About the Contributors

Ioannis Iglezakis is an Assistant Professor of Computers & Law at the Faculty of Law in the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki (Greece) and attorney-at-law at the Thessaloniki Bar Association. He graduated from the Faculty of Law of Aristotle University (Thessaloniki). After completing master degrees in the Universities of Thessaloniki (1990) and the University of Hannover (1993), he received his Ph.D. from the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki in 2000. He was scientific collaborator in the postgraduate program “Single European Legal Area: Sector of New Technologies and Law” (2002-2003) and Visiting Lecturer in the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki (2003-2009). He is the author of seven books related to I.C.T. (in Greek) and has various publications in Greek, German and English legal reviews, on issues related to I.T. law, public, economic and EU law. He is also the co-author of Cyberlaw (Hellas), Kluwer Law Editions, and Legal and Socioeconomic Aspects of Intrusion, IGI editions.

Tatiana-Eleni Synodinou is an Assistant Professor of private law at the Department of Law at the University of Cyprus. She graduated from the Law Department of Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and earned a Master in Media Law from the University Aix-Marseille III in France. She earned a PhD in copyright law from Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and conducted postdoctoral studies in copyright law with a scholarship by the Greek Scholarship’s Foundation and the Research Committee of Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. She has been a collaborator of the Center of International European Economic Law and of the European Public Law Center and has participated in many intellectual property law projects. She has published three books and various articles, chapters in books and essays in the field of copyright law, computer law, media law and company law. She has presented various papers in national and international conferences and taught media law, media ethics, law of contracts, intellectual property law, computer law, real property law and pharmaceutical law.

Sarantos Kapidakis is a Professor at the Department of Archives and Library Sciences, at the Ionian University, Greece, and Director of the Laboratory on Digital Libraries and Electronic Publishing. He teaches the courses of Digital Libraries and Electronic Publishing, on the undergraduate and graduate level. In the past, he was employed by the National Documentation Centre - Greece, MIT - USA, and the University of Crete and at the Foundation for Research and Technology - Hellas. He received a Ph.D. degree in Computer Science from Princeton University in 1990. He also holds a MSc. from Princeton University and a Diploma in Electrical Engineering from National Technical University of Athens. His current research interests in digital libraries and electronic publishing include digital library architectures and interoperability, metadata, Dublin Core, e-learning, e-services and policies on digital content, evaluation and usability of digital libraries, and information retrieval on libraries. As part of his research on Digital Libraries, he participated in the DELOS Network of Excellence on Digital Libraries, he was a member of the Resource Discovery in a Globally-Distributed Digital Library Working Group, part of the Digital Library Research Collaboration, funded by the NSF and EU (1998), and has been a co-Chair of the 13th European Conference on Digital Libraries (ECDL2009).

* * *

Leonardo Candela is a Researcher at the Networked Multimedia Information Systems (NMIS) Laboratory of the Institute of Information Science and Technologies - Italian National Research Council (CNR-ISTI). He graduated with a degree in Computer Science in 2001 at University of Pisa and completed a Ph.D. in Information Engineering in 2006 at the University of Pisa. He joined the NMIS Laboratory in 2001. Since then he has been involved a series of Digital Library oriented projects including CYCLADES, Open Archives Forum, DELOS, DILIGENT, DRIVER and D4Science. He was a member of the DELOS Reference Model Technical Committee and of the OAI-ORE Liaison Group. He is currently involved in the D4Science-II and DL.org projects. As part of his research on Digital Libraries, he contributed to the definition of “The Digital Library Manifesto” (2006) and “The DELOS Digital Library Reference Model” (2008). His research interests include Digital Library [Management] Systems and Architectures, Digital Libraries Models, Interoperability, Distributed Information Retrieval, and Grid Computing.

