INSEA of Rabat in Morocco. His research interests include: Monetary and fiscal policies, econometrics, economic modelling and forecasts and impact analysis. He has published in a number of journals on FDI, Remittances, and growth.

Tarkan Cavusoglu is an Associate Professor of Macroeconomics in the Department of Public Finance at the Hacettepe University. He received his B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in Economics from the Middle East Technical University in Ankara, Turkey. His research interests are macroeconomics, public finance and econometrics. He is teaching Macroeconomics and Econometrics in the graduate and undergraduate programs at the Hacettepe University and at the other universities in Ankara. He has been a Fulbright visiting scholar at the Illinois State University in 2011-2012. He has many publications in national and international journals.

Asmaa M. Ezzat is a citizen of Egypt. At present, Asmaa is an Assistant Lecturer at the Faculty of Economics and Political Science, Cairo University. She has worked as a part-time economic researcher at the Ministry of Planning (Cairo, Egypt). She has also worked as a research assistant for many professors of economics in faculty of Economics and Political Sciences in many projects. She holds a B.A. and M.A. in Economics from Faculty of Economics and Political Science, Cairo University. Her research interests include institutional economics, development economics, law and economics, applied economics and macroeconomic modeling.

Noha Farrag is Economics Lecturer at the German University in Cairo. She formerly coordinated the Internship program between Institute of Law and Economics at Hamburg University and the German University in Cairo. Her research interests are Institutional Economics, Ethical and Islamic Economics, Central Banking, Renewable Energy Economics, Sustainable Development, and Health Economics. She has publications in central banking and bank efficiency studies. Currently, she is researching Ethical Islamic Economic Systems.

Mª Teresa Fernández-Fernández is a Professor of Applied Economics in Rey Juan Carlos University. Ph.D in Economics (2002). Her field of specialization is the service economy and Mediterranean and Arab countries economic and regional integration processes. She has several international and national publications in prestigious journals and chapters of books and she currently is also a researcher in the University of Alcalá, where she was previously a Professor, and coordinates the international activities of the business incubators of Rey Juan Carlos University. She has co-directed several projects on the Euro-Mediterranean integration for the European Commission.

Lamia Ben Hamida is a Professor in la Haute école de gestion Arc of the University of Applied Sciences Western Switzerland. Previously, she was a post-doctoral researcher in the department of management, economics, and industrial engineering at the Politecnico di Milano. She also worked on research projects (realized within the NCCR-IP11) between the University de Fribourg and the World Trade Institute. She has a Ph.D. in Economics, thesis title: “Inward Foreign Direct Investment and Intra-Industry Spillovers: The Swiss Case”. Her thesis analyzes the main key factors determining FDI intra-industry spillover effects. She also works on, among others, the effect of outward FDI spillovers on the home economy, the role of southern MNCs on the economic development of European countries.
About the Contributors

Lamia Ben Hamida has published in many journals and books such as International Business Review, Critical Perspectives on International Business, New perspectives in International Business Research (edited by G. Santangelo and M. Feldman), Emeralds group publishing limited. Her research interests focus on: Multinational corporations and foreign Direct Investment (FDI), innovation activity and technology transfer, FDI and export spillovers, learning processes and technological change, FDI policies, the Policy Framework for Investment.

Fatma Nur Karaman Kabadurmus received her BA in Business Administration at Istanbul University in 2004 and she completed her MA degree in Economics at Istanbul Technical University in 2006. Dr. Karaman earned her Ph.D. degree in Economics at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale in 2012. Upon graduation, she worked as an assistant professor of Economics at Kalamazoo College, MI in 2012-2013. Dr. Karaman joined Yasar University, Department of Economics in 2013. Her research interests include international economics, development economics and economics of innovation.

Oxana Karnaukhova is an associate professor in the Institute of History and International Relations, Southern Federal University. Since 2011 she has played the role of the executive director in the Centre of European Union in the South West Russia. Her research interests concern extraeconomic factors and communicative strategies influencing the international economic environment. The extended list of publications includes articles in highly-ranked European and American journals.

Debi Konukeu-Onal is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Public Finance at the Hacettepe University, in Ankara, Turkey. She received her B.S. and M.S. degrees in Public Finance from the Hacettepe University, and her Ph.D. degree in Public Finance from the Gazi University in Ankara. Her research interests are taxation, tax psychology and fiscal policy. She is teaching Environmental Economics, Economics of Public Debt and Fiscal Structure of the Turkish Economy at the Hacettepe University. She has been visiting researcher at the University of Illinois and at the University of Texas at Austin, School of Law. She has publications in national and international journals.

