About the Contributors

Hans Ruediger Kaufmann, after extensive experience in German Bank Management, completed his sponsored PhD in 1997 and was a Research Assistant and then Lecturer (p-t) at Manchester Metropolitan University. Later, he worked in Budapest, first as Course Director Marketing for the Chartered Institute of Marketing and then as an Assistant Professor in Marketing at the International Management Centre Budapest, as well as a Contractual Consultant. At the University of Applied Sciences Liechtenstein, he was Academic Director Private Banking and, later, Head of the Competence Centre International Management. Since October 2006, he is an Associate Professor at the University of Nicosia. He has been a launching member and President (2007-2009) of the International Research Network on Consumer Behaviour, CIRCLE. He is currently Vice-President of the EuroMed Research Business Institute (EMBRI). He is member of the editorial board of a variety of journals and an Associate Editor of the World Review of Entrepreneurship, Management, and Sustainable Development.

Mohammad Fateh Ali Khan Panni is a Lecturer in the School of Business at City University, Bangladesh. He was born in 1981 in Dhaka, Bangladesh. As a young research aspirant, he is actively involved in academic research. He has published many research articles in the area of consumerism, CRM, CKM, brand loyalty, online shopping behavior, internet banking, and green consumer behavior index, etc., in numerous international journals like JLERI, UBEPR, IJECRM, WJBAM, JIKM, Amfiteatru Economic. To date, he has 14 international refereed publications, which include international refereed journals, conference proceedings, and book chapters. Currently, he is a research committee member of three different research interest committees on marketing, ethics, and social responsibility, and on the green economy consortium of Euromed Research Business Institute (EMRBI). He is also regularly involved as a track chair of annual Euromed Conferences. He regularly reviews papers for different international refereed journals. So far, he has reviewed papers for the African Journal of Business Management (AJBM) (ISI indexed journal), the African Journal of Agricultural Research (AJAR) (ISI indexed journal), a Special Edition of the World Review of Entrepreneurship, Management, and Sustainable Development (WREMSD) (Inderscience Publication Series), the Journal of Information and Knowledge Management (JIKM) (World Scientific Publication), the International Research Journal of Management and Business Studies, and the Journal of Accounting and Taxation (JAT) (Academic Journal Series). He is an editorial team member of the African Journal of Marketing Management (AJMM) (Academic Journal series) and a listed reviewer of the Journal of Information and Knowledge Management (JIKM) (World Scientific Publication).

***
Abul Fazal Wazir Ahmad has taught accounting and finance courses over the last fourteen years at both the graduate and undergraduate level. He has served three reputed universities in Bangladesh in his teaching career. Currently, he is working for the Department of Business Administration, City University of Bangladesh. Wazir has earned his MBA (Accounting CPA Track) from RIT, Rochester, NY. He graduated with Accounting major from University of Dhaka. He obtained his MBA in Finance from Reputed IBA, DU. Apart from teaching, Wazir takes an active role in academic administration under various capacities. He has recognized works in private universities in Bangladesh, a recent development in local education. His research interests include capital market development, consumer right, customer knowledge management, and corporate social responsibility.

Mohammad Muzahid Akbar is a Bangladeshi national by birth. He did his Bachelor of Commerce and Master of Commerce in Accounting from University of Dhaka. Afterwards, he did his MBA from Lahore University of Management Science (LUMS). He started his teaching career as a Lecturer back in 2002 in the School of Business of Independent University, Bangladesh (IUB). He is still working there, now as a Senior Lecturer. Muzahid offers courses like Business Research Methods, Marketing Research, Marketing Management, Product and Pricing Policies, Consumer Behavior, Business Communications, Financial Accounting, and so forth. He is actively involved in research and publications. He has had several papers published both in local as well as international journals. His research interests include issues related to business process reengineering, organizational citizenship behavior, employee turnover, service quality management, customer relationship management, and customer knowledge management.