Donatella Castelli is a Senior Researcher working at the “Information Science and Technologies of the Italian National Research Council” (CNR-ISTI). She has been the principal investigator of several European and National funded projects on digital libraries acquiring considerable experience in this domain. In particular, she has been the principal investigator of the DELOS Network of Excellence on Digital Libraries activity dedicated to the definition of a Reference Model for digital libraries. She is currently the principal investigator of the DL.org Coordination Action on Digital Library Interoperability and of the D4Science-II project dedicated to the development of a data e-Infrastructure ecosystem. Her current research interests include digital library architectures and infrastructures, information object modeling and interoperability.

Pasquale Pagano is a Senior Researcher at the Networked Multimedia Information Systems Laboratory of the “Istituto di Scienza e Tecnologie della Informazione A. Faedo” (ISTI) of the Italian National Research Council (CNR). He received the M.Sc. in Information Systems Technologies from the Department of Computer Science of the University of Pisa (1998), and the Ph.D. degree in Information Engineering from the Department of Information Engineering: Electronics, Information Theory, Telecommunications of the same university (2006). The aim of his research is the study and experimentation of models, methodologies and techniques for the design and development of distributed virtual research environments (VREs) which require the handling of heterogeneous resources. He has a strong background on digital library distributed architectures. He participated to the design of the most relevant DL systems developed by CNR-ISTI. He is currently the Technical Director of the D4Science-II project and he has been involved in the D4Science, DRIVER II and BELIEF II projects.

Hussein Suleman is an Associate Professor in Computer Science at the University of Cape Town, where he directs the research of the Digital Libraries Laboratory. He completed his undergraduate de-degrees and MSc at the then University of Durban-Westville and, with a Fulbright scholarship, finished a PhD at Virginia Tech in the USA in 2002, in the area of component-based digital libraries. He actively advocates for Open Access in South Africa, and is a current board member of the Networked Digital Library of Theses and Dissertations (NDLTD), which promotes/supports the adoption of electronic theses and dissertations and generally digital libraries worldwide. Hussein’s main research interests are in digital libraries, information retrieval, Internet technology and high performance computing.
About the Contributors

Nicola Ferro is an Assistant professor in Computer Science at the Department of Information Engineering and at the Faculty of Statistical Sciences of the University of Padua, Italy. He teaches the courses on Digital Libraries, Information Retrieval, and Databases, on the undergraduate and graduate level. He received a Ph.D. degree in Computer Science from University of Padua in 2005. He also holds a Laurea degree from University of Padua in Telecommunications Engineering. His main research interests are digital libraries and archives, their architectures, interoperability, and evaluation, as well as multilingual information access and its evaluation. He has participated and participates in several national and international projects among which SAPIR (search in audio visual content using peer-to-peer information retrieval), TrebleCLEF (best practices, collaboration, and evaluation for multilingual information access systems), TELplus (enhancement of The European Library portal towards Europeana), Europeana Connect (multilingual information access services for Europeana and their evaluation), Europeana v 1.0 (multilinguality and annotations in the Europeana Data Model), and DELOS (the European network of excellence on Digital Libraries). He has been involved in the overall coordination of the CLEF (Cross Language Evaluation Forum) evaluation campaigns since 2005. He is scientific leader of the DL.org working group on quality in digital libraries. He is programme co-chair of the CLEF 2010 Conference on Multilingual and Multimedol Information Access Evaluation. He has published more than 60 papers on digital library architectures, interoperability, and services; multilingual information access and its experimental evaluation; the management of the scientific data produced during evaluation campaigns. He is member of ACM and IEEE.

András Micsik is a Senior Researcher of the Department of Distributed Systems at the Computer and Automation Research Institute of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences (MTA SZTAKI) in Budapest, Hungary. He received Ph.D. degree in Informatics from ELTE University in Budapest in 2001. He also holds a M.Sc. from the same university in Computer Science. He was active in all DELOS European digital library projects starting from 1995, where he was involved in distributed digital library architectures, semantic interoperability, digital library testing and evaluation. His current research interests include interoperability and collaboration in digital libraries. He contributed to several international research projects in topics such as sharing metadata vocabularies, collaborative rating and filtering, peer-to-peer repository networks, etc. He is regular member of the program committee of the ECDL and ICADL conference series.