Belkacem Laabas is an Algerian National working as an Economic Consultant at the Arab Planning Institute in Kuwait. He holds a PhD from the University of Bradford, England. He also worked as Associate Professor at Algiers University and Associate Researcher at the Center of Applied Economics and Development in Algeria. His research interests cover labor market policies, Competitiveness and trade in Arab countries, as well as studying unemployment and poverty as well as economic growth.

Sajal Lahiri holds an endowed chair at the Southern Illinois University where he has been the Vandeventer Professor of Economics since 2002. Before that he was Professor of Economics at the University of Essex, U.K. He is an editor of the Review of Development Economics.

Thomas Marois works in the field of comparative political economy and development. He is currently researching problems of emerging finance capitalism, particularly in regards to Mexico and Turkey. The social relationships of power between states, banks, and labour are central aspects of inquiry therein. Increasingly questions of alternative financial systems and alternatives to bank privatization form the core of his research interests.

Inna Nekrasova is an Associate Professor in Finance, Department of Finance and Credit, at Southern Federal University. Nekrasova I. V. defended her dissertation in 1992, at the Russian State Pedagogical University in St. Petersburg. She has been working in the Southern Federal University from 1993 to the present. She had Training Course in Economics and Management in context of TACIS Project, in the Piraeus University (Greece), in 1996. Nekrasova I. lectures in the following disciplines - Investment, Financial Market and Financial Institutes, Financial Management.

İzzettin Önder was born in 1940 and completed his undergraduate and finally graduate education at Istanbul University, Department of Economics in 1867. He became professor in 1979 and lectured at Istanbul University until 2007 when he retired at the age of 67. He has also taught at Boğaziçi University since 1976. At the present time he is lecturing at both Boğaziçi and Mimar Sinan Universities. He did post-doctoral studies at York University, United Kingdom, in 1967-68 academic term, and was invited as visiting researcher to Seijo University, Japan, in 1975-76 academic term. He has published books and made contributions in his area of interest. He has also articles published in Turkish and English in academic periodicals at home and abroad.

Sumru Oz is a graduate of Bogazici University Electrical Engineering Department. She got an MA degree in Economics from the same university in 1991. After working for 14 years as a telecommunications software design and test engineer in Turkey, Spain, Belgium, and Germany for Alcatel, she returned to economics and completed her PhD at Marmara University in 2005. She worked as a project specialist at TUSIAD-Sabanci University Competitiveness Forum, where she conducted research on competitiveness and prepared reports on Turkey, China, India, and Korea, organized conferences on these countries, and maintained the database on Turkey’s export competitiveness as well as benchmarking Turkey’s competitiveness in general (2006-2009). Sumru Oz has joined the Economic Research Forum in April 2009.

Mustafa Özer is an economist and teaches at the Anadolu University, Eskişehir, Turkey. Areas of research are applied econometrics (especially in the fields of tourism economics, financial markets, Turkish Economy and open macro economy), financial crises, business cycles, as well as civil society. He has been the director of research project of ‘The Role of Civil Society in Turkey’ sponsored by Johns Hopkins University of USA and Anadolu University of Turkey. Further, Mustafa Özer is member of the editorial board of the Journal of Risk Management, and different Journals in Turkey. Mustafa Özer is also member of the scientific committee of MIBES and EconAnadolu.
About the Contributors

Seda Koymen Ozer received her PhD in the Department of Economics at Bilkent University and short-term consultant in the World Bank. She studied in the Department of Economics at Oxford University as a recognised student during her Ph.D. Seda has worked on FDI, spillovers, human capital, the labor market effects of trade, global value chains. She is now an instructor at Ipek University.

Federico Pablo-Martí is a tenured Professor at the department of Economics of the University of Alcalá (Spain). His main areas of expertise are Regional Economics and Agent-based simulation.

Hun Joo Park, Ph.D. (The University of California, Berkeley) is Professor at the KDI School of Public Policy and Management, who has also served at the school as the Chair of Master of Public Policy Program and the Associate Dean for Academic and Student Affairs from 2007-2011. The main areas of his research and teaching interests include Theory and Practice of Political Economy, Globalization and National Identity, Korean Economic Development, and International Relations in East Asia; he has published unpteen scholarly books and articles in those areas. And based on extensive policy research experiences, he has been consulting various governments, including South Korea, Kuwait, Algeria and the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

Ayda Polat is a research assistant in the Department of Economics at the Uludağ University in Turkey. She completed her undergraduate studies at the Uludağ University. Her research interests lie in the area of Development Economics and economic history.

