About the Contributors

Hartmut Quehl has studied History, Political Sciences and Islamic Studies in Marburg, Freiburg, Damascus and Hanover. Since 2008 he is director of the Felsberg Institute for Education and Academic Research (FIBW). His research interest lays on peace and conflict research, post-conflict reconstruction, social and everyday life history of wartimes, oral history and qualitative empiricism. His current research is on the transformation of victorious liberation fronts into governments during the cold war and the post-cold war era, and on the changing faces of violent conflict after the cold war, both under comparative aspects.

***

Nazar Jamil Abdulazeez, holds MA degree in International Relations from KENT university/the UK. Nazar has been working as a civil society activist since early 2000 in Iraq. He was rewarded by (Prince of the UK) for his work during Iraqi Crisis after 2003 and by the Prime Minister – Kurdistan Regional Governorate/ Iraq in 2008. Since 2014, Nazar has been working as Coordinator for NGOs humanitarian Response in Kurdistan Region of Iraq. Additionally, Nazar is the founding father of the Kurdish institute for Victimology and fighting genocide in Iraq and member of Felesber institute for education and academic research in Germany since 2008.
Monica Acosta is a doctoral student and a lawyer and internationalist of Rosario University, Bogota, Colombia. She is interested in issues of gender and transitional justice, transnational collective action, indigenous women participation and their leadership in international organizations. Her doctoral research is focused on indigenous women in transitional justice in Colombia. She is a member of the Intercultural School of Indigenous Peoples, where she teaches about international political participation and transitional justice based on the rights of Indigenous Peoples.

Javier Alonso Cárdenas is a Professor and currently working on a Ph.D. in Political Science at Universidad de los Andes (Bogotá, Colombia). His research interests are peace building, Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration (DDR) programs. He also has worked on history of ideas, conceptual history, and the relationship between history of occidental thought and literature. He has been professor of Political Theory and Research methods on Political Science and International Relations at Universidad del Rosario (Bogotá, Colombia).

Richard Clayton Doughman holds a Masters in Latin American Studies from the Universidad Nacional de Cuyo, Mendoza, Argentina. Human Sciences Professor at the Universidad del Rosario, Bogotá, Colombia.

Sinthya Rubio Escolar is pursuing a PhD in Advanced Studies in Human Rights from the Universidad Carlos III de Madrid. She holds a MA in Advanced Studies in Human Rights from the same institution; and a BA in International Relations from the Universidad del Norte, Colombia. Her current research work focuses on reparations for children and youth. She is currently working at Unidad para la Atención y Reparación Integral a las Víctimas, a government entity based in Colombia, where she is in charge of reparations for children and youth.

Hauke Feickert is an Independent Lecturer at the Centre for Near- and Middle Eastern Studies at the University of Marburg, Germany. He writes regularly on developments in Iraq in the German Middle East magazine “Zenith” and has published in German academic media, like “Die Blaetter” or the “Hessian Foundation for Peace and Conflict Studies”. His academic work focuses on U.S. foreign- and security policy. His research interests also include Iraqi history in the 20th century, the evolvement of Iraqi party politics, state building, and democracy development in authoritarian countries. He holds a PhD in political science from the University of Bonn with a work comparing U.S. policy towards Iraq and the British policy in Mesopotamia after the First World War.

Mauricio Alejandro Fernández studied political science and is researcher of the Center of International and Political Studies (CEPI) of the Faculty of Political Sciences and Government of the University of Rosario, in Bogota, Colombia. His research agenda focuses on the geographical studies, urban and regional development and disparities, cultural studies and social movements. He has been involved in pedagogical initiatives in teaching at indigenous territories and promoting Participatory and Intercultural Action Research.