Niksa Alfirevic is a Professor of Management at the University of Split, Faculty of Economics. He is currently the Head of Management Department. In 1991, Niksa graduated at University of Split, Faculty of Economics, while in 1999, he received MSc degree in Management from University of Zagreb, Faculty of Economics and Business. In 2003, he received his first PhD (in the field of business) from University of Split Faculty of Economics, while in 2009, he received his second PhD in Sociology from University of Klagenfurt, Austria. He has co-authored several books (including two university textbooks), as well as many professional and scientific papers. He has also participated in career development programs in Austria, Germany, Norway, UK, and US. His fields of professional interest include organizational change management, strategic management, e-business, and sociology of the Internet.

Cesare Amatulli is Research Associate at the University of Salento, Lecce, and Adjunct Professor of “Marketing and Retail of Luxury Brands” at the LUM Jean Monnet University, Bari. He holds a Ph.D. in “Theory of Language and Sciences of Symbols” from the University of Bari, and a Master of Science in “Fashion, Experience, and Design Management” from the SDA Bocconi School of Management, Milan. He has also been Adjunct Professor of “Luxury Product Development and Management” and “Retail Marketing and Operations Management” at the International University of Monaco (IUM), Monte-Carlo, and Adjunct Professor of “Fashion Marketing” and “Retail Marketing” at the University of Bari. His primary research interests are determinants of purchasing intention and consumer behaviors, with a special focus on fashion and luxury goods consumption. Dr. Amatulli has published two research monographs and several scientific articles in major international refereed journals. He has also contributed in several national and international conferences.
About the Contributors

Barbara Aquilani is Associate Professor of Management at the Department of Economics and Management (DEIM) of the University of Tuscia, Viterbo (Italy), where she holds the courses of Management and Marketing. She worked as Assistant Professor at the Siena University from 2005 to 2009—Communication Department, Faculty of Letter and Philosophy, where she held the courses of Marketing and Marketing Communication. Her research interests are different. The most important is on firm management and especially on firm growth (on which she published a book) and corporate governance. The second one is on marketing (among others she published papers on university marketing). The third one is on online communication in firms and universities.

Pinelopi Athanasopoulou is a Marketing Lecturer in the Sport Management Department of the University of Peloponnese, Greece. She holds a PhD in Marketing from Cass Business School, an MBA from Manchester Business School, UK, and a BA in Business Administration from the Athens University of Economics and Business, Greece. She has worked for many years in the banking sector, is the author of several academic papers, and has participated in many conferences. Her research has been published in various marketing journals including the International Journal of Bank Marketing, Managing Service Quality, and the European Journal of Marketing. Her research interests include sponsorship, relationship quality, branding, and new service development.

Gianpaolo Basile completed his doctoral studies in Communication Sciences at the University of Salerno (Italy). He currently teaches Marketing and Place Marketing at the Department of Sociology, University of Salerno, and Corporate Communication at the Department of Economics, University of Palermo. His research interests focus on consumer behaviour, management, business systems, strategic and operative planning in marketing and communication, and place marketing. He is co-author of several books, and he is author of many scientific articles published on international journals. He has presented several competitive papers at international conferences, and he is on the editorial board of many international journals.

Daphne Comfort is a Research Administrator in the Business School at the University of Gloucestershire in England. She is a geography graduate and her research interests are in new developments in retailing, corporate social responsibility, sustainable consumption in fashion and food retailing, and woodland management. The results of Daphne’s work have been published in a range of geographical, planning, and business and management journals.