Laurent Romary is Directeur de Recherche INRIA, France and guest scientist at Humboldt University in Berlin, Germany. He carries out research on the modelling of semi-structured documents, with a specific emphasis on texts and linguistic resources. He received a PhD degree in computational linguistics in 1989 and his Habilitation in 1999. During several years he launched and directed the Langue et Dialogue team at Loria in Nancy, France and participated in several national and international projects related to the representation and dissemination of language resources and on man-machine interaction.
In particular coordinated the MLIS/DHYDRO, IST/MIAMM and eContent/Lirics projects. He has been the editor of ISO standard 16642 (TMF – Terminological Markup Framework) and is the chairman of ISO committee TC 37/SC 4 on Language Resource Management, as well as member (2001-2007) then chair (2008-) of the TEI (Text Encoding Initiative) council. In the recent years, he lead the Scientific Information directorate at CNRS (2005-2006) and established the Max-Planck Digital Library (sept. 2006-dec. 2008).

Martin Holmes earned a BA (Hons) in English and an MPhil for research in phonology at the University of Manchester, and the RSA Dip TEFLA. He taught English in the UK, Japan, Indonesia and Saudi Arabia before settling in Canada, where he now works as a Programmer/Consultant at the University of Victoria Humanities Computing and Media Centre. He is also a director and founder of Half-Baked Software, Inc., and the author of several commercial and open-source software packages, including Hot Potatoes, the Image Markup Tool, and Markin. His work at UVic originally focused on technology and software for second language learning, but in the past few years he has become involved primarily in Digital Humanities projects. He is currently a member of the TEI (Text Encoding Initiative) Council.

Dimitrios G. Margounakis is a computer tutor and a scientific researcher in the field of computer music. He concluded his basic studies in informatics at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece, in 2003. He holds a Master’s certificate in business informatics at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki (2005) and is also an owner of a music diploma in piano (2004). He is currently a PhD candidate at the Computer Science Department of the Aristotle University. He specializes in “Languages and Interfaces for Computer Music” and is also the editor of the column “Music & Technology” of the Greek magazine “Paradosi”. He owns and manages a school of computer studies and a foreign languages’ school. He is also the presenter of a weekly TV show about education at a local TV channel in Thessaloniki. He has published more than 25 articles in the field of Computer Music. His published research about music visualization, digital libraries, ancient Greek music and Internet business models in the music industry have been presented in several conferences worldwide.

Dionysios Politis is a Lecturer of the multimedia lab, in the department of Informatics, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. He has earned his BS in Physics (1987), MSc in radio engineering and electronics (1990), and PhD in computer science (1998) from the same university. He is a holder of a Graduate Diploma in Computer Studies (1991) from RMIT University as a scholar of the Australian government. He has served as coordinator of the EU funded multinational project “SEEArchWeb – South Eastern Europe Archaeology Web” (2004-2006). He has been a collaborator of the Centre of International and European Economic Law (1992-2002) and has participated in various computer law projects, mainly focusing on the preaccession route of southeastern Europe countries to EU integration. His research interests focus on multimedia reconstructions and visualizations, mainly with an e-learning orientation. He has edited, published or presented more than 50 books, chapters in books, journals, magazines, newspapers, radio-television emissions and international conferences.

