About the Contributors

Muhammed Karatas received his Ph.D. from Mugla University, Turkey. He is currently working as an associate professor at Mugla University. His main areas of interests are economic development, socioeconomic development, human capital, natural resources and the economy of the environment, the European Union, and innovation and technology. He teaches on the topics of natural resources and the economy of the environment, economic development and growth, economics, international economic integration and the European Union, international institutions, and the economics of innovation. He has published a number of papers and book chapters in various subjects.

Mustafa Zihni Tunca is an associate professor at Suleyman Demirel University, Turkey. He is the director of e-MBA Program at SDU. He earned his Ph.D. degree from Lancaster University, UK. His research interests include e-commerce, ICTs, and supply chain management. He has published several papers, book chapters and conference papers. He is the editor of two books.

Abdul Mumin Abdulai holds a Bachelor’s degree in Geography & Resource Development with Sociology from the University of Ghana, Legon-Accra, and Master’s degree in Sociology & Anthropology from the International Islamic University Malaysia (IIUM). Currently, he is in the final year of his PhD programme in Environment & Development at the Institute for Environment & Development (LESTARI), National University of Malaysia. His research interests include Livelihoods Sustainability, Poverty Alleviation, Resource Use and Enhancement, & Environmental Governance.

Sinan Alcin received his PhD from the Department of Economics at Marmara University, Institute of Social Sciences. He is an Assistant Professor of Economics at Maltepe University. His research areas are labor economics and economics of technology.

Leonardo Baggiani was born in 1974 near Pisa (Italy). He got graduate in Economics at the University of Pisa in 1998 with a discussion on Inflation Targeting and the new-born European Central Bank. In 2003, after a short working period in the credit/financial sector, he got a Master Grade in Finance and Risk Management at the Bicocca University in Milan. Since few years he is working as derivatives trader and analyst for a bank in Florence. He has published some papers on Jensen’s Social Sciences Research Network site about modeling the euro-dollar exchange-rate and a simple economy affected by money-illusion. He manages an Italian blog to expose sketches of his economic insights mainly on business cycle theories. He collaborates with an important Italian on-line journal as economic columnist. He collaborates with some associations and economists to develop and spread new business-cycle theoretical perspectives.

Chamhuri Siwar: Professor Siwar has more than 35 years experience as lecturer and researcher at Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia (UKM). Presently, he is a Principal Research Fellow at the Institute for Environment and Development (LESTARI), UKM. He has served as lecturer at the Faculty of Economic at UKM, where he once served as Head, Department of Agriculture and Resource Economics. His area of research specialisation includes: Agricultural and Resource Economics, Rural Economics, Environmental Economics, Poverty and Income Distribution, Sustainable Economies, Socioeconomics and Impact Studies, sustainable livelihood and sustainability evaluation, corporate social responsibility, trade and environment. He has successfully supervised 10 PhDs and 12 Masters, and has served as external examiners to graduate students of Universiti Malaya, Universiti Sains Malaysia, Universiti Putra Malaysia, Universiti Malaysia Sabah, Wageningen University (Neatherlands), Bharathidasan University (India).

Utz Dornberger is a Professor and the Director of the ‘International SEPT (Small Enterprise Promotion and Training) Program’ at University of Leipzig, Germany. His research interest includes firm internationalization and international entrepreneurship, innovation management and entrepreneurship. He holds a MSc. in Biology and an MBA in SME Development. He manages the entrepreneurship promotion programme SMILE and the MBA programme in SME Development at the University of Leipzig which belongs to the Top International Master Programme in Germany. He is CEO of the consulting company INNOWAYS Inc. managing several promotion programmes for high-tech SMEs in developing countries.

Erkan Erdil (Ankara, 1968) studied Political Science and Public Administration at Middle East Technical University (METU) in Ankara. He received Bachelor of Science degree in 1990. He received Master of Science degree in 1994. He further received Ph.D. in Economics from University of Maastricht in 2001 and another Ph.D. from METU in 2004. He was appointed as instructor in 1997 and as the vice-chairman of the Department of Economics at METU. He was, then appointed as assistant professor in 2001 and associate professor in 2005. He is also the director of Science and Technology Policy Research Center (METU-TEKPOL) since 2002. His main areas of interest are labor economics, economics of technology, applied econometrics, economics of information and uncertainty. He has been author/co-author, and referee of articles in Applied Economics, Applied Economics Letters, Agricultural Economics, METU Studies in Development and presented papers to various international conferences.
Hakan Gundogdu is an assistant professor at the Department of Philosophy of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, Gazi University in Ankara, Turkey. He was educated at Dokuz Eylul University in Izmir, Turkey, where he graduated in 1992 with a BA in divinity. He also received his M.A. (1995) and Ph.D. degrees (2003) in Philosophy and Religious Sciences from the Institute of Social Sciences at Dokuz Eylul University. He worked as a teacher at public schools between 1992 and 1996. He became research assistant in 1996 and assistant professor in 2004 at the chair of History of Philosophy at the same University. In 2009, he joined the Department of Philosophy at the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, Gazi University in Ankara. While his doctoral thesis was about contemporary humanism and atheism, since 2004, Dr. Gundogdu has generally been working on social, moral and political philosophy. His recent academic publications are about multiculturalism, globalization, toleration, critical thinking, free will debate and existentialism. In addition to his own writings, he translated some articles and books on general philosophy, thinking straight, understanding history and Michel Foucault. Since 2004, he has taught both graduate and undergraduate courses on philosophy of history, philosophy of education, reading and writing skills in philosophy, history of philosophy, modern philosophy, ancient philosophy, introduction to philosophy, logic, philosophy of religion, Islamic philosophy, philosophical texts, and ethics.

