About the Contributors

N. Delener is the Founding Dean of the School of Business at Arcadia University, Glenside-Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, U.S.A. Dr. Delener is also founder and elected President of The Global Business and Technology Association consisting of over two-thousand members worldwide. He is currently the Editor-in-Chief for the Journal of Global Business and Technology and is a member of such organizations as the American Marketing Association, the Academy of Marketing Science, and the Northeast Business and Economics Association. Dean Delener has conducted numerous executive seminars in many countries, including Brazil, Czech Republic, England, Hungary, Italy, The Netherlands, Portugal, Russia, South Africa, Spain, Switzerland, Taiwan, and Turkey. He has also been a consultant to several companies, including Marriott Corporation, the Beaumont Organization, Ltd., and Ellington Duval Inc: Worldwide Marketing Group. In addition, Dr. Delener worked as a policy studies project participant through the Stern School of Business at New York University and as a marketing executive for the textile corporation. Dr. Delener has published 18 books and more than 100 articles in prestigious, refereed journals, including the Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of Academy of Marketing Science, Journal of Advertising Research, Journal of Business Research, Journal of Marketing Management, Journal of International Consumer Marketing, Journal of Marketing and Theory, Journal of Public Administration, Journal of Euromarketing, among others. An honorary inductee of Iota Chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma, Dr. Delener has been selected for Who’s Who Among America’s Teachers, Who’s Who in America, and Who’s Who in the World. Dr. Delener is the recipient of several awards and grants – including Excellence in Graduate Teaching and Scholarship Award, Administrative Outstanding Achievement Award, and Research Grant from the U.S. Department of Education. He received his doctorate degree from The Graduate School at the City University of New York, his MBA degree and an Advanced Professional Certificate from the Stern School of Business, New York University. Prior to joining Arcadia University, Dr. Delener served as Dean of the School of Business at SUNY Old Westbury from August 2006 to December 2011. Dr. Delener had also served as the Director of International Business Studies at St. John’s University starting in 1996 and from 1997 to 2005 as Associate Dean for Academic Affairs at the Tobin College of Business at the University. He served as a visiting lecturer at Erasmus University in Rotterdam, the Netherlands as well.

***

Albena Antonova is a lecturer at Sofia University, Faculty of Economics and Business Administration. She works on number of projects in the field of knowledge management, serious games, business and management education, e-learning and TEL models and methods, e-Business, technology entrepreneurship, innovation management and living labs. Her research interests include knowledge management, service science, serious games, knowledge management systems, innovation processes, technology entrepreneurship, knowledge sharing, knowledge transfer and others.

Maria da Graca Batista is Assistant Professor at the Economics and Management Department, Azores University (Azores Islands, Portugal). She received her PhD in Management from the School of Economics and Management (ISEG) of the Technical University of Lisbon (Lisbon, Portugal) in May 2008 and finished a MBA - Master in Management from the New University of Lisbon (Lisbon, Portugal) in 2001. She has been working on several research studies on service quality and tourism quality perceptions, service structures, leadership and job satisfaction. Her research interests cover the areas of organizational behavior, positive organizations and organizational improvisation with an emphasis of its application to healthcare.

Olga Balaeva is an Associate Professor at National Research University Higher School of Economics, Moscow, Russia. She graduated from the Faculty of Economics, Gubkin Russian State University of Oil and Gas (1989), received a PhD degree in Economics (1996), and subsequently a MSc degree in Economics at Higher School of Economics (1998). She published papers in Russian, English and Vietnamese, and is the co-author of a book on Service Management in Russian. In her research she currently focuses on Service Management, especially Hospitality and Tourism Management. She is the Vice-Dean of the Faculty of Management, National Research University Higher School of Economics.

