About the Contributors

Mahmoud Eid is an Associate Professor at the Department of Communication, University of Ottawa, Canada. Dr. Eid is the author of Interweavement: International Media Ethics and Rational Decision-Making (2008), co-author of Mission Invisible: Race, Religion, and News at the Dawn of the 9/11 Era (2014), editor of Research Methods in Communication (2011), and co-editor of Basics in Communication and Media Studies (2012) and The Right to Communicate: Historical Hopes, Global Debates, and Future Premises (2009). Dr. Eid is the Editor of the Global Media Journal – Canadian Edition, serves on the editorial boards of several academic journals and as an organizing committee member for various international conferences, contributed several book chapters and journal articles, and presented numerous papers at global conferences. He has led and collaborated in projects for Public Safety Canada, Citizenship and Immigration Canada, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and various other Canadian and international institutions. His research interests focus on international communication and media studies, communication and media ethics and effects, terrorism, crisis management, conflict resolution, Islam, Arab culture, Middle East politics, media representations and ethnic studies, research methods, and the political economy of communication.

* * *

Muhammad Ayish is a Professor and Head of the Mass Communication Department at the American University of Sharjah, United Arab Emirates. During the past 20 years, Dr. Ayish has worked at several universities in Jordan and the United Arab Emirates where he had served as Dean of the College of Communication at the University of Sharjah from 2002-2008. His research interests include Arab World broadcasting, new media technologies, women and media, and political communication. He is the author of The New Arab Public Sphere (2008), has published over 50 journal articles and book chapters in both Arabic and English, and has contributed numerous research papers in international conferences of media and communication.

* * *

Pauline Hope Cheong is an Associate Professor at the Hugh Downs School of Human Communication, Arizona State University, United States. Her research interests are in the socio-cultural implications of communication technologies, particularly the mediation of leadership and influence. This includes analyzing authority and power, civic participation, and community building, with a multidisciplinary and international perspective. Dr. Cheong’s research has been published widely in leading peer-reviewed journals. She is the lead editor of two volumes, Digital Religion, Social Media and Culture: Perspectives, Practices and Future (2012) and New Media and Intercultural Communication: Identity, Community and Politics (2012), and is the co-author of Narrative Landmines: Rumors, Islamist Extremism, and the Struggle for Strategic Influence (2012). She has received multiple grants, speaking honors and awards, including outstanding research awards from the International Communication Association and the National Communication Association. She serves on the Editorial boards of Journal of Communication and Western Journal of Communication.
About the Contributors

Maura Conway is a Senior Lecturer in the School of Law and Government at Dublin City University in Dublin, Ireland. Her principal research interests are in the area of terrorism and the Internet, including academic and media discourses on cyberterrorism, the functioning and effectiveness of violent political extremist online content, and violent online radicalization. She has presented upon these issues before the United Nations in New York, the Commission of the European Union in Brussels, the Royal United Services Institute in London, and elsewhere. Her articles have appeared in, amongst others, Current History, First Monday, Media, War & Conflict, and Parliamentary Affairs.

William A. Douglass is Coordinator Emeritus of the Center of Basque Studies at The University of Nevada-Reno that he helped found in 1967 and then directed for 33 years. His research interests include ethnic groups and ethnicity maintenance, Basque society, Mediterranean social structure, family history, immigration, and identity. He is the author of Death in Murelaga: The Social Significance of Funerary Ritual in a Spanish Basque Village (1969) and Emigration in a South Italian Hill Town: An Anthropological History (1984). He co-authored the acclaimed books Amerikanuak: Basques in the New World (2005, with Jon Bilbao) and Terror and Taboo: The Follies, Fables, and Faces of Terrorism (1996, with Joseba Zulaika).

John D. H. Downing is Professor Emeritus of International Communication at the College of Mass Communication and Media Arts, Southern Illinois University and currently affiliated to the Information & Media Studies Department at Aarhus University, Denmark. He is well known for his research on alternative media and social movements. Dr. Downing is founding Director of the Global Media Research Center and was Vice-President of the International Association for Media and Communication Research (2008-2012). He is a founding Executive Editorial Committee member, Global Media & Communication (2005-) and an elected Editor, Communication, Culture & Critique (2011-2013), an official journal of the International Communication Association. He is the author of Internationalizing Media Theory: Transition, Power, Culture (1996), co-author of Radical Media: Rebellious Communication and Social Movements (2001), and Editor-in-Chief of Sage Encyclopedia of Social Movement Media (2010).

Robert A. Hackett is a Professor in the Faculty of Communication at Simon Fraser University, Vancouver, Canada. His current research interests include journalism studies, media democratization, media activism, communication rights, news analysis during peace and war, and peace journalism. He is an editor of Expanding Peace Journalism: Comparative and Critical Approaches (2011, with Ibrahim Seaga Shaw and Jake Lynch), and co-author of Remaking Media: The Struggle to Democratize Public Communication (2006, with William K. Carroll). Dr. Hackett has also conducted numerous media interviews and public talks, written policy briefs, and has helped to found several community-based media action and education initiatives, including NewsWatch Canada (initially a Canadian version of Project Censored) at Simon Fraser University, OpenMedia.ca, and Vancouver’s annual Media Democracy Days.
Dana Janbek is Assistant Professor of Public Relations at Lasell College in Newton, Massachusetts, United States. Her research focuses on terrorist use of the Internet as a media outlet and the use of information and communication technologies in the Middle East including within refugee populations. As a doctoral student she served as a research assistant intern at the Middle East Institute in Washington, D.C. Prior to entering academia, she worked for the Embassy of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan in Washington, D.C. Earlier in her career, she served as the Director of World Communities of Louisville. Dr. Janbek is the co-author of Global Terrorism and New Media: The Post Al-Qaeda Generation (2010, with Philip Seib).

