About the Contributors

Anatoly Zhuplev is a Professor of International Business and Entrepreneurship at Loyola Marymount University (Los Angeles, California) and former Editor-in-Chief at the Journal of East West Business (2011-2013). He taught for 10 years at the Moscow Management Institute, and subsequently at the Advanced Training Institute of the State Committee for Printing and Publishing in Moscow; in Bonn, Germany in 1994, 1998, 2009; in Warsaw, Poland (as a Fulbright scholar) in 2005; in Paris, France in 2004-2007; and at Northeastern University in Boston, Massachusetts in 1989-1990. His books and articles on international management, international entrepreneurship, international business, European energy security, and corporate governance (around 100 overall) have been published in the U.S., Canada, Western Europe, Russia, and the former USSR. He received his Ph.D. from the Moscow Management Institute, Russia, in 1981, and his B.S. from the Moscow Engineer-Economics Institute in 1974.

Kari Liuhto is Professor in International Business (specialisation Russia), Director of the Pan-European Institute at the University of Turku, Finland, and Director of Finland’s Baltic Sea region think tank called Centrum Balticum. Liuhto’s research interests include EU-Russia economic relations, energy relations in particular, foreign investments into Russia and the investments of Russian firms abroad, and Russia’s economic policy measures of strategic significance. Liuhto has been involved in several Russia-related projects funded by Finnish institutions and foreign ones, such as the Prime Minister’s Office, various Finnish ministries, and the Parliament of Finland, the European Commission, the European Parliament, and the United Nations.

* * *

Alessandro Ancarani is Associate Professor in Managerial Engineering at the University of Catania (Italy). He is co-editor in chief of the Journal of Purchasing and Supply Management. He is also member of the Editorial Board of the Journal of Public Procurement. He was President of the International Purchasing and Supply Education and Research Association (IPSER) and he is now acting as member of the Executive Board. He has published more than 100 articles in journals, books, conference proceedings. His research interests are in public procurement, behavioral operations, international business, analysis of intangibles in public service organizations, evaluation of hospital efficiency and performances, and customer satisfaction.

Paolo Barbieri, Ph.D in Management Engineering (2006), is Assistant Professor of Management Engineering at the Department of Management, University of Bologna (Italy). He has been Visiting Scholar at Michigan State University (US) and Visiting Professor at Clarkson University (US) and North Florida University (US). His main research interests are in strategic sourcing, governance of buyer-supplier relationships in complex business environments, and international sourcing and global supply chain management. He has participated to various research projects on international supply management, international sourcing of knowledge, and back shoring of manufacturing. He is co-author of the book Supply China Management and his works has been published on international journals like Journal of Operations Management, Journal of Public Procurement, and others.

Doren Chadee holds a Chair in Management at Deakin University, Melbourne, Australia. Doren has teaching and research interests in the areas of international business and international management with a particular focus on globalization as it relates to the international competitiveness of emerging economies. He is a member of the Academy of International Business, the Australia New Zealand International Business Association, the Australia New Zealand Academy of Management.

Mariola Ciszewska-Mlinarič, Ph.D., is assistant professor of strategic management and international business strategy at Kozminski University, Visiting Professor at ESCCA (France) and MCI Innsbruck (Austria). Her research interests evolve around the topic of strategy, decision-making, adaptive capabilities, and most recently internationalization of firms. She has published papers, chapters, and co-authored two monographies. After graduation from Faculty of Management at University of Warsaw (Magna Cum Laude), she became a faculty member at Kozminski University, where in 2005 she defended her doctoral dissertation. At present, she works on the habilitation in the area of international business strategy. Mariola is also experienced management consultant, specializing in strategy development and implementation of performance systems based on Balanced Scorecard approach. Over the years, she took part in a number of consulting projects in different business settings, ranging from the leading energy company to non-profit organisations such as museums.
About the Contributors

Carmela Di Mauro is Associate Professor of Managerial Engineering at the Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering of the University of Catania (Italy). She holds a D.Phil. in Economics from the University of York (UK). Her research interests include purchasing and supply chain management, management, and organization of the healthcare sector, and behavioral operations management. Her recent publications have appeared in Social Science and Medicine, International Journal of Operations and Production Management, European Journal of Operations Research, International Journal of Production Economics. She is executive board member of the European division of the Decision Science Institute.