Marija Čutura was born on 14 April 1972 in Mostar, Bosnia and Herzegovina. She graduated from the Faculty of Political Sciences in Zagreb, Republic of Croatia. She earned a Master’s degree (Master of Science) at the University of Mostar, Faculty of Economics, in 2006. The Master’s thesis was exploring consumer ethnocentrism and consumer animosity in the post-war context in Bosnia and Herzegovina. She defended her Doctoral thesis at the University of Sarajevo, Faculty of Economics, in 2011. The thesis was about the country of origin influence on evaluation and purchase behaviour of ethnocentric and non-ethnocentric consumers in Bosnia and Herzegovina. She was working as a research assistant and teaching assistant at the Faculty of Economics in Mostar from 1997 until 2011. Since 2011, she has been an Assistant Professor in the Marketing Department. She is a co-author/author of a single book, and has published 28 articles and conference papers.
Alessia D’Andrea received the M.S. degree in Communication Science at the University of Rome “La Sapienza,” Italy, in 2006, and the Ph.D. degree in Multimedia Communication from the University of Udine in 2011. She is currently a young Researcher with the Institute of Research on Population and Social Policies of the National Research Council of Italy in Rome. She is mainly interested in communication science, social networks, virtual communities, human-machine interaction, health studies, and risk management. She is author of more than 20 papers in international conferences and international books. She was reviewer of some papers for the Multimedia Tools and Applications (MTAP) journal and for the Handbook E-Novation for Competitive Advantage in Collaborative Globalization: Technologies for Emerging E-Business Strategies.

Loredana Di Pietro is a Post-Doctorate Fellow of Organization and Management at the University of Molise (Italy). She has been involved in researching organizational behaviour, human resource management, group dynamics, consumer behavior, and Web 2.0. She is Editor of the International Journal of Digital Content Technology and its Applications and of the Journal of Next Generation Information Technology. Loredana has presented research papers at international seminars and workshops.

Nikola Draskovic received PhD in Marketing from Leeds Metropolitan University in 2010. He received MSc degrees from the University in Zagreb in Marketing and Management. Since 2002, he works at the Croatian branch of Vetropack as the Marketing and Sales Department Deputy Director. Before joining Vetropack, Nikola worked at the Croatian branch of Lowe Lintas network of advertising agencies, and for five years, he also worked part-time as a Consultant for Canadean, an UK company specialised in beverage market research and consultancy. Since 2011, he also works as a Part-Time Lecturer in Marketing at Zagreb School of Economics and Management. Nikola started his lecturing career acting as a Guest Lecturer in Marketing at the Faculty of Business and Economics in Zagreb. His main research interests focus on marketing aspects of packaging, international aspects of marketing, social media, and sales management.

Fernando Ferri received a degree in Electronic Engineering in 1990 and a Ph.D. in Medical Informatics at the University of Rome “La Sapienza” in 1993. He is Senior Researcher of the National Research Council of Italy since 2001. He was Researcher from 1990 to 2001. He was Contract Professor from 1993 to 2000 of “Sistemi di Elaborazione” at the University of Macerata. He is author of more than 160 papers in international journals, books, and conferences. He has coordinated and participated in several national and international research projects. He has organized several international events, such as scientific conferences and workshops and special issues as guest editor of international journals. He is member of some program committees of international workshops and conferences, and member of the editorial board of some international journals. His main research areas of interest are: social informatics, social computing, social networks, data and knowledge bases, human-machine interaction, user-machine natural interaction, multimodal interaction, Web 2.0 and Web 3.0, Internet of the future, user modeling, visual interaction, sketch-based interfaces, geographic information systems, risk management, and medical informatics.
Santiago Forgas-Coll is currently an Associate Professor in Marketing at the Economics and Business Organization Department of the University of Barcelona. He holds a PhD in Marketing from the University of Girona, Catalonia, Spain. He has worked in management positions in several companies. His research interests cover all aspects of services and tourism marketing with a focus on consumer behavior. In particular, he is interested in how companies can create or enhance the loyalty of their customers. He has presented papers on the subject in international conferences and published academic articles in several international and national journals such as Tourism Management, Journal of Air Transport Management, and Cuadernos de Economía y Dirección de la Empresa.

Patrizia Grifoni received the degree in Electronic Engineering in 1990 at the University of Rome “La Sapienza.” She is Researcher at the Institute of Research on Population and Social Policies of the National Research Council of Italy since 1990. She has been Contract Professor from 1993 to 2000 of “Image Processing” at the University of Macerata. She is author of more than 130 papers in international journals, books, and conferences. She is leading and participating in several national and international research projects. She has experience in organizing several international scientific workshops and special issues as guest editor of international journals. She is member of some program committees of international workshops and conferences, and member of the editorial board of some international journals. Her main research areas of interest are: social informatics, social computing, social networks, human-machine interaction, multimodal interaction, sketch-based interfaces, multimedia applications, user modeling, data and knowledge bases, geographic information systems, risk management, Web 2.0 and Web 3.0, Internet of the future, GIS, social networks.

