Dr. Felix B. Tan is a Senior Lecturer (Associate Professor equivalent in North America) in Information Systems at the University of Auckland, New Zealand. He serves as the Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of Global Information Management. He is also the Vice President of Research for the Information Resources Management Association, the Editor of the ISWorld Net’s EndNote Resources page, and Editor of the book series Advanced Topics in Global Information Management. He had held visiting positions with the Department of Information Systems, National University of Singapore and Richard Ivey School of Business, the University of Western Ontario.

Dr. Tan’s current research interests are in business-IT alignment, global information management, management of IT, national information policy issues and cognitive mapping methods. His research has been published in MIS Quarterly, Journal of Global Information Management, and Journal of Information Technology, as well as other journals and refereed conference proceedings. He has published two other books - one on IT Diffusion in the Asia Pacific region and another presenting Global IT Cases. Dr. Tan has over 20 years experience in information systems management and consulting with large multinationals, as well as university teaching and research in Singapore, Canada and New Zealand.