About the Contributors

Francisco Liébana-Cabanillas is an Assistant Professor at the Department of Marketing and Market Research at the University of Granada (Spain) since 2000 and holds a Ph.D. in Business Sciences from this university. He has a degree in Business and Administration Science and a Master’s in Marketing and Consumer Behavior from the University of Granada. His main area of research and interest is the effectiveness of the mobile and online banking, Internet consumer behavior and e-banking acceptance; the results of which are reflected in various papers (Expert Systems With Applications, Service Industries Journal, Industrial Management & Data Systems, Global Business Perspectives, International Journal of Management Science and Information Technology, Harvard Deusto Business Research, Papeles de Economía Española, etc.), which have been presented at the European Marketing Academy (EMAC), Asociación Española de Marketing Académico y Profesional (AEMARK), International Network of Business and Management (INBAM), International Symposium on Management Intelligent Systems (ISMIS), Jornadas Hispanolusas de Gestión, etc., book (Pearson) and chapters in different multidisciplinary books (IGI Global, Springer, etc). He is currently working on different research projects in Internet social networks, mobile payment, social commerce, Internet and effectiveness, multi-objective optimization and new technologies acceptance.

Francisco Muñoz-Leiva is Lecturer in Marketing and Market Research and holds a Ph.D. in Business Sciences from the University of Granada (Spain). Although his main research interest is Internet consumer behavior, he also published papers about other topics such as electronic banking, the use of Internet as a tourist information source, etc. His recent works have appeared in journals as Information & Management, Online Information Review, Cities, The Service Industries Journal, Quality & Quantity, Defense and Peace Economics, International Journal of Internet Marketing & Advertising, among others, and several communications in international conferences (EMAC, AEMARK, Hispanic-Lusitanian Congress in Scientific Management, AEDEM, IADIS, Global Management, etc.).

Juan Sánchez-Fernández is a Marketing and Market Research Lecturer with a Ph.D. in Business Sciences from the University of Granada, Spain. He is currently researching information systems. He has recently written for a number of international publications including the Services Industrial Journal, Quality & Quantity, Housing Studies, Journal Comparative of Family Studies, Computers in Human Behavior, Online Information Review, Expert Systems with Applications, among others. He has contributed papers to conference proceedings of the European Marketing Academy (EMAC), the European Academy of Management and Business Economics (AEDEM), and the Spanish Association of Market, Marketing and Opinion Studies (AEDEMO). He has also conducted research projects for various companies and public agencies.
Myriam Martínez-Fiestas is a Ph.D. in Business Sciences (Marketing) at the University of Granada. She is an assistant research professor of Marketing Area, ESAN, Graduate School of Business (Peru). Her main research interests are in the fields of Psychophysiology, Emotions, Neuromarketing, Social Marketing and Consumer Behavior. She has published her research work in several journals such as, Journal of Advertising Research, Service Industries Journal or The International Journal of Management Science and Information Technology, among others. Additionally, she has developed research projects with diverse companies and public administrations.

* * *

Ángel Francisco Agudo-Peregrina is M.Sc. and Ph.D. Candidate in Telecommunication Engineering at the Universidad Politécnica de Madrid, Master in Domotics and Digital Home by the UPM and Master in Economics and Innovation Management by the UPM, UCM and UAM. Ángel is Assistant Professor at UPM School of Telecommunication Engineering. Ángel focuses his research on customer segmentation and adoption of digital technologies, and on innovation and entrepreneurship.

Juan Miguel Alcántara-Pilar received his a Ph.D. in Business Administration from University of Granada (Spain) in 2012. He is an Assistant Professor of Marketing and Market Research Department at this University. His areas of specialization are the Cross-Cultural Marketing, Online Consumer Behavior, Website Design and the Cultural Moderate Role of the Language.

Jorge Arenas-Gaitán is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Business Management and Marketing at the Seville University, Spain. He received his BA and Ph.D. degrees in Business Administration from Seville University in Spain. His research interests include behavior of firms in global markets, cross-cultural studies and information technology acceptance. His work has been published in journals, books, and refereed conference proceedings, including Computers & Education, Social Science Computer Review, Journal of Technology Management & Innovation, Americas Conference on Information Systems Proceeding (AMCIS), International Marketing Trends Conference Proceeding, and Advances in Data Networks Communications, Computers.

Raquel Arguedas Sanz, Ph.D., is currently a lecturer in Business and Finance at the Faculty of Economics where she began to work in 1994. During all these years she has written more than forty articles and books in the fields of Finance and ITC in education. She received two extraordinary awards for her doctoral thesis (2010) and she is certified Financial Risk Manager (FRM) from the Global Association of Risk Professionals (GARP) since 2004. She has also been in charge of the UNED Bachelor Degree in Business Administration from 2010 to the present.