Niv Horesh is Lecturer in Chinese Studies at UNSW, Sydney, Australia. He worked as Business Development Manager with one of China’s largest security-system integrators between 2000-2003. Dr. Horesh’s academic research focuses on the economic history of Shanghai, and depictions of China in 18th century classic European literature.

Varinder Jain is a Doctoral Fellow at the Centre for Development Studies, Thiruvananthapuram, Kerala (INDIA). He has obtained his M. Phil degree from Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi. He has published a few research papers in prestigious journals and edited books. His research interests are varied. These include political economy issues, vulnerability, informal sector, social security and foreign direct investment.

M. Selcan Kaynak is an Assistant Professor at the Political Science and International Relations Department of Bogazici University, Turkey. Her research focuses on digital divide policies, cultural globalization, and political socialization and mass media. She obtained her Ph.D. from the Mass Media and Communication Program at Temple University.

Muhammad Arshad Khan is currently working as Senior Research Economist, Pakistan Institute of Development Economics (PIDE), Islamabad (Pakistan). He has received his Master degree in Economics from University of Azad Jammu & Kashmir Muzaffarabad (Azad Kashmir), M.Phil form Quaid-i-
About the Contributors

Azam University Islamabad (Pakistan) and Ph.D. from Pakistan Institute of Development Economics (PIDE) Islamabad. Mr. Khan has more than 16 years of teaching experience, and has worked in various capacities including Lecturer in Economics, University of Azad Jammu & Kashmir Muzaffarabad, Principal, Government College Kotli (Azad Kashmir) and Head Department of Economics, Government Post-graduate College Muzaffarabad (Azad Kashmir) before he joined PIDE. He has more than 20 publications so far that include book chapters, refereed articles in the International and National Journals in the areas of exchange rate, Finance and Growth, Banking Sector Reforms, Energy Issues and Trade and Finance. His area of interest is macroeconomics, macroeconometric modelling, monetary economics and international trade and finance.

Israfil Kurtcephe is the rector of Akdeniz University in Antalya, Turkey. He is a member of Department of History since 1999. He has taken several administrative, consultive, editorial tasks. He has published several books, chapters, papers and delivered a number of conferences along with documentary consultancies and TV/Radio programmes.

Hiroaki Miyoshi, Professor of Graduate School of Policy and Management, Doshisha University, Kyoto and director at its Institute for Technology, Enterprise and Competitiveness (ITEC). He worked at a major private sector think tank for 10 years, conducting research and making policy recommendations on a broad range of issue as a senior researcher and joined Doshisha University in 2003. His research interests include public economics and organizational economics. His recent publications include Knowledge Asset Management and Organizational Performance (ed. with Y. Shouzugawa), Hakuto-Shobo Publishing Company, 2009; Technological Innovation in the Automotive Industry and Economic Welfare (ed. with M. Tanashita), Hakuto-Shobo Publishing Company, 2008; ‘Factors Associated with Safety of Passenger Cars’ (with M. Tanashita), IATSS Research, 2008; and ‘Japanese Corporate Governance: Structural Change and Financial Performance’ (with A. M. Colpan, T. Yoshikawa, and T. Hikino), Asian Business & Management, 2007.

Ramakrishna Nallathiga is an Urban Environmental Planner and holds a Master's degree of Philosophy in Land Economy (UK). His work experience spanning over ten years concerns with urban and regional development planning, urban and environmental policy as well as environmental planning, assessment and management. During his career, he was associated with national academic and research institutes of repute like NEERI – Nagpur, IGIDR – Mumbai, IIT – Bombay and Bombay First. Currently, he is affiliated to the Centre for Good Governance, Hyderabad. He has presented papers in a dozen international conferences, both in India as well as abroad. He has more than a dozen publications in international and national journals to his credit.