Gianluigi Guido is Full Professor of Business Management, Marketing, and Place Marketing at the University of Salento, and Director of the Social Sciences Institute of ISUFI, Lecce (Italy). He holds an M.I.B.A. from the U.S. International University, San Diego (California), and a Ph.D. in Management Sciences from the University of Cambridge (UK). He has been Professor of Marketing at the University of Padua, and at LUISS University and at Sapienza University in Rome; Visiting Researcher at the Dept. of Marketing of the University of Florida at Gainesville; and Fulbright Fellow at the Dept. of Psychology of the University of Stanford (California). Prof. Guido has published twelve books on consumer behaviour and marketing strategies, and more than 150 articles in major referred journals. He has been listed in the last twelve editions of Marquis Who’s Who in the World and in the last seven editions of Marquis Who’s Who in Finance and Industry.

Bernd Hallier is Managing Director of the EHI Retail Institute (www.ehi.org) since 1985. He is also the President of EuroShop—worldwide exhibition for retail investment goods (www.euroshop.de), Chairman of the Board of the Orgainvent (www.orgainvent.de), Founder of EUREPGAP (now GlobalGAP—Good Agricultural Practice) (www.globalgap.org). Prof. Hallier also manages the European Retail Academy (www.european-retail-academy.org) as an Executive Member of the Board of Trustees. Apart from his teaching activity in Germany, he lectures in trade marketing and trade management at the Moscow Academy of Business at the Government of Moscow and in Philadelphia/USA. His book, EuroShop, published in German/English in 2004 and in 2008 in Russian became a standard shopfitting literature; his book (German/English), From Crisis to Competence, describes the tracing and tracking of beef after the BSE-crisis in Europe and is the basis of the EU-project “Smart Agrifood.”
David Hillier is a Professor in the Centre for Police Sciences at the University of Glamorgan in Wales. He was previously Head of Geography at the University of Glamorgan, and his main teaching responsibilities were in urban and economic geography. His principal research interests are in crime and the design of the urban fabric, and the results of the work he published with Paul Cozens, now at Curtin University at Perth in Western Australia, have been widely disseminated by the UK’s Home Office. David also has research interests in corporate social responsibility and sustainable development.

Myria Ioannou is a Marketing Lecturer at the School of Business of EUC and the Thematic Coordinator of Marketing for the MBA program. She has earned her Ph.D. from Manchester Business School. Prior to her current position, she worked as a business and financial analyst in a bank as well as an officer in the Human Resources Development Authority of Cyprus. Her primary research interests pertain to services marketing and especially service quality management and relationship management.

Peter Jones is a Professor in the Business School at the University of Gloucestershire in England, previously serving as the Head of the Department of Retailing and Marketing at the Manchester Metropolitan University and Dean of the Business School at the University of Plymouth. He has undertaken consultancy work in Ireland, Norway, The Netherlands, Switzerland, Greece, Spain, Oman, India, Japan, Singapore, Indonesia, and Malaysia. His current research and publication interests are in sustainability and corporate social responsibility within the service sector of the economy. In the past, Peter has published work on the introduction of information and communication technologies within the retail sector of the economy and on the continuing development of out of town retailing within the UK.

Sandra Maria Correia Loureiro is Professor of Marketing at the ISCTE business school- Lisbon University Institute and a researcher in the GOVCOPP and SOCIUS research center. Her current research interests include consumer-brand relationship, online environment and purchase, tourism experience, and corporate social responsibility issues. Her papers have been published in a variety of peer-reviewed journals, such as: Journal of Brand Management, Journal of Travel and Tourism Marketing, and the International Journal of Hospitality Management. She has also presented and published research at well-reputed international conferences all over the world, such as: EMAC, ANZMAC, EuroMed, Global Marketing Conference (Korean Academy-emy) (she won the best premier paper award in 2012), American Academy of Advertising, GfKI, and Consumer-Brand Relationship Conference. She acted as a reviewer for several international journals and conferences. She has participated in several research projects funded by the European Union and FCT (Foundation for Science and Technology).