Monica Landoni is a Senior Research fellow at the Faculty of Informatics since January 2007. Previously, she was a lecturer in the Department of Computer and Information Sciences of the University of Strathclyde since 1998 and spent 2005 on a sabbatical position at PARC (formerly Xerox Parc) in Palo Alto, USA. She holds a PhD in Information Science, Department of Information Science, University of Strathclyde and a Laurea in Scienze dell’Informazione from Università degli Studi of Milan. She has authored more than thirty papers in the area of Electronic Publishing and Hypermedia. In the past she has been involved in a number of projects, including the JISC Project “EBONI”, Electronic Books ON-screen Interface, the EU Projects STAMP, PENG, REVEAL-THIS and PuppyIR, and the SNSF DEDUCE. Her research interests lie mainly in the fields of Information Retrieval and Electronic Publishing, particularly in the area of design and evaluation of user interfaces for electronic books. Other interests include: Hypertext and Hypermedia, Human Computer Interaction, Affective Computing, Electronic Libraries, and Natural Language Processing.
About the Contributors

Agnès Lucas-Schloetter is a Lecturer in French law and a researcher in the Department of Civil and Media Law at the Ludwig-Maximilian University of Munich, Germany. Until 2004 she was a researcher at the Max-Planck Institute for Intellectual Property in Munich. She is a holder of a PhD in law (docteur en droit) from the University of Paris I, Panthéon-Sorbonne. Her research fields include intellectual property issues, especially copyright, protection of folklore, privacy and general civil law. She has published several books and numerous articles on respective issues.

Anthoula Papadopoulou is an Assistant Professor in Department of Commercial and Economic Law, School of Law, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. She has earned her Diploma in Legal Science (BS) in 1981, Master in Private Law (MSc) in 1983 and Doctorial Degree in Law (PhD) in 1996 from the same University. Her research interests focus on Intellectual Property Law. She is the author of books related to intellectual Property Law and has various publications (more than 15) in law journals and chapters in books mostly on issues related to copyright law.

Maria Daphne Papadopoulou is an IP attorney at law (since 1998) and a legal counsellor at the Hellenic Copyright Organization (since 2005). She holds her law degree (1996), her postgraduate degree in Commercial & Financial Law (1998) and her doctoral thesis (2005 - The exercise of Moral Right in Copyright Law) from the Aristotelian University of Thessaloniki. She has earned also a postgraduate Master in Laws (LL.M.) in International Intellectual Property Law from the University of Houston with a scholarship from Onassis Public Benefit Foundation (2000). At the same University she worked as a Fellow Researcher in European Intellectual Property Law (2001). Following that, she was employed by several international law firms (TaylorWessing, PricewaterhouseCoopersVeltins, Simmons&Simmons) in Germany (2002-2005) dealing with IP issues and new technologies. She has served as a member of several Committees, such as the Programme “Making IPR work for SMEs” (European Commission) and the last Amendment Committee of Greek Copyright Law. She is a member of the National Co-ordination Committee for Intellectual Property dealing with piracy matters, an educator of the National Centre for Public Administration and Local Government, an Expert LLP for Transfer of Innovation Projects (Leonardo Davinci – State Scholarships Foundation) and regularly she represents Greece to various copyright committees (Working Group on Copyright – European Council and SCCR - WIPO). She has published numerous chapters in books, articles in journals and presented many papers in national and international conferences (in Greek, English and German).

Christophe Geiger is Associate Professor, Director General and Director of the research department of the Centre for International Intellectual Property Studies (CEIPI) at the University of Strasbourg (France), where he teaches intellectual property and competition law. He studied both French and German law at the University of Paris I Panthéon-Sorbonne and the University of Saarbrücken and graduated from both universities. After completing a master degree in intellectual property at the University of Montpellier, he received his doctorate in December 2003 from this university with his thesis Copyright and the Public’s Right to Information. This work received a prize from the French Institut de recherche en propriété intellectuelle (best thesis of the year in IP-Law) and was published in September 2004 by Litec. He then joined the Max Planck Institute for Intellectual Property, Competition and Tax Law in Munich (Germany), where he was in charge of the Department “France and French-Speaking African countries” and in 2007 the University of Strasbourg. He has also taught at the University of Cambridge, Montpellier, Versailles St-Quentin, Copenhagen, Ludwig-Maximilian of Munich, Toledo (US), Louvain-la-Neuve (Belgium) and in the IP summer program of the Santa Clara University School of Law (US). He specializes in national, European, international and comparative copyright and intellectual property law and takes part in national and international conferences. He has published numerous articles on copyright and intellectual property law.

