About the Contributors

Marion A. Baker received a BS in Nursing from University of Portland in 1971. She worked in Community Mental Health Centers and at CU Medical Center providing counseling and supervision for the next 20 years. In 1991 she received her Psy.D in counseling psychology with an emphasis in family therapy from University of Northern Colorado. She has previously been a licensed clinical psychologist in Colorado and Alaska. Currently she is licensed in Arizona. Dr. Baker has specialized in work with children and their families with an emphasis in trauma assessment and treatment for the past 25 years. She was adjunct faculty in psychology at University of Alaska, Anchorage and Alaska Pacific University. Currently, Dr. Baker is the lead psychologist at Community Partnership of Enrichment Services (CPES) in Tucson, Arizona. In this position she consults and supervises a team of psychologists and doctoral interns. This team provides comprehensive psychological evaluations for children and adults in Arizona with a specialty in trauma identification and treatment recommendations. She has also been instrumental in developing a trauma treatment program at CPES for children and their parents/guardians. She is also a part of the Trauma Informed Care National Learning Community.

Brittany Canfield, MS, MA provides psychological services across the state of Arizona for underserved youth. She is honorary lecturer for the Applied Psychology Online Masters Program within the University of Liverpool and Laureate Online Education partnership. Through her experience of working with traumatized children and adolescents, she strives to advocate for appropriate services for the children and families impacted by trauma.

Traci Grabb serves as a Clinical Director for Arizona’s Children Association (AzCA) where she is responsible for AzCA’s outpatient children’s behavioral health program in three Southern Arizona counties. Founded in 1912, AzCA is one of the oldest and largest statewide child welfare and behavioral health non-profit agencies in Arizona providing a wide continuum of services to children and families. Ms. Grabb received a Master’s degree in Mental Health Counseling from Argosy University in Phoenix, Arizona. She has experience working in community-based programs with adults, children and their families in the child welfare, juvenile and adult justice systems to include work with sex offenders and victims of domestic abuse. Ms. Grabb’s interests focus on work with vulnerable children and families, as well as the professional growth of staff in promoting and strengthening the social-emotional well-being of individuals and families impacted by trauma and abuse.

* * *
About the Contributors

Tosin Alabi is a clinical psychology doctoral student at Fielding Graduate University.

Apryl A. Alexander received her B.S. from Virginia Tech and M.S. from Radford University. She received her doctorate in Clinical Psychology with a concentration in forensic psychology and child and family therapy from the Florida Institute of Technology in 2012 following the completion of a pre-doctoral internship in forensic psychology at Patton State Hospital. Dr. Alexander also completed a post-doctoral fellowship in forensic psychology at Minnesota State Operated Forensic Services (MSOFS). She is currently appointed as an Assistant Clinical Professor at Auburn University, where her duties include providing clinical and research supervision to undergraduates and graduate students at the Accountability Based Sex Offender Program (ABSOP) at Mt. Meigs, a juvenile residential treatment facility in Montgomery, Alabama. Her research and clinical interests are broadly focused in the areas of violence, victimization, and forensic psychology and assessment.

Samar Adi is a Licensed Associate Marriage and Family Therapist who has worked with both youth and adults in home-based and office outpatient settings. She has worked in rural communities in Cochise and Pima counties.

Sandra Barnes is a clinical psychology doctoral candidate at Fielding Graduate University in Santa Barbara, California.

James Dumesnil, since completing graduate school in Applied Developmental Psychology over two decades ago, has worked successfully with birth families, foster care, adoption preservation, and crisis intervention for adoptive, birth and foster families. He served a term as President of the California Mental Health Counselor's Association and also as President of the National Association of Forensic Counselor’s of California. He served on the board of directors of the Center for Attachment Therapy, Training and Education for Northern CA for over a decade. He has published research in the areas of Restorative Justice and Juvenile Justice Reform, Token Economies & Behavioral Management Interventions, the Facilitation of Group and Family Therapy dynamics, and parenting and therapy interventions for children w/ complex post-traumatic stress disorder.

Rebecca Hoffmann Frances is the Director of Clinical Innovation at Maine Behavioral Healthcare in Portland Maine and an Assistant Clinical Professor of Psychiatry at Tufts University School of Medicine. In her position, Ms. Hoffmann Frances manages two large federally funded projects that focus on providing care and treatment for children and families that have been exposed to violence and other types of trauma. One of these projects is part of the Department of Justice Defending Childhood Initiative, and is one of only eight sites funded nationally. This project focuses on prevention of childhood exposure to violence as well as implementation of evidence based treatment for children under five. The other project, through the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, is a statewide effort in Maine to raise the level of awareness of the effects of violence and trauma on children and implement the evidence-based trauma-focused cognitive behavioral therapy in every county in the state. In addition, Rebecca has been overseeing the implementation of trauma-focused cognitive behavioral therapy and child parent psychotherapy in greater Portland for almost ten years and has published on the topic of successful community-wide TF-CBT implementation. In addition she oversees and advises innovation activities within her agency to ensure successful implementation and change management. She is a licensed marriage and family therapist with extensive knowledge of trauma and its effects on children and families as well as implementation science and change management.