Enrique Bernal Jurado is a Ph.D. in Economics and Business at the University of Málaga and a professor in the Department of Applied Economics of the University of Jaen (Spain). He is also Director of the Security and e-Commerce Observatory of the University of Jaen and a member of the research group “Economía Aplicada Jaén (SEJ 142). His fields of research are Financial Sector, e-Economy and Social Economics. He has published articles in The Service Industries Journal, Innovar Journal, Expert Systems with Applications Journal, Journal of Strategic Change, CIRIEC-España revista de economía publica social y cooperativa, Economía Industrial, Papeles de Economía Española.
Carmen Camarero is a Ph.D. in Economics and Business Administration and is presently working as Associate Professor of Marketing at the University of Valladolid (Spain). She has 20 years of teaching experience at various levels. She is a member of the research group “Market Intelligence and Marketing”. Her research is mainly focused on business and consumer relationship marketing, online consumer behaviour and marketing for heritage and cultural organizations. She has coordinated several research projects, participated in national and international congresses and published articles in major international marketing journals such as Journal of Services Research, Psychology & Marketing, Tourism Management, European Journal of Marketing, Online Information Review, Cyberpsychology and Marketing, and Journal of Advertising. She has collaborated in several marketing books and is the author of two books.

Rodrige Carlos Nana Mbinkeu obtained his Ph.D. degree in the International Doctorate School of Information and Telecommunication Technologies in 2011 in Italy (University of Modena). He worked in IT Companies in Italy. Now, he is a Senior Lecturer at National Advanced School of Engineering, University of Yaounde I, Cameroon and also visiting Lecturer at the University of Modena, Italy. He is an IT expert and entrepreneur with research and development experience in Data Integration, Database, Business Intelligence, e-Commerce, mobile applications and Social Networks. He is also Co-founder and Chief Technology Officer of the start-up IT Company called ECOPAY.

Julián Chaparro-Peláez is a M.Sc. and Ph.D. in Telecommunication Engineering by the Universidad Politécnica de Madrid. He is a Full Professor in Economics and Information Systems at the Business Administration Department of the UPM. Prof. Chaparro-Peláez is a member of the “Innovation, Industrial Property and Technology Policy” (INNOPRO) research group at the UPM. He is the author of several papers and articles about electronic commerce and interactions between Information Technologies and Organizations in international journals and conferences.

Antonio M. Cortes-Romero is a professor in Economics and Business at the University of Granada (Spain), as well as researcher and manager of several courses and postgraduate masters in the field of finance. His current research interests focus on the study of the variables explaining the Spanish company’s profitability, with special emphasis on the problems of SMEs, and the application of data mining techniques. Among his contributions are many publications and books about teaching and research, with various contributions to national and international conferences, also highlighting their participation as a partner and consultant to several public and private organizations through R & D regional and national levels.

Salvador Del Barrio-García has a Ph.D. in Business Administration from University of Granada (Spain). He is an Associate Professor of Marketing and Market Research Department at this University. He received his Ph.D. in Business Administration from University of Granada (Spain) in 2001. His areas of specialization are the Integrated Marketing Communication (IMC), Online Consumer Behaviour and Marketing for Higher Education. He has published several books as author and co-author on these matters. He has also published various peer-reviewed papers in prestigious journals such as European Journal of Marketing, Cities, Public Relations Review, Computers in Human Behavior, Journal of Advertising Research, among others.
About the Contributors

María Dolores Reina, Ph.D., is currently lecturer in Marketing and Business at the Faculty of Economics where she began to work in 1996. She was postgraduate coordinator of the UNED Business Economics and Accounting department during ten years. She received extraordinary award for her doctoral thesis (2002) and she has tutored doctoral thesis in Marketing and Tourism. She has written several articles and books in the fields of Marketing and Tourism.

Luis Enrique Pedauga received his B.A. in Business Administration from the Technological University Cristóbal Mendoza in 1998 and his B.Sc. in Economics from the University of Los Andes in 2001, both in Mérida (Venezuela). He also has a M.A. in Multivariate Data Analysis at the Central University of Venezuela in 2006 and a Ph.D. in Economics at the University of Granada in 2013. Before he arrived at Spain, he served at the Economic Research Department in the Central Bank of Venezuela from 2000 to 2008. From 2005 to 2008, he has also been Instructor Professor of Econometric and Applied Multivariate Methods at the Catholic University Andrés Bello (Venezuela). Since 2009 he has been conducting research activities at the University of Granada investigating different aspects on financial consolidation, financial stability and market power in banking industries.