Ella Burnatseva is a Marketing Director of EGGER Russia. She graduated from the Faculty of International Business and Administration, Moscow State University of International Relations (MGIMO) Ministry of Foreign Affairs Russia, and has a Bachelor’s (2002) and Master’s (2004) Degree in International Management and a PhD (2010) in International Economy with specialization in International Marketing. She is an author of the book, Contemporary Marketing Strategies of the International Hotel Companies, and a number of publications on Hotel Business and Hotel Marketing and has a practical experience in managing a hotel as a Marketing Manager.

Fabio Cassia, Ph.D. in Marketing, is a research associate and lecturer at the University of Verano (Italy). His research interests are related to public services management and marketing, branding issues and emerging markets. He has published work in several international journals such as The TQM Journal, The International Journal of Quality and Service Sciences, The International Journal of Technology Marketing, and The Journal of Services Research. He has presented research papers at several international conferences, and received (with Francesca Magno) a best paper award of the 13th Toulon-Verona Conference on Quality in Services (2010, Coimbra, Portugal) with a study about the role of citizen in service quality improvement processes.

Guy Callender is the Foundation Professor and Chair of Strategic Procurement at Curtin University and head of the Asia-Pacific Procurement Research Group and an IPSERA Academic Centre of Excellence. He works in close association with key international procurement and business research and practitioner groups in Asia, North America, Europe, and Africa. Guy had careers in accounting and finance, organization change, agriculture, building and construction before becoming an academic. His broad research interests include strategic procurement, public policy and organizational behaviour, with specialist interests in supply risk, supply market intelligence, and efficiency. Guy has published widely in academic and professional circles and is committed to developing procurement as a private, public and not-for-profit sector business discipline. He recently published the scholarly volume Efficiency and Management.

Max Coulthard is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Management at Monash University in Australia. He has an MBA from Monash and B.Bus (Banking & Finance) from Chisholm Institute of Technology. Max has held many positions within the University including: Academic Program Director in the Graduate School of Business, Course Director of the Bachelor of Business Degree, Course Director Master of International Business and Member of the Academic Board. He has over 30 publications and has won several best paper awards at international conferences. Max has also co-authored four books in the areas of business planning and international business. He is a regular speaker and writer on business innovation, strategy and international business. Max has consulted widely to industry for over 20 years in the area of strategy and held Board positions in companies in manufacturing, IT and the service sector.

Miguel Pina e Cunha is professor of organizational theory and behavior at NOVA – School of Business and Economics, Lisbon. He has a PhD from Tilburg University and is mainly conducting research in the area of emergent change, namely on how processes such as improvisation, serendipity and bricolage influence the way organizations function. He has also an interest for positive and toxic organizing: how do we create organizations that are sometimes virtuous, other times intoxicating? He just completed a series of papers on the emergence to power of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia in the 1970s. You may find the initial publications in the 2010 volumes of the Journal of Business Ethics and Management & Organizational History.

Christine (CF) De Meyer is a senior lecturer in the Department of Marketing Management at the University of Johannesburg, South Africa. She is based at the Kingsway Campus in Aucklandpark, Johannesburg. She obtained her PhD in Marketing Management from the North-West University in 2008 with the focus on customer retention in the passenger airline industry of South Africa. Her main areas of interest include Relationship Marketing and Services Marketing focusing on service failures and complaint behavior. Dr. De Meyer is the program coordinator for the BCom Marketing Management undergraduate degree. She is also involved in international research projects and post-graduate supervision and lectures on the undergraduate, honors and modular masters programs.

Shepherd Dhliwayo is currently a senior lecturer at the University of Johannesburg, South Africa. He teaches a number of business courses which include Entrepreneurship, Marketing, and Strategic Management. He holds a Masters in Business Leadership and a PhD in Entrepreneurship. He is a business strategy consultant and has been involved with entrepreneurship development in various capacities for many years. His research interests are in the field of entrepreneurship and strategy. He has co-authored several books and has published in a number of internationally accredited academic journals.
About the Contributors