Yomaira García-Acuña is a Psychologist, who did master studies in social development in the National Autonomous University of Mexico, UNAM. She is a specialist in family therapy from the Family Institute in Mexico and she is the author of the books Families in Colombia: Transitions to the XXIst
Century (Familias en Colombia: Transiciones hacia el Siglo XX) and Routes through Memories (Rutas por la Memoria). She is currently doing her PhD in Social Sciences at the Universidad Nacional General Sarmiento-Instituto de Desarrollo Económico y Social (UNGSIDES), Argentina. Senior Professor and researcher of the Universidad Simón Bolívar, Colombia.

María Angélica Garzón is a Social and Human Sciences PhD candidate, Universidad Nacional de Colombia. Researcher interested in topics related with the return of population and reconstruction of collective memory, Bogotá, Colombia. She currently teaches at the Universidad Pedagógica y Tecnológica de Colombia UPTC in the area of social sciences.

Gerd Hankel, PhD, M.A., is a legal scholar and guest fellow at the Hamburg Institute for Social Research. He studied at the Universities of Granada (Spain), Mainz, and Bremen and holds degrees in Romance languages and literature and in law. From 2000 to the end of 2001 he was on the team of researchers from various disciplines that created the Institute’s exhibition Crimes of the German Wehrmacht: Dimensions of a War of Annihilation 1941-1944. Gerd Hankel’s current research focuses on dealing with the legal aspects of the genocide and the reconciliation process in Rwanda, on International Humanitarian Law and its implementation especially in the Great Lakes Region in Africa.

Daniel Heilmann’s research focuses on public international law and comparative constitutional law. He has worked for various international organizations and he advises governments in South-East Asia, Subsaharan Africa and in the Middle East concerning legal matters and parliamentary affairs.

Thomas Erich Jakob first studied Political Science, Economics, and Islamic Science. Dr. Jakob then graduated at the Friedrich Alexander University (FAU) in 2012 and became research assistant at the Center for Iraq Studies (CIS) in Erlangen, Germany. In spring 2015 he changed to the Philipps University Marburg for PhD research.

Carlos Eduardo Maldonado has a Ph.D. in philosophy (KULeuven, Belgium); Visiting Positions: Visiting Scholar (University of Pittsburgh, U.S.A., Visiting Research Professor (The Catholic University of America; Washington, D.C.); Visiting Scholar (University of Cambridge, UK).Honorary Doctorate (University of Timisoara, Rumania). Full Professor, School of Political Science and Government, Universidad del Rosario (Bogotá, Colombia).

Oscar Palma is an Assistant Professor of International Relations, Universidad del Rosario. PhD London School of Economics, MA University of Leicester. Lecturer Escuela Superior de Guerra, Colombia.

Nadia Stefania Pérez is a Political Science and Government student at Universidad del Rosario. Her research interests include peace-building, democracy, social development, education and democracy.

Paula A. Timcke Rey Sociologist (Dipl. Soz. Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München), is the Latin American Representative of the Felsberg Institute for Education and Academic Research (FI) in Bogotá, Colombia. Her work focuses on violence, armed conflict and internal displacement in Colombia, as well as collective memory, qualitative social research and CAQDAS. Timcke has taught at the Rosario University and has researched at the National Center for Historical Memory (CNMH), both in Bogotá, Colombia. Currently she works on fostering academic relations between German and Colombian research and education institutions and is a member of the ICRoV (International Consortium of Research on Violence).

Gustavo Rojas-Paez lectures legal theory at Universidad Libre, Colombia. He has an MA in Legal Sociology from the IISL-Oñati. He is a PhD candidate in Jurisprudence at Freiburg University, Germany. He is part of the research group Law State and Society coordinated by Dr Nhorys Torregoza at Universidad Libre, school of Law, Colombia. He is an editor of Oñati Sociolegal Series, Vol. 4, No. 1, 2014.

Angela Santamaria (PhD) is faculty and Intercultural School of Indigenous Peoples member, Bogotá, Colombia. Her research agenda focuses on the development of practice oriented theory about collective action, and women indigenous activism. Her preferred approach is research oriented “participative action” and engaged ethnographic and collaborative research. Her current research projects focus on: the conceptualization of indigenous women leadership in Amazonia and Sierra Nevada de Santa Marta (Colombia); the role of cultural diversity and gender in collective leadership. She has been involved in a number of initiatives to teach in indigenous territories and promote Participatory and Intercultural Action Research.

