About the Authors

Robert MacGregor is an associate professor in the School of Information Technology and Computer Science at the University of Wollongong, Australia. He is also the former head of discipline in information systems. His research expertise lies in the areas of information technology (IT) and electronic commerce (e-commerce) in small to medium enterprises (SMEs). He has authored a number of journal and conference publications examining the use and adoption of IT in SMEs. MacGregor is also the founding editor of the Australasian Journal of Information Systems and was conference chair of the Australian Conference of Information Systems (1992). In his spare time, he writes music. His most recent work is the symphony “Alba.”

Lejla Vrazalic is an associate professor in information systems at the University of Wollongong, Dubai (UOWD). She is also the chair of the UOWD Research Committee and coordinator of the Program for the Enhancement of Learning and Teaching (PELT). Her research interests are in human computer interaction and e-commerce, and she was awarded the University Medal in 1999 for her research. Vrazalic received the Vice Chancellors Award for Outstanding Contribution to Teaching and Learning (OCTAL) (2004) and a Carrick Citation for Outstanding Contributions to Student Learning (2006). She is also the recipient of the Australian Prime Minister’s Award for Excellence in Business Community Partnerships (NSW) (2004) for her work on community portals in Australia.