Noel Doherty has extensive experience as an academician, corporate executive and private consultant. He received a B.S. degree from Fordham University and a Ph.D. in economics from Tulane University. His post doctorate work was done at Brookings Institute, Duke University and Carnegie Mellon University. Dr. Doherty has written a large number of publications and has made innumerable presentations at national symposia, professional meetings, special federal and state hearings and executive corporate conferences. He is currently the chair of Marketing department, Tobin College of Business at St. John’s University, New York. Dr. Doherty has appeared as an expert witness in dozens of federal and state regulatory proceedings on issues such as pricing, revenue and cost forecasting, depreciation rules and regulatory economic policy. He received a presidential appointment to serve as a special economic consultant to the administrator of NASA.

Emanuel Gomes is a Lecturer at the University of Sheffield, UK. His specialist teaching is in Strategic Management and International Business. His research interest is in the areas of mergers, acquisitions, strategic alliances, internationalisation of the firm and pedagogical software. He is the author of three books on M&A and strategic alliances and of several international refereed articles. He is also the leading author of the Strategic Planning Software (www.planning-strategy.com). He serves as a reviewer to various international refereed journals. He is a member of the Board of Directors of GBATA and is also a member of the Mergers and Acquisitions Research Interest Committee of the EuroMed Research Business Institute. He has participated in projects and presented papers at several international conferences around the world. He has provided consultancy to companies operating in various industries including the automotive, construction, international trade, energy, music, and sports industries.

Călin Gurău is Associate Professor of Marketing at GSCM - Montpellier Business School, France, since September 2004. He worked as Marketing Manager in two Romanian companies and he has received degrees and distinctions for studies and research from University of Triest, Italy; University of Vienna, Austria; Duke University, USA; University of Angers, France; Oxford University and Southampton Business School and Heriot-Watt University, United Kingdom. His present research interests are focused on Marketing Strategies for High-Technology Firms, Internet Marketing and Sustainable Development. He has published more than 50 papers in internationally refereed journals, such as International Marketing Review, Journal of Consumer Marketing, Journal of Marketing Communications, etc.

Leonora Fuxman holds a Ph.D. in Operations Management from the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Fuxman also holds an MA degree in Decision Sciences from the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania and a bachelor degree in Mathematics from Kiev State University, Ukraine. For the past 17 years, Dr. Fuxman had been a faculty member in Management department, Tobin School of Business at St. John’s University in New York. Dr. Fuxman’s research interests span areas of production and operations management, service management, international business and entrepreneurship. She has published in such peer-reviewed journals as Production and Operations Management Journal, Journal of Applied Business Research, International Journal of Commerce and Management, Journal of Business Ethics, and Journal of RIMS. She has published two book chapters. Dr. Fuxman had presented numerous research papers at National and International conferences. Dr. Fuxman serves as an Editor of the Global Business and Technology Association Reading Book, published yearly.
Balázs Heidrich is an Associate Professor and Head of Institute of Management and Human Resources at Budapest Business School. He is also the acting dean of Budapest Business School, Faculty of Finance and Accounting. Balázs Heidrich received his Ph.D. from the University of Miskolc in Business Economics. He is a visiting professor of Finnish, Romanian, French, and Indian business schools and universities. He is the member of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences and Committee of Management & Organization. His research interests include cross-cultural management, organizational culture, service management, and leadership. He is also working as an OD consultant and trainer for fifteen years for multinationals in Hungary and in the Eastern-European region.

Carina Human is an information specialist at a life-insurance company in South Africa and is responsible for the competitive intelligence function and the interpretation and dissemination of client information. She completed a Postgraduate Diploma in Information Management and an MA degree in Information Management at the University of Johannesburg and is also involved in the development of the Centre for Information and Knowledge Management at the University of Johannesburg.