Kathrin Maria Scherr is the Head of the Sub-Saharan Africa Operations at the Max Planck Foundation for International Peace and the Rule of Law (MPFPR) in Heidelberg, Germany. She is responsible for designing and implementing legal projects in the Sub-Saharan Africa region, which support on-going constitutional processes and assist in the stabilisation of legal systems through the provision of capacity-building programmes for legal actors. Kathrin holds a Ph.D. in Comparative Public Law from the European University Institute (EUI), Florence, Italy, an M.A. in International Relations and International Economics from the Johns Hopkins University, School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), Washington DC and a law degree and advanced degree in EU law from the University of Graz, Austria. She previously worked at the Legal Vice Presidency Unit and the Financial and Private Sector Development Unit, Europe and Central Asia (ECA), of the World Bank, at the European Court of Justice, and the Committee on Legal Affairs and Human Rights of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe.

Magnus Treiber holds a PhD in Anthropology from Munich University. His doctoral thesis describes the life-worlds of young urbanites in Eritrea’s capital Asmara. Magnus Treiber taught at Munich, Bayreuth and Addis Ababa universities in Germany and Ethiopia. Political culture in the Horn of Africa, migration studies, anthropological theory and methodology are his main fields of interest.

Sergio Triana has broad experience on peace building, security and Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration (DDR) in Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Caribbean. Currently he is studying in the University of Cambridge a PhD in Criminology and his research focus is the analysis of the Contexts that generate high risk of recidivism in ex-combatants of illegal armed groups in Colombia. His professional experiences combined with his academic background – focused on European public policy at SciencesPo (Paris) in a Master of Public Affairs and US public administration at Columbia University in a Master of Public Administration– serve to marry theory with practice with respect to peacebuilding,
About the Contributors

Stéphane Valter is a senior lecturer (authorized to supervise researches) in Arabic language and civilization at Le Havre University (France) – Institute of Oriental Languages and Civilizations (ILCO). He obtained the ‘agrégation’ (an academic qualification for state teachers) for Arabic in 1989. He was administrative and scientific secretary at the French Institute for Arabic Studies in Damascus (IFead) from 1992 to 1997. He got a doctorate in political science (Arab world program) at the Institut d’études politiques (IEP) of Paris in 1998. He is a member of (the peer reviewed journal) Maghreb Machrek’s editorial board, and a member of Syria Studies’ editorial board (an on-line refereed journal, The Centre for Syrian Studies, University of St-Andrews, Scotland). Last book: Jean-François Daguzan and S. Valter (under the direction of), Armées et sociétés: le printemps arabe entre révolution et réaction, Paris, Fondation pour la recherche stratégique, ESKA, September 2014, 316 pages.

David Whyte is Professor of Socio-legal Studies at the University of Liverpool. His most recent books are How Corrupt is Britain? (ed., Pluto, 2015) and The Corporate Criminal (co-authored with Steve Tombs, Routledge, 2015). He is on the Executive Committee of the Institute of Employment Rights and a member of the Advisory Board of Corporate Watch.

Mirjam Wolfstein has studied Political Sciences and History at the Uni Kassel. 2008 she was a researcher for a representative in the German Parliament. Since 2009 she is a researcher of the Felsberg Institute for Education and Academic Research (FIBW). The main research interest lays on peace and conflict research, negotiation theories and migration especially unaccompanied minors. Her Focus areas are in the Near and Middle Eastern areas.

Felipe Zarama is the Operative Coordinator of the Policy and Strategy in Latin America Observatory at the Hernán Echavarría Olózaga Institute of Political Science. He formerly held the position of Young-Researcher at the Politics and Internationals Affairs Studies Center (CEPI) of Universidad del Rosario (Bogotá) between March 2014 and March 2015, period in which he carried out the present research.