Tomasz Dorożyński, Ph.D., is an assistant professor, Department of International Trade, Faculty of Economics and Sociology, University of Lodz (Poland). He is also a member of European International Business Academy, European Economics and Finance Society, and Réseau Européen pour l’Inseration Sociale et Professionnelle des Personnes Défavorisées (REIN Network). He has published extensively on issues related to international economics, FDI, regional development, regional economic disparities, EU cohesion policy and public finance. He has been author and co-author of over 60 papers, chapters, and articles since 2008. In 2012 and 2013, he got an individual and team Rectors’s Award for books about FDI and EU cohesion policy. He participated in several research projects, including projects co-financed by EU. He has received three grants for young scientists. The outcomes of his research projects were presented at several international conferences in the UK, Germany, France, Turkey, and Latvia. He had also lectured abroad (Portugal, Germany) under the LLP ERASMUS Staff Mobility. He has been working as an expert in European Commission programmes (Competitiveness and Innovation Framework Programme, Leonardo da Vinci, Grundtvig).

Luciano Fratocchi, Ph.D., in Business Management (1996), is Associate Professor of Management Engineering at the Department of Industrial and Information Engineering and Economics, University of L’Aquila (Italy). He has been lecturer at the LUISS Guido Carli (Rome, Italy) and at the University of Ancona (Italy). He is member of AIB (Academy of International Business) and EIBA (European International Business Academy). He has been Visiting Student at the School of Management, University of Bath (UK) and at the Department of International Business Studies, Uppsala University (Sweden). His main research interests are in international business and supply chain management. He published books and articles at national and international level.
Tomasz Golebiowski, Ph.D., is an academic teacher and researcher in the Institute of International Management and Marketing, at Warsaw School of Economics (SGH), Warsaw, Poland. He received his Ph.D. and “Habilitation” degree from the Foreign Trade Faculty of Central School of Planning and Statistics (now – Warsaw School of Economics). He holds the academic title of Professor in Economic Sciences. He was a visiting researcher at the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, USA, and a visiting professor at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, USA. His main research interests are at the intersection of international business, strategic management, innovation management, inter-firm networks, and business-to-business marketing. He has participated in numerous research and consulting projects for firms and governmental institutions, including pre-privatization analyses, firm restructuring projects, designing of corporate and business strategies, and marketing strategies.

Lelio Iapadre is Professor of International Economics at the University of L’Aquila and Associate Research Fellow at the United Nations University Institute on Comparative Regional Integration Studies (UNU-CRIS), Bruges. He cooperates with the Italian Trade Agency, the Bank of Italy (L'Aquila branch) and the Centro Europa Ricerche (CER). He has taught at the University of Rome “Sapienza” and at the Johns Hopkins University, SAIS Bologna Center. He has made consultancy and research work for the Italian Minister of Foreign Trade, Istat, the Bangladesh Institute for Development Studies and several international institutions, including the European Commission, OECD, UNCTAD, UNIDO, and the World Bank Institute.

Alex Kouznetsov has taught Management and International Business courses at Deakin University, Melbourne, Australia. He is also a Senior lecturer in International Business and Marketing at Holmes Institute in Australia. His research and teaching interests encompass the institutional development of the economies of Eastern Europe and entry strategy. He has published in international peer reviewed journals in these areas. Alex is a member of the Academy of International Business and the American Marketing Association.

Anetta Kuna-Marszałek, Ph.D. is an assistant professor at Department of International Trade, Faculty of Economics and Sociology, University of Lodz (Poland). For the last 10 years, her primary research interests focus on various aspects of contemporary economics, including research on the interlinks between trade liberalization and environmental policies. She is currently working on internationalization of business activities, foreign direct investment and support instruments for exporters. She is an author and co-author of over 40 papers, chapters, and articles, including the award-winning book about anti-dumping investigations as an instrument of protection. She participated in several research projects, including projects co-financed by EU. Moreover, she presented papers at international conferences and has had the pleasure to deliver lectures at several European universities, among others, in Spain, Portugal, and Greece. She is a member of Polish European Community Studies Association (PESCA) since 1999.
About the Contributors

Eini Laaksonen is Master of Economic Sciences from Turku School of Economics and works as University Teacher at the Pan-European Institute in Turku School of Economics at the University of Turku in Finland. She has specialized in International Business with an emphasis on the economic development of the Baltic Sea and Barents Sea regions. Project business opportunities and network dynamics in energy and maritime sectors are of particular interest to her. She has been involved in several research projects and has published articles concerning business prospects and risks in the Barents and Baltic Sea regions, most recently focusing on the maritime cluster developments.

Malgorzata Stefania Lewandowska, Ph.D., is an academic teacher and researcher in the Institute of International Management and Marketing, Warsaw School of Economics (SGH), Poland. She holds Ph.D. degree (2006) from Collegium of World Economy, SGH, and MBA (2002) from Université du Quebec a Montreal, Canada. She is the author of several articles on international business and international cooperation issues presented in international conferences. Her main research interest is on innovation cooperation on the firm level. She is a teacher of International Business, International Business Transactions, Strategies of Polish Enterprises at SGH, and guest speaker on CEMS Blocked Seminars in Vienna and Prague. She is involved in research projects on international cooperation of enterprises in innovation processes, trends in marketing environment of Polish enterprises, and business models of Polish firms. Recently, she was employed in Stimulating Learning for Idea-to-Market – EU-funded project implemented under the Life-Long Learning Programme (Leonardo da Vinci – Transfer of Innovation).