Aleksandar Ivanović graduated economics as the best student of the generation in 1987 and completed postgraduate studies at Belgrade University; obtained MBA degree from Lincoln University, California, and M.S. degree from Singidunum University, Belgrade; conducted PhD research both in business planning and in finance and accounting; has enormous practical experience as CEO in several companies within different branches for more than two decades; have been teaching, researching, and published a great number of scientific papers, manuals, and monographs in the areas of: Business, International, and Monetary Economics; General, Services, and Operations Management; Marketing and Design, Tourism and Transportation; Banking and Finance, Accounting and Auditing; at present founder, general manager, and professor at Alexander College of Arts, Business & Management, Belgrade, Serbia.

Paul Jackson is a Principle Lecturer, Head of Department of Strategy and Applied Management at Coventry University, Great Britain. His academic interests include Strategy, Retail and International Distribution. His publications have been mainly concerned with Strategic Failure of organisations as well as retail and distribution. He was included in the RAE of 2008. The author of one book, he has also contributed to many more, and together with the authorship of several learned journals, he co-authored the successful strategy software www.planning-strategy.com. For many years he was a senior manager in Marks and Spencer plc so brings the practical side of management into his writings. A board member of EuroChrie, he is also the Chair of several charities in the UK and has consulted with many companies both in the UK and overseas.

Frédéric Jallat is currently Professor, Academic co-director of the graduate program in Pharmaceutical & Bio-Techs Management and a KPMG Chair research associate at ESCP Europe in Paris, France. He received his Master degree from the University Panthéon-Sorbonne and a PhD. degree from University Aix-Marseille III and ESSEC, France. He has been a visiting faculty at over twenty universities and research institutions including New York University, Stanford University, The University of Texas at Austin, Bocconi University, Thammasat University and the Foreign Trade Academy of Russia. Dr. Jallat is an author of fifteen books and book chapters and over thirty academic articles in a variety of journals including Journal of Services Marketing, Advances in Consumer Research, European Journal of Mar-
About the Contributors

Stephanie Jones is an Associate Professor of Organizational Behavior at Maastricht School of Management (MSM). Dr Jones graduated with a PhD from University College London, and a Bachelor’s degree from the London School of Economics. Dr Jones has authored over 25 full-length internationally-published books on business and management. Her most recent books include Nelson’s Way: Leadership Lessons from the Great Commander (Nicholas Brealey, 2005), textbooks for MSM on thesis writing, leadership and culture (Meyer & Meyer, 2007-9), Psychological Testing (Harriman House, 2010) and Leadership: Key Concepts (Sage, 2011). She has lived and worked in Hong Kong, China, India, Australia, Dubai and Kuwait. She teaches MBA students in Asia, Africa, the Middle East, Eastern Europe and South America, especially courses on leadership, culture and change management. She has recently published articles on entrepreneurship and innovation in business, business in emerging markets, business ethics and CSR, leadership, knowledge management, human resources, business culture and project management.

Fahri Karakaya is a professor of marketing at University of Massachusetts Dartmouth. He has a Ph.D. degree from Clemson University, and MBA from University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He has published over 100 papers. Some of his publications appeared in Journal of Marketing, Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, and Journal of Marketing Education, Journal of Strategic Marketing, European Journal of Marketing, Psychology & Marketing, and others. He is the co-author of three books titled Barriers to Entry and Market Entry Decisions, How to Utilize New Information Technology in International Business, Utilizing New Information Technology in Teaching of International Business. He currently serves on the editorial review boards of 12 journals and has been a guest editor for several journals. He has done extensive consulting in various areas of marketing for Massachusetts Governor’s Council in Economic Development, Massachusetts Department of Transportation, Small Business Development Center, and for many area private businesses. He is the founder and director of Southeastern Massachusetts E-commerce Network, an economic outreach program at UMass Dartmouth.