Maria G. Sinanidou holds a Law Degree from the Law School of University of Bielefeld (Germany). In 2004 she received from the University of Exeter (UK) and the Technische Universität Dresden (Germany) her Master’s Degree (LL.M.) in International Intellectual Property Law. Since 2005 she is a Legal Counselor at the Hellenic Copyright Organization and a Member of the Hellenic group of ALAI (Association Littéraire et Artistique Internationale). She is also a Member of the National Centre for Public Administration and Local Government (E.K.D.D.A.). 2007-2008 she was a Member of the Committee for the Amendment of the Greek Copyright Law 2121/1993. She gives speeches about various copyright issues at seminars and conferences and writes articles, commentaries on court decisions and contributions in journals and collective works regarding several copyright matters in Greek, English and German. She has also contributed to the Analysis of the Greek Copyright Law 2121/1993 (eds. Kotsiris L., Stamatoudi I.).

Dionysia Kallinikou is Professor and Vice-President at the Law Faculty of the University of Athens, Attorney at law, Legal Expert on copyright, former Director of the Hellenic Copyright Organization-Ministry of Culture (1995-2004). Member of National Legislative Committees. President of national group of ALAI, Scientific collaborator of European Public Law Organization (EPLO). She studied at the Universities of Athens and Paris (Doctorat d’ Etat en Droit). She is the author of many publications on copyright (Copyright and Internet, Athens 2001; Copyright and Related Rights, Athens 2008 ; Codification of legislation on copyright, Athens 2007; Copyright and libraries, 2007). Project Leader of Twinning Projects on Intellectual Property 2004-2007 (Estonia, Turkey, Lithuania).

Marinos Papadopoulos is an Attorney-at-Law registered in Athens, Greece, and managing partner of Patsis, Papadopoulos, Kaponi and Associates law firm. He holds a law degree from Athens Law School and a graduate degree Master of Science from Boston and Harvard Universities. He has, also, graduate studies at Stanford University upon Information Technology and Law as well as The George Washington University upon Management. He’s candidate for PhD in Law at Athens Law School. He has an extensive experience gained through innovative projects on Law and Technology in the public sector such as in the Office of the Prime Minister of Greece, the 2003 Hellenic Presidency of the European Union, the European Public Law Centre, the Greek Research and Technology Network, the National Hellenic Research Foundation, the National Documentation Centre, the Panhellenic Socialist Movement to name a few, as well as through many private sector projects. He is an active participant in international and national fora upon issues of Information Technology & Law as well as Information Society. He is Legal Lead for Creative Commons in Greece. (Further info at URL: http://www.marinos.com.gr)

Vassiliki Strakantouna is a Librarian at the Civil Law library of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. She holds a degree on Psychology from the Department of Psychology, Pedagogy & Psychology of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, and a degree on Librarianship from the Department of Librarianship of the Technological Education Institute of Athens, where now she is a lecturer. She also has a graduate degree Master of Information Science from the Ionian University, Department of Archives & Library Science and a degree on drama of the School of Drama ‘Eugene Hatzikou’. She is an active participant in Pan-Hellenic fora upon issues of Libraries & Information Society.