Ángel Hernández-García is M.Sc. in Telecommunication Engineering, Ph.D. in Information Systems and Master SAP in Enterprise Information Systems by the Universidad Politécnica de Madrid. Ángel is Assistant Professor at the UPM School of Telecommunication Engineering. Currently, Ángel focuses his research on electronic commerce and technology acceptance and refusal behaviors. Prof. Hernández-García has published research papers in international journals and conference proceedings and is a reviewer for leading journals. Prof. Hernández-García was recently awarded with the COIT + AEIT Finalist Award in Telecommunication Management, Economics and Regulation, by the Official Association of Telecommunication Engieneers / Spanish Association of Telecommunication Engineers (COIT/AEIT).

Miguel Jesús Medina Viruel has Bachelor of Business Administration from the University of Jaén. He is also a specialist in Accounting, Finance and Economics of the Public Sector. He has worked as a professor at the Department Business Organization, Marketing and Sociology of the University of Jaen (Spain), where he is currently a research fellow. His fields of research are Social Economics and e-Economy.

Vibha Kaw Raina has a Ph.D. in Mobile Communications and Pervasive Computing (Computer Science), a Master’s in Computer Management from University of Pune (India), and Post Graduation Diploma in Computer Applications from Brainware Software Developers, affiliated to University of Jammu (India). She is currently a member of ACM. She has published and presented more than ten research papers and articles in national and international journals and conferences of repute. Currently she is working as Assistant Professor in Birla institute of Technology, Mesra; Ranchi (Extension Centre, Noida) INDIA, and has more than twelve years teaching experience in the field of Computer Science and Management. She also guides students of graduation and Post Graduation level in their project related work. Presently she is doing research in the field of Pervasive Computing.
Juan Lara-Rubio has a Ph.D. in Economics and Business from the University of Granada (Spain), following his graduate studies at the same university. He is currently a Professor of Finance in the Department of Finance and Accounting at the University of Granada and teaches numerous graduate and masters courses in the field of financial economics. He also performs management tasks, university coordination, and has a Master’s in Banking and Finance from the University of Granada. His current research interests are focused on the study of credit risk, operational risk and the Basel II banking regulations in Microfinance Institutions, where he has published articles in international journals and books. Currently, he is an international consultant in Microfinance Institutions in Latin America.

Manuela López is a Ph.D. student at the University of Murcia (Spain) with a pre-doctoral scholarship from the Spanish Ministry of Education. Her research interests are focused on the influence of eWOM in consumer behaviour. She has presented conference papers at the International Conference on Research in Advertising, in the International Product Development Management Conference and in European Marketing Academy Conference. She has published articles in journals such as the European Journal of Marketing and Journal of Theoretical and Applied Electronic Commerce Research.

Juliette Milgram Baleix is currently an assistant professor at the Department Of Theory And Economic History of the University of Granada and secretary of the AEEFI (Asociación Española de Economía y Finanzas Internacionale). She holds a Ph.D. in economics from the Sorbonne University (France, 2001). Her research seeks to provide theoretical and empirical results on international trade; in particular, she is interested in trade liberalisation in developing countries and the internationalisation of firms. She has participated and coordinated several competitive research projects (AECI; Fundación Centro de Estudios Andaluces, Junta de Andalucía, CICYT; FEMISE (EU)). She has served as referees for several international journals and organised several national and international congresses. She has written several book chapters. She has published in various national and international journals as Revista de Estudios Regionales, Revista de Economía Aplicada, Economía Industrial, Economics Letters, Review of International Economic, Economics Bulletin, The World Economy.

Francisco Montoro-Ríos is an Associate Professor at the Department of Marketing and Market Research at the University of Granada (Spain). His main research areas are related with sustainable consumer behavior and online market research. He has published papers in journals like Journal of Advertising Research, Journal of Consumer Marketing, Online Information Review, Computers and Human Behavior or Quality & Quantity, amongst others. He has worked in a number of research projects funded by public bodies, and he has acted as consultant for different companies.

Adoración Mozas Moral is an Associate Professor at the Department Business Organization, Marketing and Sociology of the University of Jaen (Spain). She had been Director of the Master on Business and Innovation Management on Social Economy of the University of Jaen. She has six research awards in Spain. Her fields of research are Social Economics, e-Economy and Cooperative. She has published articles in The Service Industries Journal, Journal of Rural Cooperation, CIRIEC-España Revista de Economía Pública Social y Cooperativa, Économie et Solidarités, REVESCO: Revista de Estudios Cooperativos.
About the Contributors

Melanie Parravano is currently a Research Associate at the University of East Anglia’s Centre for Behavioural and Experimental Social Science (CBESS). She holds a Ph.D. and a Master’s degree in Empirical Economics from the University of Granada, Spain. She completed her undergraduate studies in Economics at the University of Los Andes, Venezuela. She served, for several years, as an Economic Analyst at the Venezuelan Central Bank. Her current research interests are mainly within the field of Experimental and Behavioural Economics, with particular focus in the areas of behavioural and cognitive game theory, risk attitudes elicitation, as well as coordination and conflict.