Helmut Kasper is full professor and Chair of the Department of Management, Head of the Institute for Change Management and Management Development, Program Director of Master of Science (MSc) Management, Managing Director of the Postgraduate Management Master of Business Administration MBA for Executives, Vienna University of Economics and Business (WU). Professor Kasper’s research interests are based on social systems theory, and focus on Leadership and social competency, teamwork management, organizational culture, change management, executive education, international and cross cultural management, knowledge and competence management, strategy development and strategy realization and change management. Professor Kasper is also Academic Advisor of WU for the University of Michigan, Ross School of Business in Ann Arbor, USA, Recanati School of Business Administration Tel Aviv University, Israel, Tsinghua University, School of Economics and Management, Bejing Daxue (Beida), GuangHua School of Management both Beijing and Fudan University, Shanghai, VR.

Yamen Koubaa is an Assistant Professor of Marketing, International Business, and Multivariate Data Analysis at the Brittany School of Management in France. He earned a PhD degree in marketing sciences from the University of Marketing and Distribution Sciences in Kobe, Japan. Dr Koubaa has been involved in business research since 2007. He has publications about country image and brand image effects, brand image multidimensionality, and non-linear quantification of human cognition. Recently, being a business educator of non-native students, Dr Koubaa is investigating the efficiency of and the ways to improve business education across cultures and languages.
About the Contributors

Tatiana Leonova is an Associate Professor of the State University of Management, Russia, author more than 50 publications in the leading Russian and foreign journals and also author of several textbooks and tutorials as: Economic Basics of the State and Municipal Governance, Theoretical Basics of the National Economy, Economics, etc. T. Leonova worked out a study and methodical complexes on the following disciplines: Economics, development economy, theory and practice of the economic transformation, and others. Leonova took part at a number of scientific researches in the field of modern trends of economic development, innovative economy and public administration. She is a research director of the scientific project “Institutional features of BRICS-Countries Development.” Doctor Leonova regularly take part at national and international conferences, organized by GBATA, NISPAcee, EFMD, CEEMAN, ABBS, and other Russian and international organisations.

F. Victor Lu received his Ph.D. degree in Operations Research and Information Systems from Syracuse University, a M. S. in Operations Research and a M. S. in Engineering Mechanics, both from Georgia Institute of Technology. He currently serves as the chair of Computer Information Systems and Decision Sciences department, Tobin College of Business at St. John’s University, New York. Dr. Lu’s research interests are in the fields of business analytics (and decision sciences) and information technology, and the integration of them. He published a number of peer-reviewed articles in journals and has made numerous presentations at international and national conferences and symposia. In addition, Dr. Lu has authored two academic books and several book chapters, edited several conference proceedings, and actively served in various international and national academic organizations by holding the roles of conference chair, program chair, track chair, editor, associate editor, and reviewer.

Francesca Magno, Ph.D. in Marketing, is a research associate at the University of Bergamo (Italy). She is interested in service marketing, product crises and recalls, marketing in emerging markets. She has published work in several international journals such as The TQM Journal, The International Journal of Quality and Service Sciences. She has presented research papers at several international conferences (such as at the 14th Biennial World Marketing Congress of the Academy of Marketing Science in 2009) and received (with Fabio Cassia) a best paper award of the 13th Toulon-Verona Conference on Quality in Services (2010, Coimbra, Portugal) with a study about the role of citizen in service quality improvement processes.

Jürgen Mühlbacher is Associate Professor, Deputy of the Institute for Change Management and Management Development and Deputy of the Postgraduate Management Master of Business Administration MBA, Vienna University of Economics and Business (WU). His research interests are focusing on strategic competence and knowledge management and emerging markets (especially CEE and SEE). He is the academic advisor of WU for Grenoble Ecole de Management, France and regular visiting professor at the University of Maribor in Kranj, Slovenia. Results of his work have appeared in various Barbara Müller is Assistant Professor at the Institute for Human Resource and Change Management at the Johannes Kepler-University Linz (Austria). She received her master and doctoral degree of Business Administration from the WU Vienna (Austria) where she was on faculty at the Institute of Change Management and Management Development from 2004 - 2010. Her research focuses on analyzing the interplay of organizational processes from the perspective of social systems theory. She mainly works with qualitative research methods and is especially interested in understanding new phenomena in the field of organizational and strategic learning, HR and change management. Her work has appeared in journals such as the Journal of Knowledge Globalization, Strategic Change, The Journal of Leadership & Organizational Studies, and The Journal of Management Inquiry.