Alexandra Kaponi is an Attorney-at-Law registered in Athens, Greece. She holds a law degree from Athens Law School and a graduate degree Legum Magister from Heidelberg University. She is a Judge-Arbitrator of the European Arbitration Court on .eu domain names, and an Attorney-at-Law working for the National Telecommunications & Post Commission in Greece on .gr domain names. She has been the conductor and main contributor for the composition of Greek Regulations regarding the management and assignment of .gr domain names (registrations procedures, domain names with Greek characters operation of registrars, etc), and presented to all Registrars in Greece the Greek Regulations in .gr domain names on behalf of Greece’s National Telecommunications and Post Commission. She collaborated with the Institute for Research and Technology based in the University of Crete regarding to information provided to Registrars in Greece on regulatory matters upon .gr domain names. She’s worked together with the Hellenic Ministry of Transport and Communications regarding the representation of Greece before international organisations such as ICANN regarding registration issues for several domain names. She is an active participant in international and national fora upon issues of Information Technology & Law as well as Information Society. (Further info at URL: http://www.marinos.com.gr).

Galateia G. Kapellakou is an attorney at Law specialized in Intellectual Property. She has a Master Degree in Intellectual Property (Université de Nantes, Faculté de Droit, 2003) and in International Sciences (University of Athens, Faculty of Law, 2005). At the moment she is preparing her PhD in Copyright entitled “The economic rights of the author in the digital environment” (University of Athens & Nantes). Galatea is a member of the ALAI Hellenic group (Association Littéraire et Artistique Internationale) and is collaborating with the European Public Law Center. She has worked as a consultant for UNESCO in the section of Culture (Cultural Diversity Division, 2007-2008) and has participated as a legal expert in various EU funded technical assistance projects in the field of Intellectual Property. She has also attended several international and national conferences.

Marina Markellou is an Attorney-at-Law, specialize in Intellectual Property Law. After accomplishing a Master of Laws in Intellectual Property (LLM) on September 2005 in Montpellier of France, she defended her PhD thesis on copyright contracts in France, Greece and Germany on September 2009 in Montpellier of France (grade: excellent with authorization of publication). Her primary research interests concern intellectual property in the digital age as well as telecoms law, data protection law and antitrust law. Member of the Greek group of the International Literal and Artistic Association (ALAI), she often participates as a legal expert in many European programs such as the IDABC project on December 2008.
(creation by the European Commission of the first European Public Open Source License) or the Twinning Project on December 2007 (enforcement of Turkish IP law). Since 2006, Mrs Markellou regularly publishes articles and comments on internet related cases in Greek and foreign law reviews. She also participates in many international conferences such as the third international congress for Free/Open Source Software on May 2008 in Athens. She is actually working as an intern lawyer at DIGEA, a Greek provider of Digital Terrestrial Television services.

Evangelia Vagena is an Attorney at Law with an academic background and professional experience in information technology and copyright law. She holds a Master’s degree in Law and Information Technology from the University of Montpellier I and she received a PhD from University of Athens on Digital rights management and copyright. As a legal counsellor for the Hellenic Copyright Organization of the Greek Ministry of Culture she represents Greece at the international organizations and European Union institutions dealing with copyright policy issues. She is also member of the the National Council for e-commerce at the Ministry of Development and member of the educational staff at the National Centre for Public Administration and Local Government (E.K.D.D.A.), as well as an expert of the State Scholarships Foundation (IKY) for the European Commission’s Lifelong Learning Programme Leonardo Da Vinci for the Transfer of Innovation multilateral Projects. She has been the coordinator of legal affairs for Business Software Alliance (BSA) in Greece and a scientific collaborator of the online legal database of the Athens Bar Association. She was the project manager of the “Development of an Integrated Information System on Copyright” part of the special Operational Program (OPIS) within the scope of the 3rd CSF undertaken by the Hellenic Copyright Organization and she is in charge of the Unit for the Management of the EU funded and National projects of the same organization. She has published papers in many legal journals and collective works.

Nadia Kyprouli is an Attorney at Law, registered in Athens, Greece, ep. She holds a law degree from Athens Law School and a PhD from the same University. She is a Legal Advisor of DIONYSOS Greek Actors’ Collecting Society and, Member of the Legal Committee of AEPO-ARTIS.

