About the Contributors

Nwachukwu Prince Ololube, Ph.D., is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Educational Foundations and Management, Faculty of Education, Ignatius Ajuru University of Education, Port Harcourt, Rivers State, Nigeria. He holds a PhD in Education and Teacher Education with focus in Educational Management and Planning/Curriculum Studies from the University of Helsinki, Finland. In addition, he holds a postgraduate Diploma in Human Resources Management, Masters of Education in Educational Management and Planning, and a Bachelors of Science Education in Political Science. His research focuses on school business administration and management, curriculum studies and design, early childhood education, institutional management and leadership in higher education, education effectiveness, instructional effectiveness and quality improvement, ICT in education, adult and non-formal education, and research methodologies. Dr. Ololube has published 6 books, edited 3 books, presented at various international conferences, and contributed chapters to a number of books and encyclopedias. In all, Ololube has authored or co-authored more than seventy publications. Ololube’s professional contributions to the academic community include: Editor-in-Chief, International Journal of Scientific Research in Education (IJSRE); Editor, Online Journal of Education Research (OJER); Editorial Board Member, International Journal of Economics, Education and Development (IJEED); International Editorial Review Board Member, International Journal of Management in Education (IJMIE); International Journal of Information and Communications Technology Education (IJICTE); Editorial Board Member, Journal of Information Systems Education (JISE), and more. A selection of his publications and profile are available online at www.ololube.com.

***

Patrícia Brandalise Scherer Bassani, MSc in Education (PUCRS – Brazil) and PhD in Information Technology in Education (UFRGS – Brazil), is professor in the Inclusion and Diversity Graduate Program at Feevale University. Her teaching and research focus is on computer-mediated interaction, virtual learning communities, virtual learning environments, mobile learning, digital inclusion, and lifelong learning.

Kankam Boadu, Mphil., received his bachelor’s and Master of Philosophy degrees in social studies education and curriculum studies from the University of Cape Coast, Ghana. He is a senior lecture and head of department at the department of arts, and social sciences education, University of Cape Coast. He has since completed and defended his Ph.D dissertation in development studies at the University of Cape Coast. Kankam Boadi’s research interests are citizenship and teacher education in Ghana, education, and rural development.
Tena B. Crews is a Professor of Integrated Information Technology (IIT) at the University of South Carolina and has also served as the Acting Associate Dean of Academic Programs, Interim Chair of the Department of Retailing and the Director of Online Learning and Development for the College of Hospitality, Retail, and Sport Management (HRSM). She also previously served as the Associate Director of Technology Pedagogy at the USC Center for Teaching Excellence. Her degrees are in business education with a concentration in management information systems. She earned her doctorate from the University of Georgia and master’s and bachelor’s degrees from Ball State University.

Sithembeni Denhere holds a Master of Education in Administration, Policy, and Planning from the University of Zimbabwe. She is the Regional Quality Assurance Coordinator with the Zimbabwe Open University. She has published several articles and her research interests include quality assurance in Open and Distance Learning as well as classroom practitioner occupational stress. Currently, she is working towards her PhD.

Erlane K. Ghani is an Associate Professor in the Faculty of Accountancy, Universiti Teknologi MARA. She did her PhD in Accounting examining XBRL as one of the digital formats available for financial reporting using New Zealand setting. Her current areas of interest are in digital financial reporting and accounting education.

Alexandria Elizabeth Howard is currently a graduate student earning a master’s degree in Sport and Entertainment Management (SPTE) at the University of South Carolina. She received her bachelor’s degree in Exercise and Sport Science with a concentration in Athletic Training at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where she graduated in 2008. Alexandria will receive her master’s degree in SPTE in December 2013.

Chris E. Iderima is currently the Head of the Management Information Systems (MIS) unit of the Information and Communications Technology Center (ICTC), University of Port Harcourt. He holds B.Sc., PGDE, and M.Ed. degrees from the University of Port Harcourt. In addition, he has M.Sc. degree in Computer Science from the University of Lagos. He is executing his Ph.D. dissertation in Educational Technology at the University of Port Harcourt. His publications and research interests are in the areas of e-Learning and integration of Computer Technology in education.

Avneet Kaur is an Adjunct Instructor with the Faculty of Finance and Accounting at the University of Wollongong in Dubai (UOWD), UAE. She holds a Master in Commerce and a Bachelor in Education. Her research interests are related to macroeconomics, international finance, and e-learning.

Peter James Kpolovie is an Associate Professor in the Department of Educational Psychology, Guidance, and Counselling, University of Port Harcourt, Nigeria. He earned his Bachelor of Education in 1991, his Masters of Education in 1996, and PhD in 2002 from the University of Port Harcourt. He specialises in education testing and measurement procedures. His PhD dissertation, “Validation and Standardisation of Culturally Fair Intelligence Tests for Use in Nigeria,” was recognised with Nigeria University Commission best doctoral thesis award, the highest academic award in Nigeria. He is also the recipient of the Common Wealth Scholarship Award of Excellence. He has published extensively on intelligence testing, the application of information technology to data analysis, approaches to improved learning, and educational statistics and research methods.
About the Contributors

Alex Kumi-Yeboah, Ph. D., received his bachelor’s degree in social studies education from the University of Cape Coast, Ghana, and M.A.T. (Masters of Arts in Teaching) in social sciences education from University of South Florida, Tampa. He received his PhD in curriculum and instruction with emphasis in adult education from University of South Florida. Kumi’s areas of research include multicultural education, teacher education preparation, literacy studies, distance, online and blended learning, and transformative learning. He is a former high school teacher in Pasco County, FL, and currently an assistant professor of education at Dalton State College, Dalton, Georgia.

