About the Contributors

Khadijeh Rouzbehani is a distinguished researcher in university of Tehran who has been running her consulting firm for roughly a decade. She has been consulting and running workshops in Iran. Her expertise is Policy analysis, policy evaluation, Health policy, organizational behavior and leadership, ethics and KM.

* * *

Laura Caccioppoli has a Masters in Political Science and certificate in Nonprofit Management from Villanova University.

Ubaldo Comite was born in Cosenza, Italy, June 14 1971. He has a degree in Law (1994) and Economics (1996) at the University of Messina (Italy), and earned his Ph.D. in Public Administration at the University of Calabria, Rende (Cs) Italy, in 2005. Currently he is a professor of Budget and Business Organization at the Faculty of Economy, Department of Business Sciences, University of Calabria. Furthermore he is a professor of Business Administration at the Faculty of Economy, University Giustino Fortunato (Benevento – Italy). His Research interests are: Private and Public Management, Non profit Organizations and Accounting.

Minerva Cruz joined Western Michigan University in Fall 2014. She holds a Ph.D. in Political Science with a specialization in Public Administration and Public Policy from Purdue University. She also specializes in Political Economy, Quantitative Methods, Organizational Behavior and Human Resources, and has a M.A. in Public Administration from the University of Puerto Rico. Her teaching regimen includes Health Care policies and courses in Public Administration and Public Policy. Her most recent publication can be found in the book The Theories of Decentralization and Local Government: Implementation, Implications, and Realities. A Global Perspective, 2013, entitled “Medicaid: The Decentralization of Health Policies in the United States and Puerto Rico.” Dr. Cruz has varied research interests, including Public Health Care Administration, Public Policy Implementation, Comparative Studies, and Culture, among others. A particular area of interest is social policy regarding the elderly population in the United States and Puerto Rico. Dr. Cruz has earned various awards, including the Frank Wilson Award given by the Purdue University Political Science Department, the Rosa E. Axtmayer Fellowship from the University of Puerto Rico, the Public Employees Fellowship from the Association of Employees of Puerto Rico, and the Rector’s Honor Role at the University of Puerto Rico.
About the Contributors

Zohreh Karimmian took her master in Industrial Engineering from Tehran Polytechnic. She is working as Advisor to some Iranian public organizations and after passing some experiences in strategic planning and public policy-making, she is now a PhD candidate in “Science & Technology Policy-making” at university of Tehran.

Titilola Obilade is a medical doctor and a senior education specialist. She earned her Ph.D. in Learning Sciences and Technologies from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. She is also an alumnus of University of Lagos, Nigeria where she earned her MBBS in Medicine and Surgery. She has authored and coauthored more than 20 refereed articles, book chapters and a textbook in areas of instructional design and technology, human computer interaction, health education and infectious diseases. Her most recent work is a textbook on visual literacy.

Robert Peters is a professor in the School of Public Affairs and Administration at Western Michigan University. He teaches courses in government and health care finance, intergovernmental relations, health care policy, and statistics. His research focuses on the politics of public budgeting, intergovernmental relations, and pedagogy.

Virginia Sizemore is a healthcare administration professional with over 26 years of experience in the field. She has served in a variety of roles, including regulatory compliance, internal audit, training and development, financial planning, revenue cycle, data analytics and cost accounting. Ms. Sizemore is currently a doctoral candidate pursuing a Doctor of Public Administration degree with a concentration in Healthcare Policy from Valdosta State University. She holds certifications in Healthcare Compliance (CHC) and is a Certified Internal Auditor (CIA).

Mary Eleanor Wickersham has a B.A. from Emory University, the M.A. in Public Affairs from Georgia College and State University, and a Doctorate in Public Administration from Valdosta State University. She is an Assistant Professor of Public Affairs at the College of Coastal Georgia.
Bradley Wilson, Ph.D., is an assistant professor at Midwestern State University. He is the editor of the national magazine of the Journalism Education Association — Communication: Journalism Education Today and co-managing editor of College Media Review, the magazine and research journal of the College Media Association. In 2014, the National Press Photographers Association named him the Robin F. Garland Educator of the Year and the College Media Association named him a Four-Year Newspaper Honor Roll Adviser. He worked for more than two decades in pre-hospital healthcare in three states as an EMT-I.

Mostafa Zamanian has been working as Advisor to many Iranian public organizations since 2002. Particularly in 2004, he was Advisor in the Ministry of Health and Medical Education where he gained excellent experiences in Public Health. He took his master in Industrial Engineering and after several years of advising in various fields, especially public policy and strategic planning, he is PhD in public administration & policy making.