Pier Massa is Managing Partner and co-founder of M2 – Business Frameworks, an independent international consulting firm specialising in organisation transformation. He also serves as Chairperson, ABC-NEXUS, aimed at collaboration between academia, business, and consulting, as well as being Country Director for the EuroMed Business Research Institute. His executive experience includes Virgin Life Care in the US, CIBC, S.C. Johnson, and Molson in Canada as well as consulting roles with The Boston Consulting Group. Pier’s experience is multi-disciplinary and he has led enterprise-wide change initiatives in large and mid-sized organisations in Europe, North America, and the Middle East, with a focus on complex service businesses, such as financial services, health care, and hospitality. Pier graduated with honours from the University of Toronto and received his MBA from the Rotman School of Management in Canada.
About the Contributors

Howard Moskowitz, has worked 21 years in marketing, 15 years as President of Moskowitz Jacobs Inc., a company in the business of product and concept screening, optimizations, and sensory preferences segmentation. Prior to this, he worked at the U.S. Army NATICK laboratories in Massachusetts, after completing his Ph.D. in Experimental Psychology at Harvard. Dr. Moskowitz specializes in developing technology to accelerate product and concept development.

Steve Onufrey, President and CEO the Onufrey Group, co-developed with Dr. Howard Moskowitz, the typing tool and the business model of use of the typing tool in unlimited application areas. Led consulting engagement with a 2,400 branch-network, major European bank to develop customer experience segmentation to impact the bank’s net promoter score for the high net worth customer segment. He developed application of addressable minds in banking in conjunction with Dr. Howard Moskowitz.

Cinzia Pace has graduated from the Faculty of Psychology of the Sapienza University in Rome and has a degree in “Scienze e Tecniche Psicologico Socialidella Comunicazione e del Marketing.” She is currently enrolled in her last year of specialization in “Psychology of Marketing and Communication,” and is employed as project manager for an important communication company (in these years she has worked on some relevant projects for private companies and public institutions such as Finmeccanica, Ministry of Environment, Air One, Filmmaster Group, Hogan, EridaniaSadam, ICSA Foundation, Telespazio, Tecno Sky, 8th World Summit of Nobel Peace Laureates Rome December 2007). Moreover, Cinzia is actively involved in the promotion of the national territory, giving particular attention to the territory of the Abruzzo region, where she provides consultancy for the territorial marketing and the promotion of tourism. She is also co-author of several publications on destination marketing.

Ramon Palau-Saumell is an Associate Professor at the Economics and Business Organization Department of the University of Barcelona and the University of Girona, Catalonia, Spain. He is also Visiting Professor at University of Perpignan, France. He received MBA and PHD degrees from the Autonomus University of Barcelona. Prior to becoming an academic, he had senior management positions in Spanish companies. His primary research interests are consumer behaviour and tourism marketing. He has published in these areas, and his papers have appeared in various academic journals, including Tourism Management, European Sport Management Quarterly, Journal of Air Transport Management, and Cuadernos de Economía y Dirección de la Empresa.

Eleonora Pantano is a Post-Doctorate Research Fellow at the University of Calabria (Italy) in cooperation with the Technical University of Eindhoven (NL). She holds a PhD in Psychology of Programming and Artificial Intelligence. Her research interests are related to technology management for retailing and tourism, with emphasis on the investigation of consumer behaviour in pervasive environments. She was the Highly Commended Award winner of the 2008/2009 Emerald/EMRBI Business Research Award for Young Researchers.