Masaru Ogawa, Associate Professor of Economics, Department of Business Management, Kobe Gakuin University. Major areas of specialty include Operations Research and Business Management. Current research focuses on application of DEA (Data Envelopment of Analysis) to Japanese information industries such as telecommunications and broadcasting. Publications include “Benchmarking Method Considering Complementary Network Externality, Scientiae Mathematicae Japonicae, (Japanese Association of Mathematical Sciences) Vol. 58, No. 3, 2002, and “The Total Ranking Method from Multi-categorized Voting Data Based on AHP, Industrial Engineering and Management Systems, Vol. 1, No. 1, 2003. Received B.A. in Engineering from Osaka University; M.A. from Osaka School of International Public Policy, Osaka University; and Ph.D. in Engineering from Osaka University. He served as a core member of Social Implications of Technology and Information Ethics Committee, Network Operation Guideline Working Group, and Technology and Ethics Examination Working Group, the Institute of Electronics, Information and Communication Engineers (IEICE).

Bekir Parlak is a professor in the Department of Public Administration at the University of Uludag in Turkey. He received his Ph. D. degree in Province Administration and Local Governments from the University of Cumhuriyet. His research interests are regional development, e-government, local e-government, theory of democracy, administrative history and administrative reforms. He teaches courses on Public Administration, Local Governments, Governance and E-Government, Comparative Government Systems, Personnel Management, Modern Management Techniques, Administrative Reforms in Turkey and Turkish Administrative History.

Michael G. Papaioannou is a senior economist in the IMF’s Monetary and Capital Markets Department. Previously, he was a senior economist in three other IMF Departments. While at the Fund, he served as a Special Adviser to the Governing Board of the Bank of Greece. Prior to his employment with the IMF, he was a Senior Vice President and Director of the Foreign Exchange Service of The WEFA Group (Wharton Econometrics Forecasting Associates). He has also served as Chief Economist of the Council of Economic Advisors of Greece. He taught at Temple University as an Adjunct Associate Professor of Finance. He was a Principal Research Fellow at the University of Pennsylvania, Department of Economics, LINK Central, and a Summer Intern in the World Bank. He holds a Ph.D. in economics from the University of Pennsylvania, and an M.A. in economics from Georgetown University (full distinction). He has co-edited a book, published numerous articles in the area of international finance, and is an associate editor of a finance journal.

Alexandre Repkine graduated with B.Sc. in mathematics from the Moscow State University in 1993, Alexandre Repkine studied at the New Economic School in Russia in a Master of Economics program, where he obtained the M.Sc. in Economics degree in 1995. At that time his research interests were mostly focusing on the process of economic transition that his native country was going through at that time. Alexandre Repkine received his Ph.D. in Economics from the Catholic University of Leuven, Belgium, in 2000. Over the years, his research covered topics of economic transition, productive efficiency, spatial econometrics and consumer choice theory. He has been working and teaching economics at Korean universities since 2001. He is currently an assistant professor with the department of Economics at Korea University.

Clarissa Sales was born in Malolos City, Bulacan, Philippines. For five years she worked as Project Manager for the Development Academy of the Philippines, an institution that is focused on approaches to national development. She was tasked to manage various productivity and quality improvement programs for small and medium sized exporting firms. In 2005 Ms. Sales was awarded full scholarship by the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD) to pursue post-graduate studies in Germany. She completed her MBA in Small and Medium-Sized Enterprise Development from the University of Leipzig in 2007. Currently she works as Project Manager for Cygnific B.V., the call centre of Air-France KLM for Northern and Western Europe. She is a certified Lean Belt and trained in Lean Six Sigma methodology.
About the Contributors

Lakhwinder Singh is presently serving as Professor of Economics at Punjabi University, Patiala, Punjab (INDIA). He has been Visiting Fellow at the School of Economics, Seoul National University, South Korea and Post-Doctoral Fellow at Yale University, USA. He has been awarded the Ford Foundation Fellowship in Economics and Asia Fellowship by the Institute of International Education. His teaching and research initiatives focus on the areas of industrial organisation, development economics, international technology transfer and knowledge spillovers, innovations and high-tech. trade, globalisation and comparative development experience of South and South East Asian Countries.

Rup Singh is a lecturer in Economics at the University of the South Pacific, Suva (Fiji). He teaches Macroeconomics and Applied Econometrics. His doctorate study (in progress) is on growth models and policy. He has jointly published on growth topics particularly with an emphasis on growth policy, see http://ideas.repec.org. Currently his research is focused on the extension and the use of the exogenous neo-classical model of Solow for policy in newly industrialized economies of East Asia.

Mehmet Zahid Sobaci is a research assistant in the Department of Public Administration at the University of Uludag in Turkey. His research interests are e-government, policy transfer, governance, independent regulatory agencies, new public management and administrative reforms. He is author of many articles.