Rania Mohy El Din Nafie has obtained her Bachelor of Business Administration in Finance and MBA in Marketing and International Business from the American University in Cairo – Egypt. She has worked in several multinational organizations including HSBC Bank Egypt and British American Tobacco (BAT). Given her passion for teaching, she has decided to pursue her Doctorate of Business Administration (DBA) with Maastricht School of Management (MsM) – Netherlands for a future full-time career in academia. Her Mphil thesis was titled ‘The impact of national and corporate culture on knowledge transfer within multinational firms in Egypt’. In addition to this chapter, she has published two papers titled “Cultural barriers to knowledge transfer in Egypt” and “An exploratory study of information and knowledge” in the 18th International Management Development Association Conference Her teaching career includes posts held in the American University in Cairo, Emirates College of Technology and currently Prince Mohammad University in Al-Khobar, Saudi Arabia.

Wilson Ozuem teaches and researches communications issues in computer-mediated marketing environments (CMMEs). His research interests include the implications of information technology for decision making by marketers and consumers. The results of his research have been published in scholarly journals and conference papers, including European Journal of Marketing, World Business Congress, GBATA. Dr Ozuem is a Senior Lecturer at London School of Business and Finance, and a Visiting Senior Lecturer at the University of Gloucestershire. Dr Ozuem is an Adjunct Professor in Marketing at American InterContinental University (UK). He currently teaches MSc and MBA courses in marketing communications, digital marketing, research methodology, and marketing management. He is a Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Marketing (FCIM) and has worked as a marketing consultant for several companies and organizations. He received his BA in Business from the University of Portsmouth, MA Marketing from University of West London, MBA from London Metropolitan University, Doctorate in e-Marketing from Anglia Ruskin University and Postgraduate Diploma in Educational Research from University of Cambridge.

Kathleen Marshall Park is Postdoctoral Research Fellow in Organization Studies and International Management at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Sloan School of Management. She received her MBA and PhD in Management from the MIT Sloan School of Management. Her research interests include mergers and acquisitions, international strategic alliances, leadership, corporate governance, and executive careers. In addition to her appointment at MIT, she is a Fellow of the Corporate Law and Governance Group of the Faculty of Business and Economics at Monash University, Australia, and a Scholar of the Copenhagen Business School International Summer University Program. She is also a forthcoming participant in the MIT-Italy exchange at the Politecnico di Milano and an advisory board member of the Global Business and Technology Association. Her work has been honored with multiple best paper and best reviewer awards from the flagship Academy of Management. She has presented or published over 30 refereed research papers at international conferences in North America, Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia and in journals most recently including The International Business and Economics Research Journal and Competition and Change. She is the author of the forthcoming Wheel of Fortune: Leadership Triumphs and Tribulations in the Acquisitions Game (LAP Lambert Academic Press, 2011).

Pierre (PG) Mostert is a Professor of Marketing in the School of Business Management at the North-West University, Potchefstroom Campus, South Africa. He joined the North-West University during 2004 after working in the telecommunications industry for 12 years. He specializes in Consumer Behavior, Relationship Marketing, Relationship Intention and Marketing Research. He holds a Doctor Commercii degree in Marketing Management from the University of Pretoria. Prof Mostert is the Marketing Research Leader in his School and supervises a number of PhD and Master degree students.

Barry O’Mahony is Director of Research Development and Professor of Services Management in the Faculty of Business and Enterprise at Swinburne University of Technology, Melbourne, Australia. His research interests include the management and marketing of leisure services with an emphasis on hospitality, event management, culture and consumer behavior. He has conducted numerous funded research projects and published in leading international journals.

