About the Contributors

Sanya Ojo holds a PhD in Entrepreneurship. He is an accomplished entrepreneur with thirty-five years’ experience. This informs his research interests in diaspora/ethnic entrepreneurship, international business strategy and management. He has the privilege of mobility in career choices, exploring options critically, establishing educational preferences, and placing bets on multiple knowledge paths, as a consequence of his capacity to benefit from high-end knowledge and research. Currently, he operates a goal-oriented consultancy in business and entrepreneurship both in practice and the academic field. He is a Fellow of Higher Education Academy (FHEA) and a visiting Research Fellow at the University of East London, UK. As an award-winner, he has published in reputable academic journals and resources.

* * *

Isaac O. Abereijo holds a doctoral degree in Technology Management from Obafemi Awolowo University, Ile Ife, Nigeria. He is an Associate Professor at the Institute for Entrepreneurship and Development Studies of the same university, where he teaches and carries out researches on entrepreneurship studies and small business development. He has published in local and international journals in the areas of small business finances and technological innovation. Among many international conferences, seminars and workshops is attended are Price Babson Symposium for Educators, USA (2014) and Brown International Advanced Research Institute (BIARI) on Technology Entrepreneurship and Management, USA (2009).

Juliana Afolabi had her first and second degrees in Sociology and Anthropology from Obafemi Awolowo University, Ile Ife, Nigeria. She is currently pursuing her doctoral degree in the University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands. She is also a faculty member of Institute for Entrepreneurship and Development Studies, Obafemi Awolowo University, Nigeria.

Ailson De Moraes holds a Full time academic position at Royal Holloway School of Management, University of London. He has a Bachelor’s and Master’s degrees from Andrews University, Michigan, USA and an MA in Business and Culture Studies from City University, London; a Postgraduate Certificate from Fundacao Getulio Vargas, Brazil, and University of California, Irvine. Ailson has also a Postgraduate Certificate in Skills of Teaching to Inspire Learning (Accredited programme by the Higher Education Academy) from Royal Holloway Educational Department. Ailson has attended a number of executive and non-executive programs along his career as an academic and professional in management and business. He has extensive management and business experience, having been worked in a variety of industrial and commercial sectors in international organisations in Brazil, Portugal, Switzerland and the UK. With a profound interest in globalisation and cultures, Ailson travels extensive around the world teaching and attending/presenting in international conferences and seminars; and he speaks fluent three main international languages – Portuguese, English and Spanish. Ailson is a Guest Professor/Lecturer at the University of Hong Kong MBA programme, Kaplan Singapore, and St Martins Institute, Malta, in the executive programme. Ailson is a Fellow of three prestigious British institutes, The Higher Education Academy (FHEA), the Chartered Management Institute (FCMI) and the Institute of Administrative Management (FInstAM). He is also a member of the British Academy of Management (BAM) and the Center for Public Services Organisations (CPSO).

Ignatius Ekanem holds a PhD in Financial Management of SMEs from Middlesex University, London. He is a Senior Lecturer in Business Management at Middlesex University Business School, London. He specialises in economic regeneration and small business research, with particular focus on the financial management practices of small and medium sized businesses and has published his work in a number of reputable journals, including The British Accounting Review, International Small Business Journal, Journal of Small Business and Enterprise Development, International Journal of Entrepreneurial Behavior and Research and International Journal of Consumer Studies. He has written two book chapters and is a co-author of over 20 official reports. He is a fellow of the Higher Education Academy (FHEA).

Maria Elo holds a PhD in Economics, Åbo Akademi University, Finland. She is a consultant and a post-doctoral researcher at Turku School of Economics, University of Turku, Finland and a Migration Fellow at the Institute of Migration, Finland. She is the founder and leader of the Diaspora Networks in International Business research platform and the co-founder of the Migration and Diaspora Entrepreneurship Conference. Her research focuses on international business, internationalization processes, business networks, lifecycle, migration, ex- and repatriation, diaspora networks, diaspora entrepreneurship and transnational entrepreneurship. Her work is presented in various conferences and published in books and journals, such as Industrial Marketing Management, International Journal of Manufacturing Technology and Management, American Journal of Entrepreneurship, Journal of Entrepreneurship, Management and Innovation, International Journal of Entrepreneurship and Small Business, Diaspora Studies, Journal of International Entrepreneurship, and Journal of International Management.

