About the Contributors

Xiaoge Xu, Ph.D, is Professor of Mobile Studies at Botswana International University of Science and Technology, Botswana, Founder of Mobile Studies International and MOBILE518, Singapore.

***

Seyedali Ahrari is currently is a PhD student in Universiti Putra Malaysia in the youth studies. He is working on youth civic development. He published some studies related to youth civic engagement and their commitment to participation. He graduated from major of Sociology from Islamic Azad University in Tehran, Iran.

Saleh Al-Shehri is an Assistance Professor of mobile learning and TESOL at College of Education, King Khalid University, Saudi Arabia. He received his PhD in mobile and contextual learning from the University of Queensland, Australia in 2012. Al-Shehri has published several articles and book chapters, and presented at different international conferences. His research interests include mobile learning, mobile language learning, mobile social media, behavior of mobile learners, design-based research, and connectivism. Saleh is currently focusing on prospects of mobile learning in Saudi Arabia and the Arab world, and the analysis of mobile social media interaction.

Yulia An, BA, is a graduate student in the Institute of Media and Communication Science at the Ilmenau University of Technology (TU Ilmenau) in Germany.

Philip Auter, Ph.D., is a professor and graduate program coordinator for the Department of Communication at the University of Louisiana. He’s a member of the UL Distance Learning Leadership Council and the Executive Director of the American Communication Association. He has published 28 journal articles and presented at conferences worldwide.

Maria Alexandra Cunha holds a doctorate in business administration from Universidade de São Paulo (USP) and she is full professor at Escola de Administração de Empresas de São Paulo (Sao Paulo Business School) of Fundação Getulio Vargas (FGV), where her line of research is management of information technology.

Yuchan Gao, PhD candidate, University of Nottingham Ningbo, China
Keorapetse Gosekwang is a postgraduate student at Botswana International University of Science and Technology, studying MSc Information System and Data Management. He is a graduate from the University of Botswana with a Diploma in Archives and Records Management and Bachelor’s Degree in Information Systems. His research interests are in the areas of data modelling as he is currently developing a theoretical framework of database models relevant to the management of electronic records.

Kenneth E. Harvey is an Associate Professor of Media & Communications and Distance Learning Coordinator at KIMEP University in Almaty, Kazakhstan. He is also president of The International Education Institute, which is developing an online public service TV network at http://IEI-TV.net.

Nygmet Ibadildin’s research interests are political economy of natural resources, institutional development, and discourse analysis. Currently he is teaching at KIMEP University, Almaty, Kazakhstan.

Tebogo Kebonang is currently pursuing MSc Information Systems at Botswana International University of Science and Technology. He is a graduate of BSc (Hon) Software Engineering and Multimedia with Limkokwing University of Creative Technology. His area of interest is looking into job matching algorithm to enhance their accuracy.

Kushatha Kelebeng is a postgraduate student at Botswana International University of Science and Technology, studying MSc Computer Science. Her research interest includes mobile learning, big data analysis and Business Intelligence. She is currently developing a collaborative mobile learning application for senior secondary students in Botswana.

Beatriz Lanza, holds a doctorate in Business Administration at Federal University of the State of Paraná (UFPR) and Center for Technology in Government at State University of New York (CTG SUNY). She is Senior Analyst at IT Company of the State Government (CELEPAR). Currently, she is researching for designing a conceptual Business Model for SMS-based government services that can be used by governments around the world to reach more citizens and at a lower cost.

Wendy Li is a research assistant of MOBILE518 and Mobile Studies International. Currently, she is working on her thesis at the University of Melbourne, Australia.

Tebogo Mangwa is a graduate of Limkokwing University with a major in BSc (Hon) in Information Technology. She is currently pursuing her masters in Information and data management. Her research interests are in data management, networking and system administration.

Hans K. Meyer is an associate professor of journalism at the E.W. Scripps School of Journalism at Ohio University. His research explores how journalists can empower communities online and how they can adapt to new technologies.

Rebaone Mlalazi is a teaching and research assistant pursuing a master’s degree in Computer Science with Botswana International University of Science and Technology in Botswana, Palapye. He has a degree in Computer Science from the University of Sunderland in United Kingdom. His research interests...
About the Contributors

include big data analysis, e-learning, m-learning and artificial intelligence based expert systems. For the past 2 years he has been developing mobile applications for teaching and learning.

Thotobolo Morapedi is a postgraduate student at Botswana International University of Science and Technology, currently pursuing MSc. Information Systems and Data management. He graduated from Staffordshire University, UK with BSc. (Honors) Business Computing with specialism in Management. His area of Interests is in education expert system, Mobile Computing, Mobile Learning and Mobile Commerce.

Jamilah Othman is a lecturer at the Department of Professional Development and Continuing Education, Faculty of Educational Studies, University Putra Malaysia. Currently, she is appointed as Head of Laboratory for Social Change, Economy, and Peace Studies at Institute for Social Studies (IPSAS).

Fernando de la Cruz Paragas is a faculty member of the Department of Communication Research at the College of Mass Communication of the University of the Philippines Diliman (UPD). His research focuses on the intersections among mediated communication, international migration, and message design.

Yao Qi, PhD candidate, Department of Communication, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Macau.

Mukul Saxena holds a Ph.D. in Sociolinguistics from the University of York, UK. Dr. Saxena is Director of Research and CRALC, Associate Professor, School of English, Faculty of Arts and Education, The University of Nottingham Ningbo, China.

Burton Speakman is a Ph.D. candidate at the E.W. Scripps School of Journalism at Ohio University.

Samantha Stevens is a Mass Communications graduate student at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette, specializing in Advertising and Communications Coordination. She received her undergraduate degree in English/Literature from Louisiana State University.

Mei Wu, PhD, Association Professor, Department of Communication, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Macau, China.

Janice Hua Xu (Ph.D. in communication, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign) is assistant professor of Communication at Holy Family University, Pennsylvania. Prior to college teaching in the U.S., she worked as lecturer of international communication in Peking University, news assistant at New York Times Beijing Bureau, and radio broadcaster at Voice of America, Washington DC.

Zeinab Zaremohzzabieh is a PhD student in Universiti Putra Malaysia in youth studies. She obtained her Master in Social research from Islamic Azad University in Tehran, Iran in 2009. She is currently working on human development in relation with ICT. She published a number of studies in relation with youth and ICT.