Charis Tsigou is an Attorney-at-Law, member of Athens Bar Association and a Legal Expert of the Greek Audiovisual Council. She holds two Master’s degrees (DEA) from Paris University II (Panthéon-Assas) in Philosophy of Law and in Intellectual Property Law and is currently preparing her Doctorat thesis in Intellectual Property Law at Paris University I (Sorbonne) under a scholarship from the Greek State Scholarship Foundation. For over a decade she is in-house legal advisor for the Greek National Council for Radio and Television with key involvement in the development of related institutional issues (drafting of legal instruments, drafting of codes of ethics, major directives etc.). She is also legal advisor to the Hellenic Open University on intellectual property issues. Her research interests focus on intellectual property and broadcasting law and she is a regular contributor in legal journals and speaker in conferences and workshops related to these issues. She is also the co-author of a successful reference book on intellectual property under Greek law.

Thanos K. Tsingos is an attorney at law and a member of the Athens Bar Association since 2005. He holds a Bachelor degree in Law from the Faculty of Law, University of Thrace (Greece) and a Master of Laws (LLM) in Information Technology, Media and E – Commerce from the Faculty of Law, University of Essex (UK). He is a collaborator of the Centre of International and European Economic Law and a member of the relevant E-Business Forum Group dedicated to study the application of the Creative Commons and GPL&LGPL Licenses comparatively across the EU member States. Since 2007 he has been participating in many international and European conferences and workshops and has published several journal articles. He currently works in Greece as a legal adviser at four software development companies.

Nikitas E. Hatzimihail is an Assistant Professor of Private Law, Comparative Law and Private International Law at the University of Cyprus. He is also an Affiliated Senior Researcher at the Universite Libre de Bruxelles, a member of the Athens Bar and the editor-in-chief of the Nicosia Bar Law Journal. Prof. Hatzimihail obtained his law degree from the University of Athens, and his doctorate from Harvard Law School, and has held visiting positions in U.S. and East Asian universities. His publications include: Pre-Classical Conflict of Laws (forthcoming by Cambridge Univ. Press); International Litigation in Intellectual Property and Information Technology (co-editor with A. Nuyts, K. Szychowska: Kluwer, 2008); “The Many Lives - and Faces - of Lex Mercatoria: History as Genealogy in International Business Law,” Law & Contemporary Problems 71 (2008): 169-190; “General Report: Transnational Civil Litigation Between European Integration and Global Aspirations,” in International Civil Litigation in the European Judicial Area and in Relations with Third States, 597-675 (A. Nuyts & N. Watté, eds.: Bruylant, 2005).

Stylianos Korres is an Attorney-at-Law, member of the Athens Bar Association. He has earned his BS in Law at the University of Athens, Greece (2003), MSc in Intellectual Property Law at the University of Nantes, France (2005) and is currently undertaking PhD studies at the Universities of Nantes and Athens in the fields of Intellectual Property & Human Rights Law. He has participated as an expert in European Union tuning projects in Turkey. His research interests focus on the interaction of Copyright Law and in general Intellectual Property Law with Human Rights and other fields of Law, like Cultural Law. He has received a scholarship from the University of Athens during his PhD studies. He has participated in various national and international conferences.

Evangelia (Eva) Kokotsaki is an Attorney-at-Law, member of Athens Bar Association and PhD student at the University of Athens, in Private Law (specialization: Copyright Law). She has earned her Law Degree at the University of Athens Law School (2001) and her Master Degree in Private Law (2005) from the same University. She has been a scholar of State Scholarships Foundation during her Postgraduate Degree Programme (2003) and scholar and researcher of Max Planck Institute for Intellectual Property, Competition and Tax Law, in Munich (2007). She has been an external associate lawyer of banks in Greece. Currently she works as a lawyer for Greek Collecting Society “Television Rights”. She has participated in many international conferences and is a member of Association Littéraire et Artistique Internationale (ALAI).