Randal Marlin is Adjunct Professor of Philosophy at Carleton University and at Dominican University College, Ottawa, Canada. He retired in 2001 from full-time teaching after 35 years at Carleton University. Throughout his career, Dr. Marlin's research interests were focused on propaganda. He is a board member of the International Jacques Ellul Society and the Civil Liberties Association, National Capital Region. Dr. Marlin is the author of Propaganda and the Ethics of Persuasion (2002), and The David Levine Affair: Separatist Betrayal or McCarthyism North? (1998).

Clarence Augustus “Gus” Martin is Associate Vice President for Human Resources Management at California State University, Dominguez Hills, United States. He began his academic career as a member of the faculty of the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs, University of Pittsburgh, where he was an Administration of Justice professor. He is author and editor of several books on the subject of terrorism, including Understanding Homeland Security (2014), Essentials of Terrorism: Concepts and Controversies (2014), Understanding Terrorism: Challenges, Perspectives, and Issues (2013), The Sage Encyclopedia of Terrorism (2012), Terrorism and Homeland Security (2011), and The New Era of Terrorism: Selected Readings (2004). He has served as a panelist for university and community symposia and interviews on the subjects of administration of justice and terrorism.

Brigitte L. Nacos is an Adjunct Professor in political science at Columbia University, New York, United States, where she has taught courses in American politics and government for more than 15 years. Her research concentrates on the links between the media, public opinion, and decision-making and on domestic and international terrorism and counterterrorism. She is the author of various books, such as Terrorism and the Media (1996), Decisionmaking in a Glass House: Mass Media, Public Opinion, and American and European Foreign Policy in the 21st Century (2000), Mass Mediated Terrorism: The Central Role of the Media in Terrorism and Counterterrorism (2002), and Fueling Our Fears: Stereotyping, Media Coverage, and Public Opinion of Muslim Americans (2006).

Georgios Terzis is an Associate Professor at Vesalius College, Vrije Universiteit Brussel, and Head of the Media and Global Security Governance unit of the Global Governance Institute, Belgium. He is the founding Chair of the Journalism Studies Section of the European Communication Research and Education Association. His research focuses on media and ethno-political conflict, media governance, journalism education, and the development of transnational media. He has been involved in academic work and administrative duties in journalism and communication departments of many universities for more than 15 years. He has also been involved in several international research projects and networks.
About the Contributors

He has authored, co-authored, and edited 6 books, 13 book chapters, and 17 refereed and non-refereed journal articles. He is currently an editorial board member of the journals, Journalism Practice, Journal of Applied Journalism and Media Studies, and Communication Management Quarterly.

Jonathan R. White is the Dean of Social Sciences at Grand Valley State University, Grand Rapids, Michigan, United States. He is an expert on the topic of terrorism and Middle Eastern extremism and has served as Director for State and Local Anti-Terrorism Training with the Institute of Intergovernmental Research. As Director, he managed a nation-wide counterterrorist information gathering, analysis, and dissemination program in conjunction with the FBI. He is also a leader in Homeland Security, serving as Executive Director of the Homeland Defense Initiative. Furthermore, Dr. White has worked as an Adjunct Instructor with the State and Local Anti-Terrorism Training (SLATT) Program. He is the author of numerous key books in the field, including Terrorism and Homeland Security (2013) and Defending the Homeland (2003).

Samuel P. Winch is an Associate Professor of Communications and Humanities and program coordinator for the Master of Arts in Communications at Penn State Harrisburg of Pennsylvania State University, United States. His research interests include media ethics, visual communication, and professionalism in journalism. Dr. Winch has written two books: Mapping the Cultural Space of Journalism: How Journalists Distinguish News from Entertainment (1997) and Handbook for Visual Journalists (2000). His research has also been published in several scholarly journals, including Journalism Studies, Journal of Mass Media Ethics, Visual Communication Quarterly, and Journal of Computer Mediated Communication. In addition to his research, Dr. Winch continues to produce award-winning photography. His photographs have been published in many magazines and books, and exhibited in several juried shows.

Joseba Zulaika is a Professor at the Center for Basque Studies at University of Nevada, Reno, Nevada, United States. His primary research interests include Basque culture and politics, the international discourse of terrorism, diasporic and global cultures, history of anthropological thought, theories of symbolism, ritual, and discourse. He is the author of various books on political violence, such as Basque Violence: Metaphor and Sacrament (1988), Terror and Taboo: The Follies, Fables and Faces of Terrorism (1996, with William A. Douglass), Polvo de ETA (2006), and Terrorism: The Self-Fulfilling Prophecy (2009). He has published articles in various journals, such as Critical Terrorism Studies, Etnologia, and Comparative Studies in Society and History. 