Latif Al-Hakim is a senior lecturer of supply chain management in the Department of Economics and Resources Management, Faculty of Business at the University of Southern Queensland. His experience spans 35 years in industry, research and development organisations and in universities. Al-Hakim received his first degree in mechanical engineering in 1968. His MSc (1977) in industrial engineering and PhD (1983) in management science were awarded from the University of Wales (UK). Al-Hakim has held various academic appointments and lectured on a wide variety of interdisciplinary management and industrial engineering topics. He has published extensively in facilities planning, information management, and systems modeling. Research papers have appeared in various international journals and have been cited in other research and postgraduate works. Al-Hakim is the editor of the International Journal of Information Quality and Associate Editor of the International Journal of Networking and Virtual Organisations. 