Ioanna Papasolomou is an Associate Professor and the Head of the Department of Marketing, School of Business Administration, at the University of Nicosia, in Cyprus. She has teaching and research experience in the UK. She holds a PhD in Marketing from Keele University as well as an MBA, an MPhil in Marketing Public Relations, and a Postgraduate Certificate in Teaching and Learning in Higher Edu-
Dr. Papasolomou has contributed papers to a number of international conferences and journals such as the Journal of Marketing Management, Marketing Intelligence and Planning, Journal of Brand Management, Journal of Product and Brand Management, and the Journal of Marketing Communications. She has also contributed chapters and case studies to several academic books. She was the Chair for the 10th and 14th International Conference on Corporate and Marketing Communications hosted in 2005 and 2009, respectively, at the University of Nicosia. She is a reviewer for a number of academic journals such as the International Journal of Bank Marketing, Journal of Marketing Communications, International Journal of Corporate Communications, International Journal of Social Responsibility, and the Euro Mediterranean Journal in Business.

Jurica Pavicic is a Professor of Marketing and Marketing Strategy at the University of Zagreb, Faculty of Economics and Business. He is currently the Head of Marketing Department. Jurica received two PhDs—in Marketing (University of Zagreb, Croatia) and in Sociology (Alpen Adria University of Klagenfurt, Austria). His work has been published in several authored and co-authored books (with Routledge, Lawrence Erlbaum, Springer, Ashgate, IGI Global), book chapters, and papers in journals. As a Visiting Professor, he also lectures at Alpen Adria University of Klagenfurt (Austria), Wirtschaftsuniversitaet (University of Economic Sciences) Vienna (Austria), Leeds Metropolitan University (UK). He is also active in the non-profit sector.

Alessandro M. Peluso is Assistant Professor of Management at the University of Salento, Lecce, and Adjunct Professor of Marketing at the Luiss University of Rome. He holds a Ph.D. in Economic and Quantitative Methods for Market Analysis from the University of Salento. His primary research interests are consumer satisfaction and post-consumption behaviors, with a special focus on word of mouth. His research also investigates decision-making processes within firms and, in particular, the role of entrepreneurs’ personality in innovation adoption. Dr. Peluso has published two research monographs and several scientific articles in major refereed journals, such as International Journal of Market Research, Journal of Consumer Affairs, Journal of Marketing Research, Psychological Reports, Research Policy, and many others.

Giovanni Pino holds a Laurea degree in Economics and Business Administration, with a major in Marketing, at the Dept. of Economics of the University of Salento at Lecce (Italy). He is currently a Doctoral Student in Intelligent Management at the International School of Advanced Studies of the Istituto Superiore per la Formazione Universitaria (ISUFI) of Lecce. His research interests fall within the ambit of place marketing and consumption behavior. As far as the first area of investigation is concerned, his research concentrates primarily on the formulation of strategies to support the development of local territorial systems. As regards the second area of investigation, his research focuses on the ethical dimension of consumption, with a special focus on the analysis of the drivers of organic food purchase behaviour, the analysis of consumers’ perceptions of corporate social responsibility, and the assessment of consumers’ perceptions of the credibility and the image of retail stores.
About the Contributors

M. Irene Prete is Assistant Professor of Business Management, Marketing, and Place Marketing, and Adjunct Professor of Political Marketing at the University of Salento (Lecce, Italy). She holds a Master of Science (Master Recherche) in Management (Science de Gestion) from Paris XII University (Paris, France), a Master in Banking and Finance from University Tor Vergata (Rome, Italy), and a Ph.D. in Economics and Quantitative Methods for Market Analysis at the University of Salento. She has been Visiting Researcher at Queen Mary – University of London (UK), and Lecturer at the LUISS University of Rome and at the University of Bari. Dr. Prete has contributed in several national and international conferences and has published a number of articles in major referred journals.

Samuel Rabino, Professor of Marketing, the Marketing Group at Northeastern University, Ricerca Associato Universita degli Studi di Napoli Parthenope Italy. He also lectures at Harvard University. Professor Rabino holds an MBA and Ph.D. degrees from New York University. He is the author of numerous articles on industrial marketing, international marketing, export incentive programs, product planning, and brand strategies and development.