Hasan Gürkan is an Ass.Prof.Dr. in the School of Communication at Istanbul Arel University in Turkey. He holds his Ph.D. from Istanbul University Department of Radio, Television and Cinema. He’s done his post-doc research in the department of Journalism and Communication Sciences Institute at the University of Wien about migration and Austrian-Turkish immigrant directors’ films. He has also written the books of Counter Cinema and Journalism Practices. He focuses counter cinema, Hollywood Cinema, alternative media and alternative cinema, cinema and representations, cinema and migration, and gender communication, and gender studies on.

Qingan Huang holds a PhD Degree in Management from the CASS Business School, City University, UK, and currently is a Senior Lecturer in Strategic Management at the School of Business and Law, University of East London, UK. His research interests include internationalization of SMEs, marketing, strategic leadership and entrepreneurship.
Junzhe Ji is Lecturer in Management at the School of Economics and Management, Tongji University, Shanghai, China. He received his PhD degree in Management Studies from the University of Glasgow, UK. His research interests include international decision-making, entrepreneurial deviance, and cross-cultural studies, and his work appears in International Business Review, International Marketing Review, and Journal of Business Research.

Kijpokin Kasemsap received his BEng degree in Mechanical Engineering from King Mongkut’s University of Technology, Thonburi, his MBA degree from Ramkhamhaeng University, and his DBA degree in Human Resource Management from Suan Sunandha Rajabhat University. Dr. Kasemsap is a Special Lecturer in the Faculty of Management Sciences, Suan Sunandha Rajabhat University, based in Bangkok, Thailand. Dr. Kasemsap is a Member of the International Association of Engineers (IAENG), the International Association of Engineers and Scientists (IAEST), the International Economics Development and Research Center (IEDRC), the International Association of Computer Science and Information Technology (IACSIT), the International Foundation for Research and Development (IFRD), and the International Innovative Scientific and Research Organization (IISRO). Dr. Kasemsap also serves on the International Advisory Committee (IAC) for the International Association of Academicians and Researchers (INAR). Dr. Kasemsap is the sole author of over 250 peer-reviewed international publications and book chapters on business, education, and information technology.

Liying Meng is Senior Lecturer in Enterprise and Entrepreneurship at University of Northampton, where she runs courses in entrepreneurship and supervises PhD students. She is a serial entrepreneur and actively engaged in international entrepreneurship and research.

Tidings P. Ndhlouw obtained his Ph.D. from the University of East Anglia, U.K., and is a Senior Lecturer in Economics in the Department of Accounting, Finance and Economics at the Manchester Metropolitan University, UK; having previously taught at the University of Manchester, UMIST (now part of the University of Manchester), University of East Anglia and the University of Essex. He is also a Visiting Research Fellow, Graduate School of Business Leadership (GSBL), University of South Africa (Unisa), Visiting Scholar at Nanjing University, China, and University of Caen, France. In addition, Dr. Ndhlouw is external examiner (postgraduate programmes) at the University of Fort Hare, South Africa, while also supervising M.Sc. and PhD candidates at the Uganda Management Institute, Durban University of Technology (dut) and GSBL in South Africa. Dr. Ndhlouw was involved in the founding of International Academy of African Business and Development (IAABD) 17 years ago, including the organisation’s journal, The Journal of African Business. He has been the Executive Secretary of IAABD for the last 3 years, and was re-elected for another term of 3 years (2016-2019). He has also been associate editor of the Journal of Green Economy and Development (JGED) since its inception in 2014 and the chair of the annual JGED Conferences. Dr. Ndhlouw’s research focuses on commodity agreements, such as the EU/ACP Sugar Protocol, the EU’s Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) and subsidiarity questions; the impact of EU aid programmes on developing countries; and theoretical Marxian and Keynesian/neo-Ricardian issues. He is also concerned with issues of development, including globalisation; global (financial) crises; food ‘crises’ and food security; decent work and livelihoods strategies; sustainable development; the green economy and service delivery; stabilisation and structural adjustment policies; foreign direct investment (FDIs); and development of crafts for exports, particularly with reference to the European Union and African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) countries. Other areas in which he researches are questions of entrepreneurship, in particular (women’s) economic empowerment and the role of ethnicity in business in developed and developing countries; inequality and poverty; Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) and Corporate Social Investment (CSI) in developing countries and emerging economies; and Intensive Alternatives to Custody (U.K.). Current research interests are as follows: agricultural Global Value Chains (GVCs), with particular reference to Eastern Cape and KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa; family planning programmes in KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa; factors influencing consumption, energy and environmental behaviour in South Africa, India, Tanzania and the UK; Devolution in Greater Manchester, UK; migration trends and behaviours in South Africa, the UK and other countries; the role of China in Africa, particularly South Africa, Nigeria, Kenya and Angola; xenophobic violence in South Africa; and land reform and human settlements in South Africa. Dr. Ndlovu have visited South Africa numerous times during the 2005-2015 period to conduct interviews and initiate joint investigations and/ or collaboration with colleagues and institutions in South Africa.