Milenko Popovic was born in Nis, Serbia at 1952. He graduated Economics at University of Montenegro in Podgorica. After that he completed M Sc studies at Belgrade University and got his Ph D degree in economics at University of Podgorica. Most of his career spent as professor at different universities - State University of Montenegro in Podgorica, private Mediterranean University in Podgorica, University of Toronto in Canada, as well as researcher at different institutes and research centers - Institute of Economic Sciences in Belgrade, Biro for Development of Small Business in Podgorica, Center for Russian and East European Studies in Toronto. His research and academic work in general is devoted mainly to Development and Growth Economics.

W. A. Razzak has PhD economics (1994). He is currently an expert adviser at the Central Bank of Oman. He has been an economic adviser at various New Zealand government’s departments (The Reserve Bank of New Zealand; Labor Market Policy Group and Labor Market Dynamics at the Department of Labor, and the New Zealand Treasury. H was also an Adviser at the Arab Planning Institute (2007-2012). He was a research fellow at the Hong Kong Institute for Monetary Research at the Hong Kong Monetary Authority, IGIER - Bocconi University, Milan. Research Inter at the IMF and the World Bank. He was the president of the New Zealand Association of Economists (2003-2004). He has published in a number of refereed Journals. Topics include monetary economics, international finance, business cycles, growth, and labor. For publication details: REPEC page http://ideas.repec.org/e/pra22.html.

Francesco Ricci is a recent graduate in International Management from the University of Bologna, Italy. His research interests are concerned with the topic of Business Development and the Internationalization process adopted by SMEs. He has been previously working as part of the commercial office staff at the Embassy of Italy in Uganda and then with a consulting firm in Bologna, Italy. As a junior consultant he studied different cases of Italian firms willing to internationalize theirs operations. Following this experience, in late 2013, he decided to deepen his research on this fascinating topic by focusing on the relatively unexplored field of the Space industry, throughout the collection of some evidence from a real case study.

Paul Rivlin is an economist and senior research fellow at the Moshe Dayan Center for Middle East and African Studies at Tel Aviv University. He studied at Cambridge, London and Harvard Universities and is the author of five books: The Dynamics of Economic Policy Making in Egypt; The Israeli Economy; Economic Policy and Performance in the Arab World; Arab Economies in the Twenty First Century and The Israeli Economy from the Founding of the State to the Twenty-First Century, as well as monographs, papers, reports and contributions to books on economic development in the Middle East, international energy markets, defense and trade economics. He has taught undergraduate and graduate courses on Middle East economics at Tel Aviv, London and Ben Gurion Universities and has been a visiting professor at Emory University.

Francisco C. Sercovich (PhD, SPRU, Sussex University) is a professor at the University of Buenos Aires. He has been Visiting Scholar at Harvard and Columbia Universities, Visiting Professor at Hofstra and Quebec Universities, Director of Policy Research and Senior Policy Adviser to the Director General, United Nations Industrial Development Organization in Vienna and Chair of the United Nations Task Force on Economic Development. He is also former senior adviser to the Argentine Ministry of Science, Technology and Innovation. Currently he conducts research on innovation policy evaluation and the microdynamics of technological learning.