Dana Rafiee, an IT Principal of Destiny Corporation, is a recognized authority on systems design and architecture with a heavy concentration on best practices in the world of SAS. He has over 25 years of experience in the IT systems field. His expertise brings together an understanding of business process reengineering, system configurations, Web-based delivery, efficient access to relational databases, networking, communications, and decision support tools. He has also written and taught over 65 courses in SAS software, including SAS Enterprise Business Intelligence and SAS Enterprise Data Integration topics. Mr. Rafiee has been a Lead Consultant on many IT projects and implementations for numerous Fortune 500 and government organizations.

Alessandro Ruggieri is Full Professor at the Department of Economics and Management (DEIM) of University ‘Tuscia’ in Viterbo (Italy), where he holds the courses of Technology, Innovation and Quality, Quality Management and Certification, and Quality Management Techniques. From 21st July 2011 to date, he is the Director of the Department of Economics and Management (DEIM) at the University of Tuscia. His research has developed mainly under the following guidelines: (1) quality of goods, products, and services. Studies and research on the quality according to the approaches of “Total Quality Management” and “Quality Certification” by “ISO 9000” standards; (2) the relationship between quality and consumer, with particular reference to customer satisfaction; (3) quality and innovation in the agro-food industry; (4) environmental issues, with particular reference to management and environmental certification; (5) innovation and technology transfer, with particular attention to the role of innovation for regional development.

Javier Sánchez-García is a Full Professor Tenured of the Department of Business Administration and Marketing of Jaume I University, Castellón, Spain. He has developed several international and national projects. His research interests cover all aspects of services marketing with a focus on customer loyalty. He is interested in how companies can create value for their clients. He has published academic articles in numerous international journals, such as Tourism Management, Transport Reviews, Journal of Air Transport Management, Annals of Tourism Research, Tourism Geographies, Service Industries Journal, International Journal of Bank Marketing, Universia Business Review, and the European Journal of Marketing.
Elsa Serpico is enrolled for the second year of the PhD in Economics and Local Development at the University of Tuscia, Viterbo (Italy). She graduated in 2009 from the University of Tuscia with a Bachelor’s Degree in Economics and Management. In 2010, she obtained her Master’s degree in Marketing and Quality Management from the University of Tuscia with a thesis titled “Quality Standards in the Agri-Food Sector: The Case of C.I.L.C.A. Srl,” with the final degree mark 110 (out of 110) cum laude. Her research interests include: quality management systems in the public sector, quality in the agro-food sector, innovation and online marketing, and communication.

Riad Shams holds BBA, MBA, and Doctorate degrees. He completed his Doctorate from the Central Queensland University, Australia, in 2011. His Doctoral research is centred on developing a relationship marketing model to enable sustainable organizational growth. He has seven years of academic and industry experience in the field of marketing. Currently, he is working as a freelance marketing consultant in Australia. He has consultancy experiences in the hospitality, sports, retail, and leather goods industries. He is affiliated with the Australian Market and Social Research Society (AMSRS). His research interest includes branding, rebranding, relationship marketing, stakeholder value proposition, e-marketing, transdisciplinary study, marketing theory and history, cross-cultural issues in marketing management, communication and promotion management, education, sports, hospitality and tourism marketing, and so forth.

Cecilia Silvestri is Lecturer of Commodity Science at the Department of Economics and Management (DEIM) at the University of Tuscia, Viterbo (Italy), where she holds the course Quality and Customer Relationships. She had her PhD in 2011 in “Economics and Local Development” at the University of Tuscia. Consistent with her studies, her research has developed along the following guidelines: (1) quality of goods, products, and services. Studies and research on the quality according to the approaches of “Total Quality Management” and standards “ISO 9000,” (2) the relationship between quality and consumers, with particular reference to satisfaction and loyalty, (3) quality and innovation in the agro-food, (4) innovation and technology transfer, with particular attention to the role of technological innovation for territorial development.