Megan Harrelson received her undergraduate degree from Wake Forest University in 2014. She is currently a second year in Auburn’s Clinical Psychology graduate program where she studies under Drs. Apryl Alexander and Barry Burkhart. Her research focuses on the effects of childhood poly-victimization on adolescent functioning. Specifically, she examines how early childhood trauma influences the emotional, cognitive, and social development of juvenile sex offenders. Her clinical interests focus on implementing trauma-focused cognitive behavioral therapy on children/adolescents with sexual behavior problems.

Eric Jacobs, MA, MHP, LMHCA holds a bachelor of arts in psychology with a minor in comparative religion form the University of Washington, as well as a master of arts in clinical mental health counseling from the University of San Diego. His is experienced with in-patient psychiatric care, both with group and individual therapy. His clinical interests include trauma informed care, in-patient psychiatric care, anxiety, and mood disorders. Recent publications include topics such as juvenile firesetters, terrorism, evidenced based therapeutic approaches, cultural considerations within law enforcement, and community outreach. Eric currently lives in Washington state and supervises a crisis prevention and intervention team, as well as working in private practice.

Ronn Johnson, Ph.D., ABPP is a licensed and board certified clinical psychologist with experience in academic, clinical, and forensic settings. He is a Diplomat of the American Board of Professional Psychology, and has served as a staff psychologist in VA healthcare systems, community mental health clinics, hospitals, schools, and university counseling centers. He has held academic positions at several universities across the country. He founded several counseling centers that currently serve racially diverse populations. These sites include the Urban Corp of San Diego County, Southern California American Indian Resource Center, and the Elim Korean Counseling Center. He is on the community advisory board for the Chancellor at U.C. San Diego. In addition, he established clinical mental health clinics: Korean Mental Health Services, East African Research & Trauma Help (EARTH), Somali Suicide Assessment Project, and Native American Counseling Services at the Southern California American Indian Resource Center (SCAIR).

Leah Genieve Kenyon-George is a Registered Psychologist from Calgary, Alberta, Canada with a Masters in Counselling/ Psychotherapy and a Masters of Arts in Clinical Psychology. She is currently pursuing a PhD in Clinical Psychology at Fielding Graduate University. Leah has worked in community, healthcare, outpatient clinic, and residential treatment settings. She has experience working as a therapist and consulting psychologist for a treatment program in a rural setting and is passionate about work in rural communities.

Karla (Ahrns) Klas, BSN, RN, CCRP, manages the University of Michigan Trauma Burn Center’s nationally acclaimed community and family-centered injury prevention programs. A celebrated educator, speaker, and author, Karla received a Bachelor of Science in Nursing and minor in Psychology degree from Purdue University. Her 23-year background in research, education, critical care nursing, and prevention has produced numerous medical journal articles, textbook chapters, and grant awards.
About the Contributors

She is a National Fire Academy graduate and holds multiple specialty certifications. Karla serves on multiple committees devoted to safety and injury reduction: ABA Burn Prevention, YFIRES National Youth Firesetting Database, MI Arson Prevention, MI Fire Inspectors Society, U-M Injury Center, etc. Her work has received numerous accolades, including the Michigan Fire Inspectors Society Public Educator of the Year Award and the ABA Burn Prevention Award. Karla speaks throughout the nation on burn/trauma injuries, safety, prevention, and youth firesetting. In her spare time, she volunteers in burn survivor support programs, mentors at-risk youth, and writes children’s books.

Alejandra Murillo is an M.A. candidate in the clinical mental health specialization at the University of San Diego.

Sonja L. Salcido also known as Soni Cido Sonja is a Minnesota native of 38 years and became a new resident to Benson, Arizona in 1997. Although her family of 10 children kept her busy homeschooling and cooking, she made time to pursue many other things to include publishing a 1990’s newsletter featuring homeschooling, homesteading, homemaking, and Christian hospitality which circulated the U.S., Canada, London, and New Zealand. She owned a perennial flower business in Minnesota, and has worked as a Cosmetologist, an American Airlines International Travel Specialist, holds an Associate of Art and Business Degree from the University of Phoenix, is an Apprentice Graduate of the Christian Writer’s Guild, has been published in several homeschooling magazines and Indian Life Magazine out of Manitoba, Canada. She has contributed to various creative venues such as, Helium.com, Indy film, book events, political campaigns, and anti-bully forums. A favorite Facebook administrator to many popular pages and groups, she also has two books in the works to include the biography of William “Billy” Fourr, 1800’s Pioneer, and a Middle Grade book, “Rudy’s Rescue” which addresses dog rescue, childhood issues such as bullying, and growing up in a diverse world. You can find her online at “Blazing Cochise County” (Facebook), “Mess Hall Dining from the Mess Hall Chefs”, sonicido.com, sonicido@gmail.com or onlysonicido.blogspot.com.

Roberto J. Velasquez has a bachelor’s degree in psychology from the University of California, Riverside, a master’s degree in counseling and consulting psychology from Harvard University, and a doctorate in counseling psychology from Arizona State University. He is currently completing a master’s degree in criminal justice at New Mexico State University. He has authored over 80 articles and books on minority mental health and was primary editor for “The Handbook of Chicana and Chicano Psychology and Mental Health” (2004).

Michelle F. Wright is a postdoctoral research fellow at Masaryk University in the Czech Republic. Her major research interests include the contextual influences, particularly cultural and familial, on adolescents’ social behaviors, and their pursuit and achievement of peer status. For the past several years, she has studied victimization and aggression through electronic technologies among children, adolescents, and young adults.