Daria Taglioni is a senior economist in the Trade and Competitiveness Global Practice of the World Bank Group. Her published work covers topics in international economics, trade and development. Daria is the author of the book “Making GVCs work for Development” (with Deborah Winkler) and of the book “Valuing Services in Trade: A Toolkit for Competitiveness Diagnostics” (with Sebastian Saez, Erik van der Marel, Claire Hollweg, and Veronika Zavacka). Her articles have appeared in several peer-reviewed journals, as well as in edited volumes of the World Bank, the CEPR, the European Central Bank and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). Prior to joining the Bank, Daria worked at the European Central Bank and at the OECD. She holds a Ph.D. in International Economics from the Graduate Institute, Geneva.
John T. Thoburn gained his PhD degree from the University of Alberta in Canada in 1971. After retiring from the School of International Development at the University of East Anglia, UK - where he is now Emeritus Reader in Economics - he became Professor of Development Economics at Ritsumeikan Asia Pacific University (APU) in Japan, and is now Visiting Professor at APU. In recent years he also has held visiting professorships at Kobe University in Japan and at Soochow University in Taiwan. He has published five first-authored books on development, including Primary Commodity Exports and Economic Development (Wiley 1977; and Japanese-language edition, Taga Shuppan, 1984). He has written papers in a wide variety of refereed journals including the Review of International Political Economy, European Journal of Development Research, Global Networks, Global Economic Review, Canadian Journal of Development Studies, Journal of International Development, Journal of the Asia Pacific Economy, Journal of Development Studies, Oxford Economic Papers and the Oxford Bulletin of Economics and Statistics. He serves on the editorial board of the Journal of the Asia Pacific Economy, and is on the international advisory board of Asia Pacific World. He has acted as a consultant to the United Nations Industrial Development Organization, the United Nations Development Programme, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, the Association of South East Asian Nations, the UK Department for International Development, and with the Harvard Institute for International Development.

Cem Okan Tuncel is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Economics at the Uludağ University in Turkey. He completed his Ph.D. at Department of Economics at the Uludağ University and his undergraduate studies at Faculty of Political Sciences at Ankara University. His research interests lie in the area of Innovation Systems, Development Economics and University Industry-Collaboration.

Aynur Ückac was born in 1971 in Adana. Completed University education at Istanbul University. Obtained doctorate degree at Istanbul University. Working as assistant Professor at Adnan Menderes University. Published articles on Turkish Economy and Public Finance issues.

Mine Uğurlu is a professor of Finance at department of management at Boğaziçi University, Istanbul. She is the director of Executive MBA program at Boğaziçi University. Her research interests are agency costs, financial distress prediction, capital structure decisions, entrepreneurial finance, corporate governance, mergers and acquisitions. She has taught corporate finance, strategic financial management, financial issues in entrepreneurship at MBA, Executive MBA and financial engineering programs. She has been a reviewer for journals like Journal of Economics and Administrative Sciences, Boğaziçi Journal and METU Studies in Development.

Alessandra Vecchi is a Senior Research Fellow at London College of Fashion. She was formerly based in the School of Business and in the Institute for International Integration Studies (IIIS) at Trinity College in Dublin in Ireland. She has been also nominated Assistant Professor in the Department of Management at the University of Bologna in Italy where she holds a Marie Curie Fellowship. Besides teaching several subjects mostly in the field of International Business and Operations Management at postgraduate level, she supervises MA and Ph.D. students in a wide array of Fashion Management related subjects.
Deborah Winkler serves as a senior consultant to the World Bank Group’s Trade Practice. She is also a Research Associate with the Schwartz Center for Economic Policy Analysis at the New School for Social Research. Her fields of interest include international trade, global value chains, trade in services, foreign direct investment, welfare effects of international trade and offshoring, and applied (micro-)econometrics. She is the author of “Outsourcing Economics: Global Value Chains in Capitalist Development” (with William Milberg) and “Services Offshoring and Its Impact on the Labor Market” and the editor of “Making Foreign Direct Investment Work for Sub-Saharan Africa: Local Spillovers and Competitiveness in Global Value Chains” (with Thomas Farole). Her articles have appeared in World Development, the Journal of Economic Geography, and World Economy as well as in edited volumes of the World Bank, the International Labour Office and World Trade Organization, and the Oxford Handbook Series. She received her Ph.D. in Economics from Hohenheim University in Germany.

A. Erineç Yeldan received his Ph.D. from University of Minnesota, USA, and joined the Department of Economics at Bilkent in 1988. He served as Chair to the Economics Department between 1998 and 2003. During 1994/95 he was a visiting scholar at the University of Minnesota where he taught Applied General Equilibrium Analysis. He later visited International Food Policy Research Institute, Washington, D.C. and worked as a research associate. During 2007/2008 he was a Fulbright scholar at University of Massachusetts, Amherst and at Amherst College. Dr. Yeldan’s recent work focuses on development macroeconometrics and on empirical, dynamic general equilibrium models with emphasis on the Turkish economy. He is one of the executive directors of the International Development Economics Associates (IDEAs), New Delhi. He was a recipient of Young Scientist Award of the Turkish Academy of Sciences (TÜBA) in 1998. His works were cited among the list of Top 500 Economists by a research conducted by the European Economic Association in 2001.