Céline Pascual-Espuny joined GSCM – Montpellier Business School in September 2008 as an Assistant Professor of Communication and Marketing. She has a doctorate in Information and Communication Sciences from the University Paris IV Sorbonne, and has an extensive experience in the communication strategy of banking organizations. Her research and teaching interests are focused on new trends in organizational communication strategies and methods in the field of sustainable development. Her papers were published in peer-reviewed journals and presented in national and international conferences. She is member of the French Society for Sciences of Information and Communication.

David Blen Nance is a prospective Ph. D. student with ties to the Marriott School at Brigham Young University. He has participated in research in the fields of organizational behavior and supply chain management, and will pursue doctoral studies in the field of strategic management. Blen’s current research interests broadly include the consequences of and remedies to psychological contract breach, the role of risk as a unit of barter, and the coalescence of human capital to organizations of congruent values with its implications for long-term sustainability. Blen received his bachelor’s degree in business management from the Marriott School of Management at Brigham Young University.

Danie (DJ) Petzer is an associate professor in the Department of Marketing Management at the University of Johannesburg and honorary Professor at the Oslo School of Management, Norway. He is based at the Kingsway Campus in Aucklandpark, Johannesburg. He specializes in International Market-
About the Contributors

Prof. Leon M. Petzer is a professor of Marketing Management, International Business, Marketing Research, more specifically quantitative research, and Services Marketing. He holds a PhD in Marketing Management from the North-West University. Prof. Petzer is the deputy chair of the department and coordinator for Research and the BCom Honors program. He currently supervises several postgraduate students studying towards their master and doctoral degrees in marketing management and is also involved in local and international research projects in his fields of specialization.

Galina Plotnikova is a researcher in the Scientific Department of the State University of Management, Russia, and the author of more than 20 scientific publications. With T. Lenova, She studied the methodical complexes of developmental economy and has taken part in a number of studies in the field of sustainable economic development, public administration, transition to postindustrial society, and innovative economy. G. Plotnikova is an Expert of the Scientific Association “Russian Network Intelligence.” Galina regularly takes part in national and international conferences, organized by GBATA, NISPAcee, ICEE, ABBS and other Russian and international organisations.

Marina Predvoditeleva is an Associate Professor at National Research University Higher School of Economics, Moscow, Russia. She has a MSc degree in Chemical Engineering, MSc in Economics, and PhD in Economics. She is the author and co-author of a number of publications on Service Management in Russian and other languages, including a book on Service Management in Russian. Her research interests for the last 10 years have been concentrated mainly on Service Management, and currently focused on Hospitality and Tourism Management. She is also the Head of the Master Program in Tourism and Hospitality Management which will start in 2012/2013.

Ashok Ranchhod is the Director of Mudra Institute for Communication located in Ahmedabad, India, since 2009. Previously, he worked as Research Professor at Southampton Solent University, UK, and as Head Examiner in the discipline of Strategic Marketing for the Chartered Institute of Marketing, UK. His research interests are focused on marketing strategies for sustainable development, branding and marketing communications. He published extensively in international peer-reviewed journals and presented his work in professional and academic conferences. He also wrote and published a series of case studies for teaching and examination in the area of marketing strategies and branding.

Arménio Rego is Assistant Professor at the Universidade de Aveiro, Portugal. He has a PhD from ISCTE - Instituto Universitário de Lisboa. He is author or co-author of more than thirty papers in journals such as such as Applied Psychology: An International Review, International Journal of Human Resources Management, Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of Business Research, Journal of Organizational Change Management, and Journal of Occupational Health Psychology. He is also author or co-author of more than thirty books about topics such as Leadership, Organizational Behavior, Organizational Justice, Human Resources Management, Coaching, and Corporate Social Responsibility. His research interests deal mainly with positive organizational scholarship.

Gábor Réthi is an Assistant Lecturer at the University of Miskolc, Faculty of Economics, Institute of Management Sciences. He is also visiting lecturer of Polish and French business schools. His research interests include cross-cultural management, organizational culture, service management, and international business management. Related to these topics, he has participated a considerable number of workshops and conferences in different countries (e.g., France, Slovenia, Slovakia, and Colombia).