Angeline Mavis Madongonda holds an MA in English and is a senior lecturer in the Department of Languages and Media Studies at the Zimbabwe Open University. She has authored and presented a number of academic papers which include “The Language of Pain: (Re)Interpreting Nature as Metaphor in Yvonne Vera’s Under the Tongue,” Emerging Perspectives on Yvonne Vera, Eds. Pauline Dodgson-Katiyo and Helen Cousins (2012). Her research interests include subaltern voices, gender as well as HIV and AIDS in Zimbabwean and African literature. Her current research focus is on traditional folklore in contemporary writings.

Hela Miniaoui is an Assistant Professor with the Faculty of Finance and Accounting at the University of Wollongong in Dubai (UOWD), UAE. She holds a PhD and an MA. Her research interests are related to money and banking, Islamic finance, and e-learning.

Sabine Moehs is a Professor of Business Informatics at the Baden-Wuerttemberg State University for Cooperative Education in Germany. She was awarded a PhD at Dublin City University and a Master by Research at the National College of Ireland for research in the area of blended learning and the impact of network conditions on the user experience in adaptive e-learning. Most recently, her research has been into the integration of usability, accessibility and user experience in cross-device development. She has been involved in the successful start-up and operation of small companies in project management and software development.

Kamaruzzaman Muhammad is a Senior Lecturer in the Faculty of Accountancy, Universiti Teknologi MARA. He is also a MIA member and has more than 10 years experienced in the accounting and auditing line before joining the academic line. His current areas of interest are on financial reporting and accounting education.

Julius T. Nganji is research at the University of Hull focuses on personalising learning resources for disabled students. He has worked as a Mentor with the Disability Services at the University of Hull supporting disabled students in their learning. His research interests include e-learning on the Semantic Web for disabled students, an area in which he has published in journals, conferences and book chapters. He is also interested in ICT accessibility and usability for disabled people, adoption and diffusion of ICTs by developing countries, and telemedicine. He is presently involved in Web Accessibility projects.
Shawulu Hunira Nggada has B. Tech (Hons) in Computer Science from Abubakar Tafawa Balewa University, Nigeria, MSc Software Engineering from the University of Bradford, UK, PGDp in Research Training and PhD in Computer Science both from the University of Hull, UK. He is a Charted IT Professional with BCS The Charted Institute for IT, Member Nigeria Computer Society and Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. He is currently a Senior Lecture in Software Engineering at the Polytechnic of Namibia (Namibia University of Science and Technology).

Salina Salleh is a Lecturer in the Faculty of Accountancy, Universiti Teknologi MARA. She is the coordinator in charge of blended learning in the university. Her areas of interest include financial reporting and accounting education.

Adedeji Tella, Ph.D., is a lecturer in Teacher Education Department (Mathematics Education Unit) at the Faculty of Education, University of Ibadan, Nigeria. Tella has written several articles on Mathematics Education most of which are published in both local and international reputable refereed journals. He is a seasoned and commissioned author to Evans Publishers Nigeria Ltd. His research areas of interest include but not limited to Mathematics Education Curriculum, ICT and mathematics education, Psychology of mathematics teaching and learning, etc.

Kennedy Ejiwoke Umunadi is an Associate Professor in Industrial Technical Education and Acting Head of Department of Technical and Business Education, as well as post graduate coordinator in the same department in Delta State University, Abraka, Nigeria. His research focuses on electrical, electronic technology, equipment and facilities, safety education, ICT in vocational and technical education. He has over forty-two publications to his credit in reputable world-class indexed international journals, chapters in books and powerful international conference proceedings.

Kelly Wilkinson is a Professor in the Management, Information Systems, & Business Education Department in the Scott College of Business at Indiana State University. She has also served as the Director for the Center for Instruction, Research & Technology (CIRT) at Indiana State University. Prior to joining Indiana State University, she served as an Assistant Professor at the University of Missouri – Columbia and Indiana University of Pennsylvania. She earned her doctorate in Career and Technical Education from the University of Missouri – Columbia.

Bill Young, Ed.D., received his B.S. in Business Education from Indiana University of Pennsylvania and his M.Ed. in Distributive Education from the University of Pittsburgh. He completed his Ed.D. in Higher Education from The Pennsylvania State University. He has held faculty appointments at University of Illinois College of Medicine and Northern Illinois University. He has served in a number of administrative roles to include Assistant Dean for Continuing Medical Education at the University of Illinois College for Medicine, Department Chair of Leadership Development at the University of South Florida, and Dean of the College of Continuing Education at Northern Illinois University.