Milanka Slavova is an Associate Professor at the University of National and World Economy, Sofia, Bulgaria. She teaches Marketing and Innovation Management courses at graduate and postgraduate levels. She is an author of publications in the area of innovation management, new product development, and EU research and innovation policy. She has participated in marketing, selling, and innovation management training of local SMEs and international companies operating in the Bulgarian market. She has research and teaching experience in the USA, Japan, and the EU countries.

Marion Tenge is the Director of Strategy and Corporate Investments of Hanover Airport, Germany. Since 2010, she is a Doctoral candidate of the University of Latvia and University of Applied Sciences Kufstein, Austria. Her research interests focus on the convergence of social and technological networks, social business, social software, and social capital. Marion Tenge has lectured at universities in Germany and Austria and cooperates with universities on practical projects related to the aviation industry, while bridging science and managerial practice. She has more than ten years of experience in the travel industry holding different positions. Her responsibilities included, among others, the development of online distribution strategies and social software strategies for the hotel division of Europe’s leading travel group, TUI.

Eleni Tzoulia completed her postgraduate studies at the University of Heidelberg in the field of European Economic Law in 2006, and has participated in two traineeship programs in European Union institutions (European Parliament and European Ombudsman) between 2006 and 2007. Since 2008, she has been working as a Legal Advisor in Greece dealing with commercial law and, in particular, industrial and intellectual property law. Moreover, she is engaged in adult education and has been serving as a Teaching Assistant and Research Collaborator of the Technological Educational Institute (TEI) of Crete and the Greek National Center for Public Administration and Local Government (EKKDA). Since the completion of her postgraduate studies, she has been systematically conducting scientific research on legal issues pertaining to the Internal Market and the Information Society, with relevant publications and lectures.

Valerio Veglio is a PhD Student in Marketing and Management at Milano-Bicocca University (2010-2013). PhD Visiting Student at University of Aberdeen Business School (2011-2012). MSc in Marketing Management at Pavia University (2005 - 2007). BSc in Marketing and E-Business at Pavia University (2002 - 2005). His main research interests concern the application of statistical and data mining techniques to management-related problems. Prior to joining the University of Milano-Bicocca as Ph.D Student, he was Marketing and Data Mining Consultant for PriceWaterhouseCoopers SpA in Milano (2008-2009). After graduating, he worked as a Marketing and Data Mining Analyst for Feltrinelli Srl and International Diagonal Marketing Company Srl in Milano.

Valter Afonso Vieira received his Ph.D. in Business Administration from University of Brasília, Brasília, Brazil (PPGA/UnB), and Post-Doctoral Certificate from Getulio Vargas Foundation, São Paulo, Brazil (EBAPE/FGV). He is Marketing Professor at Maringá State University, Maringá, Brazil (PPA/UEM), published the Handbook of Marketing Scales, a Brazilian version, and published over 100 papers, some of them published in international top journals such as the Journal of Consumer Behaviour, Journal of Services Marketing, Journal of Industrial Business Marketing, Journal of Fashion Marketing Management, Journal of Business Research, and the Services Industrial Journal. He has three best paper awards in national competition.

Neva Yalman is an Assistant Professor at Yeditepe University, Faculty of Business Administration in Istanbul, Turkey. Her areas of interest include marketing, market orientation, customer relationship management, and retailing. She teaches Marketing Management courses and Retailing courses at undergraduate and graduate levels. She is a member of PhD faculty at Yeditepe University teaching an advanced course, Seminar in Retailing. She also has experience as a professional in brand management, business development, and sales.
Simona Mihai Yiannaki is a Programme Coordinator for Banking and Finance, a BBA and MBA Assistant Professor at the EUC (www.euc.ac.cy) and EMRBI Country Director. She is a former banker, CFO, and Executive Bank Consultant, and an educator in financial services for GLG Research. She is an accredited trainer by HRDA-Cyprus for the U.S. Certified Manager. She published and edited international journals (GBER, WREMSD, EMJB, IJOA, Megabyte, RRSS, etc.), book chapters (IGI Global) in risk management, marketing, strategic M&As, corporate and SMEs, and creative education. She coordinated and won EU funds (IPE-2012, ERASMUSIP 2010-2012, TEMPUS IV, ENPI, etc).