Leonel Cezar Rodrigues holds a Masters in Management of Technology and Doctorate degree in Administration from Vanderbilt University, TN (1990). He is co-founder and Director of Technology Research Institute of FURB (1979-84) and Pro-Rector for Research and Graduate Studies (1990-94) at Regional University of Blumenau (Brazil). He is also co-founder of Blusof - High Technology Center in Blumenau, during the decade of the 1990. He coauthored four books, some of them published in Spanish and Italian. He is currently professor and researcher at the Doctoral Program in Business Administration at the University Nove de Julho (São Paulo – Brazil), being professor of Competitive Intelligence, and Innovation.

Susana Rodrigues holds a PhD degree in strategic management, from the University of Wolverhampton in the United Kingdom. Since 1992 she has been a Lecturer at the School of Management and Technology of Leiria, of the Polytechnic Institute of Leiria, Portugal, mainly in the areas of strategic management and strategic marketing both in the degree course and master degree programmes. She also lectured in advance training programmes for executives. Since 2006, she’s member of the organiser committee of the international conference GBATA. In 2010 she has also co-organised, the European Conference on Intellectual Capital. She’s member of the committee for the European Conference on Intellectual Capital (ECIC 2011). Since 2007 she’s member of the Research Centre for Rapid and Sustainable Product Development. She’s Regional Editor for Europe of the journal, Global Business and Technology. She’s currently Dean of the School of Fine Arts and Design, of the Polytechnic Institute of Leiria.

Marina Sheresheva is a Full Professor, Dr. (Economics), Deputy Dean, Head of Laboratory for Network Organizational Forms, Faculty of Management, at the National Research University Higher
School of Economics, Russia, and Head of the Master Program in Marketing, Faculty of Economics, at the Lomonosov Moscow State University, Russia. She graduated from the School of Economics at Lomonosov Moscow State University (1985), got a PhD degree in Economics (1988), and defended her well as management experience in international companies PRP Weber Shandwick, Business Analytica Europe Ltd. Author of more than 80 publications, including books Aggressive Marketing: Guerilla War Forms of Inter-Firm Networking (2010). She is a member of IMP (Industrial Marketing & Purchasing Group), EMAC (European Marketing Academy), EFER (European Forum for Entrepreneurship
Research). Professional interests: inter-firm relationships, marketing strategy, international marketing.

Suvenus Sophonsiri is Assistant Dean for Research Development in the Faculty of Tourism and Hotel Management at Mahasarakham University, Thailand. Her research interests include tourist behavior, employee behavior and cross-cultural issues in tourism and hospitality industry.

Adeline du Toit is a professor at the University of Johannesburg, South Africa, and Director of the Centre for Information and Knowledge Management. She has published over 65 peer-reviewed articles and presented papers at 33 international conferences. She acts as consultant to various private enterprises and is listed in the publication Outstanding Intellectuals of the 21st Century.

Olga Tretyak is a Full Professor, Dr. (Economics), Head of Strategic Marketing Department, Faculty of Management, at the National Research University Higher School of Economics, Russia. She graduated from the School of Economics at St. Petersburg (Leningrad) State University (1974) she got a PhD degree in Economics (1982), and defended her Doctoral dissertation (1992). She has more than 30 years of working experience in Russian Higher Education (working in leading Russian HE institutions: Moscow State University, St. Petersburg State University, Higher School of Economics). Member of Editorial Board of the Russian Management Journal (http://www.rjm.ru), Member of IMP (Industrial Marketing & Purchasing Group) & EMAC (European Marketing Academy). Her professional interests lie in the following areas: New approaches and paradigm in marketing and strategy, Interfirm cooperation and network & relationship management, Innovative forms of business organization and new models of business management, Demand chain management, Value chain management, Client orientation & market driven chains.