Begoña Peral-Peral has a Ph.D. in Administration and Business Management from the University of Seville and Assistant Professor in Dept. of Business Administration and Marketing at the same University. Member of the SEJ025 research team “E-Business: business, management, and citizen” and researcher in the project “Emerging groups in Andalusia Information Society: e-inclusion and e-accessibility”. She is author and co-author of books and chapters of books, and papers in journals indexed in JCR and Scimago (Social Sciences Computer Review, Revista de Economia Aplicada, Innovar) and papers published and presented at international congresses (EMAC, WSEAS International Conference on Education and New Learning Technologies).

Inmaculada Pra, Ph. D., is currently a lecturer in Business and Finance at the Faculty of Economics where she began to work in 1995. During all these years she has written several articles and books in the fields of Finance, ITC in education and International Cooperation for Development. She has also been in charge of International Cooperation for Development at UNED from 2009 to 2012.

Patricio E. Ramírez-Correa is Associated Professor in the School of Commercial Engineering at the Catholic University of the North, Chile. He received his BS degree in Computer Engineering and his MA degree in Management from Pontifical University of Valparaiso in Chile and his MS degree (DEA) in Marketing and Ph.D. degree in Business Administration from Seville University in Spain. His research interests include enterprise systems and information technology acceptance. His work has been published in journals, books, and refereed conference proceedings, including Computers & Education, Journal of Information Systems and Technology Management, Journal of Technology Management & Innovation, Americas Conference on Information Systems Proceeding (AMCIS), European and Mediterranean Conference on Information Systems Proceeding (EMCIS), International Marketing Trends Conference Proceeding, and Advances in Data Networks Communications, Computers Proceeding.

Iviane Ramos de Luna is a Ph.D. degree student in Economic and Business Sciences and Master in Marketing and Consumer behavior, from the University of Granada. Her main area of research and interest the field is the effectiveness of the mobile payment, NFC, QR codes for payments, e-commerce, m-commerce and Internet consumer behavior.

F. Javier Rondán-Cataluña is an Associated Professor in the Department of Business Management and Marketing at the Seville University, Spain. He received his BA and Ph.D. degrees in Business Administration from Seville University in Spain. His research interests include franchise, price management and consumer behavior. His work has been published in journals, books, and refereed conference proceedings, including Computers & Education, Behaviour & Information Technology, Management Decision and
About the Contributors

Sonia San-Martín, Ph.D. is Associate Professor at the University of Burgos (Spain). She is a lecturer and researcher in Marketing and has been the Marketing Manager of the University for three years. Her current research areas include contractual approach and marketing, relationship marketing, internal marketing, international marketing, consumer behaviour, electronic commerce and mobile commerce. She has presented papers in national and international conferences organized by AEMARK, ACEDE, IADIS and EMAC, among others. She has written a book, some book chapters and has published in national and international journals such as the Journal of Retailing and Consumer Services, Journal of Services Marketing, Journal of Service Research, Cyberpsychology and Behaviour, Personnel Review, International Business Review, Online Information Review, Electronic Commerce Research and Applications, Industrial Management & Data Systems and Psychology&Marketing, among others. She has received several awards for her research from AEDIPE, ESIC, CES and FEC.

Manuel J. Sánchez-Franco, Ph.D. is Associate Professor of e-business management and social communication at the University of Seville (Spain). His research interests are in the areas of consumer behaviour and media planning. He is author and co-author of books and chapters of books, and papers in international journals. He is also a main researcher in the project “Relational Quality, Digital Immersion and Social Welfare from a Gender Perspective. An Application of Online Social Networks to Rural Andalusian Women”.

Maria Sicilia (B.A. Honours in Business in Europe from the Manchester Metropolitan University, degree in Business Administration from the University of Murcia, MBA in International Trade and Ph.D. from the University of Murcia) is an associate professor of Marketing at the University of Murcia (Spain). She is currently lecturing in advertising, commercial communications and market research for advertising. Her research interests are Advertising and Consumer Behaviour. She has published articles in the Journal of Business Research, Journal of Advertising, Journal of Interactive Marketing, Electronic Commerce Research and Applications and the European Journal of Marketing.

Ángel F. Villarejo-Ramos, Ph.D. is an Associate Professor in Marketing at the University of Seville (Spain). His research interests include acceptance and use of Information Systems, customer equity management, brand equity, ecommerce and social network sites. His recent work has been published – or forthcoming – in Journal of Brand Management, Journal of Product and Brand Management, Services Industries Journal, Commercium Journal, Spanish Review of Pedagogy, Information & Management among others, and he presented numerous communications in international conferences. He is also a main researcher in the project “Emerging groups in Andalusia Information Society: e-inclusion and e-accessibility” and academic director of Social Media Marketing Program at University of Seville.