About the Author

Hongzhi Wang, Ph.D., is an associate professor in the Massive Data Computing Center at Department of Computer Science and Technology, Harbin Institute of Technology, Harbin, China. He received his BSc, MSc, and PhD degree in computer science from Harbin Institute of Technology in 2001, 2003, and 2008, respectively. His research interest is data and information management in general, particularly in areas of big data management, data quality, XML, and graph data management. He has published more than 100 papers in conferences and journals. He was also awarded as a Microsoft Fellow, an IBM PhD Fellowship, and a Chinese Excellent Database Engineer. His doctoral dissertation was selected as the outstanding doctoral dissertation by the China Computer Federation.