Murad Tiryakioglu received his MA from Business Administration in Afyon Kocatepe University, the Institute of Social Sciences. He also has an MA in Economics from the same university. Currently he is doing his PhD in Economics and working at Afyon Kocatepe University as a lecturer. His research areas are industrial organization, economics of technology and micro-based economic growth.

Masatsugu Tsuji, Professor of Economics, Graduate School of Applied Informatics, University of Hyogo, and Professor Emeritus of Osaka University. Major areas of specialty include Economic Theory, Economics of Information and Telecommunications. Current research focuses on the transformation of the ICT industry. Publications include The Flowchart Approach to Industrial Cluster Policy (ed. with A. Kuchiki), Palgrave Macmillan 2008, Industrial Agglomeration and New Technology (ed. with E. Giovannietti and M. Kagami), Edward Elgar 2007, The Internet Revolution: A Global Perspective, (ed. with E. Giovannietti and M. Kagami), Cambridge University Press, 2003. He was honored by the Minister of Internal Affairs and Communications for his contributions to telecommunications policy. Received B.A. in Economics from Kyoto University; M.A. in Economics from Osaka University; and Ph.D. in Economics from Stanford University. He also served as visiting professor of Carnegie Mellon University, Board of Director, International Telecommunications Society (ITS) and Council of International Society for Telemedicine.

Burcu Turkcan, graduated from Ege University with Bachelor’s degree on Economics in 2005. In 2008, she completed her master’s degree in the same university. Her thesis was on the relationship between FDI and economic growth. Between 2007-08, she worked as a research assistant in Izmir University of Economics. She began her PhD. in Ege University in 2008 and became research assistant in the same university. She involved in several research projects in the last three years. Her interest areas are macroeconomics and econometrics.
George P. Tsetsekos holds the R. John Chapel, Jr., Dean’s Chair in Leadership Drexel University’s LeBow College of Business. He has served as Dean of the LeBow College of Business since August 2001. Prior to his appointment as Dean, he served as Drexel’s vice president for Academic Administration and served as a member of the team that achieved the merger between Drexel and MCP Hahnemann Universities. Dr. Tsetsekos joined LeBow College’s finance faculty in 1988 and directed its Risk Management Center. His research covers the areas of corporate finance, investments, banking and international finance. He serves on the boards of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia (Economic Advisory Board), The PENJERDEL Council, Pennsylvania Economic League, The Conference Board, World Trade Center of Greater Philadelphia, Global Interdependence Center, and the editorial boards of academic finance journals. He holds a Ph.D. in Finance from the University of Tennessee, an MBA in Finance and a B.S. in Electrical and Mechanical Engineering from the National Technical University of Athens, Greece.

Yasushi Ueki, Research Fellow, Bangkok Research Center, Institute of Developing Economies, Japan External Trade Organization, Thailand. His research interests include development economics, new technologies for development, and Asian and Latin American economies. Current researches focus on agglomeration, production and logistics networks, and industrial upgrading and innovation. Publications include Information Technology for Development of Small and Medium-sized Exporters in Latin America and East Asia (ed. with M. Kuwayama and M. Tsuji), United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC), 2005, and “Electronic Industry in Asia: Changing Supply Chain and the Effects,” in The Internet Revolution: A Global Perspective (ed. Giovannetti, E., M.Kagami and M. Tsuji), Cambridge University Press, 2003. Received B.A. in Economics from Waseda University, M.A. in Economics from Tokyo University, and Ph.D. from Graduate School of International Public Policy, Osaka University. He also served for U.N. ECLAC.

Sam Wong: Previously worked as a journalist in Hong Kong, Sam Wong is lecturer in the School of Earth and Environment at the University of Leeds, UK. His research interests lie in sustainable technology, climate change, sustainable livelihoods and gender. He is the author of the book Exploring Unseen Social Capital in Community Participation (Amsterdam University Press, 2007). He also has publications in Environmental Politics, Gender and Development, and Urban Studies. He has obtained grants from the EPSRC, British Academy, British Council and NESTA. His research areas include India, Bangladesh, Ghana, Burkina Faso, China, England and Wales. He is experienced in inter-disciplinary research. He was recently interviewed by the BBC about this research in sustainable development.

I. Hakan Yetkiner has received his B.Sc. in Management from Middle East Technical University (METU), Ankara, Turkey. He has two master’s degree. One is M.S. in Economics from METU, Ankara, Turkey and the second one is M.Sc. in Economics from London School of Economics, England. He holds two Ph.D.s: one from METU, Ankara, Turkey and another from the University of Groningen, the Netherlands. He is currently faculty member of Izmir University of Economics. He is also director of Vocational School in the same university. His publications appeared in Applied Economics, Resource and Energy Economics, Kyklos, and METU Studies in Development. His research interests are economic growth and scientific communication.