Catherine Ndinda is a Chief Research Specialist at the Population, Health, Health Systems and Innovation unit of the Human Science Research Council; as well as Honorary Research Fellow, University of KwaZulu-Natal and External Supervisor, University of South Africa, Pretoria. She holds PhD in Social Science and MSc in Development Studies with over 15 years’ experience in the design and implementation of social science research and the evaluation of the effectiveness of national policies. Her current interest is in monitoring and evaluation and in this regard she has conducted and contributed to evaluation studies, some of which include: ‘Design assessment of the South African Indigenous Knowledge Systems (IKS) Policy (as principal investigator); South Africa’s Revitalized Response to AIDS and HIV (SARRAH) (as expert evaluator), Audit Survey of the Housing Association of Blaauwberg (HAB) (principal investigator) and Baseline Assessment for the Future Impact Evaluation of Informal Settlements Targeted for Upgrading (2014-2016) (as principal investigator). In Population and health Dr Ndinda has been involved in a number of studies including ‘An exploratory study into the nature and extent of Substance Abuse in Mpumalanga (2012)’(co-principal investigator) ‘Circular Migration in Eastern Cape (2013) and ‘Situation analysis of Population and Development in Eight Priority Districts in Eastern Cape and KwaZulu-Natal’ (2013). Her work on population and health has appeared in high impact journals such as AIDS Care and Culture and Health and Sexuality. Dr Ndinda has been involved in policy development and policy analysis. She currently holds a research fellowship on ‘The analysis of NCD policies in South Africa’. Given her research in analysing the post-apartheid housing policy Dr Ndinda has published widely on subsidised housing in South Africa and gender. She is the author of the book ‘Women and Subsidised housing in KwaZulu-Natal’ published by Lambert publishing (2011). She has also co-authored a text on Women’s Activism for Gender Equality in Africa. Her work on housing and gender has appeared in journals such as Development Southern Africa, Journal of International Women’s Studies and Africa Insight. Her areas of interest are in monitoring and evaluation, housing policy and practice and gender and development.

Sonny Nwankwo is the Academic Provost of the Nigerian Defence Academy (NDA), Kaduna, Nigeria. He is Visiting Professor at universities across Africa, Europe, and Australasia.
Elizabeth Ojo has a first degree from the King’s College London and currently studying for a Master degree at the Queen Mary’s University of London. She has tried her hands at some entrepreneurial and extra-curricular activities such as production, marketing and sales of fashion artefacts; web design; and market research. Her research and entrepreneurial interests are focused on Africa and the African diaspora.

Jummy Okoya is an experienced educator, trainer and researcher both in public and private sector with more 15 years’ experience in UK Higher Education sector. Jummy has extensive expertise in providing teaching and training services in human resources management, learning & development and Leadership. She is also an experienced distance learning writer. Jummy holds a PhD in Human Resource Management and Entrepreneurship. She is a Fellow of the Higher Education Academy and a Chartered academic member of the Chartered Institute of Personnel Development. She is currently a visiting Lecturer at Imperial College Business School and a Leadership consultant.

Ellis Osabutey is a Senior Lecturer in International Business and Strategic Management at Middlesex University Business School, Department of International Management and Innovation. He is the programme leader for BA International Business and Trade. His research is in International Business and Management, with specific focus on Foreign Direct Investment; Technology and Knowledge Transfer; Human Resource and International Management; and SME Innovation Strategies. His empirical interest is focused on, but not limited to, Sub-Saharan Africa. He is committed to promoting evidence-based policymaking in Africa. With respect to Africa, Ellis, uniquely, understands research subjects and audience and is therefore able to produce research outputs of importance to both African and non-African contexts. Consequently, his papers have received awards at various international conferences. Prior to his academic career, he had corporate managerial experiences with private and public-sector organizations in domestic and multinational firms in Africa and the West. His combination of international corporate and academic experience enhances his interaction with academic, corporate and multilateral organisations. He is a pro-active member of various African/UK business and academic networks.

Ndidi Juliana Uwajeh graduated from Middlesex University in 2014 with a distinction in MA in International Business Management. In her dissertation, she examined the market entry strategies of Small and Medium Enterprises as a learning process. She is also PRINCE 2 certified by the British Computer Society (BCS). Ndidi currently works for the Institute of Engineering and Technology as a project management officer.