Hanna Mäkinen holds Master of Arts in General History, Political Science and Contemporary History from the University of Turku. She currently works as Project Researcher at the Pan-European Institute in Turku School of Economics at the University of Turku in Finland. Her main research interests include economic development of the Baltic Sea region, as well as business opportunities and network dynamics in energy and maritime sectors. She has been involved in several research projects and published articles on her research topics, recently focusing mostly on the development and competitiveness of the maritime clusters in the Baltic Sea region.
About the Contributors

Teemu Makkonen, PhD, is currently working as an assistant professor in the Department of Border Region Studies, University of Southern Denmark. He has previously worked as a postdoctoral researcher in the Turku School of Economics at the University of Turku (2013) and as a PhD student in the University of Helsinki (2009–2012), where he defended his PhD thesis on economic geography in November 2012. He has published several peer-reviewed journal articles on innovation and regional development.

Anna Matysek-Jędrych is Assistant Professor at the Department of International Business and Economics of Poznan University of Economics, Poland. Her main research areas are financial stability, financial and economic crises, monetary policy, central banking, and competitiveness in international dimension. She has presented papers at national and international scientific conferences and published multiple articles, most recent ones are chapters of monographs published by ASERS Publishing and research report published by the National Bank of Poland. She is a Visiting Professor at the School of Business (EscueladeNegocios NovaCaixaGalicia) in Vigo, Spain, member of Academy of International Business (AIB) and Société Universitaire Européenne de Recherches Financières (SUERF).

Franjo Mlinarič, PhD, is senior lecturer at the Department of Finance, University of Maribor – FEB, Slovenia. His research focuses on corporate finance, company valuation, M&A, corporate governance, and corporate restructuring. He is a member of the state examination commission for court experts in the fields of economics and business sciences and a founding member of Slovene Corporate Finance Association. He works as an external specialist in the audit committee of the leading national utility and is a co-founder of Institute for Research and Development of Management. His experience in consulting extends from preparing privatisation models for Slovene incumbent telecom company, over capital budgeting projects for big power utilities and economic studies for market regulators, to business restructuring plans for troubled companies. He was also the co-founder and executive director of an IT start-up dealing with business intelligence. Since 2007, he has been a visiting lecturer at Kozminski University in Warsaw and a chartered financial professional.

Banjo Roxas is a senior lecturer in Management at Deakin University, Australia. His teaching and research interests include strategy and institutions in emerging economies, particularly in Asia. He is a member of the Academy of International Business and Australia and New Zealand International Business Association.
About the Contributors

Arnold Schuh is Director of the Competence Center for Central and Eastern Europe and Assistant Professor at the Vienna University of Economics and Business (WU Vienna). He also holds Adjunct Associate Professorship of International Business Studies at the Carlson School of Management, University of Minnesota, USA. His work focuses on a variety of topics in international marketing management and marketing strategy. He has published 100 papers in conference proceedings and academic journals, such as the European Journal of Marketing and Journal of World Business. His primary research areas are marketing and strategic management in Central and Eastern Europe. Current research and publications focus on strategies and structures of foreign multinational companies operating in CEE, marketing strategies for CEE as well as internationalization and competitive strategies of local firms from CEE.

Ksenia D. Shelest, St. Petersburg State University, Russia, has a PhD in Economic, Social, and Political Geography at St. Petersburg State University (2007), MSc in Environmental Management and Policy at University of Amsterdam (2003). She was granted MATRA and INTAS personal scholarships for her MSc study abroad and PhD research visits to European Universities. Since 1999, she coordinates activities of the Baltic University Programme (Uppsala University, Sweden), an educational network in the field of sustainable development and environmental science, in the North-West region of Russia. From 2006-2009, Ksenia Shelest worked as a civil servant at the Environmental Committee, Government of St. Petersburg. Presently, she works as a senior lecturer at the Department of Economic and Social Geography and vice-head of the Division of International Baltic and Arctic projects at St. Petersburg State University. She is the author of more than 20 publications in Russian and English.

Aleksandra Wąsowska, PhD., is Assistant Professor of Strategic and International Management at the University of Warsaw. Her research interests include international entrepreneurship, strategies of emerging market multinationals, decision-making in internationalization process, and cross-cultural management. She graduated from Faculty of Management (2005) and Faculty of Modern Languages (2006) at University of Warsaw. In 2011 she defended her PhD dissertation on “Resource-Based Determinants of Internationalization of Polish Listed Companies.” She has published a number of papers in international business and strategic management. In her research she uses both quantitative and qualitative methods. She is member of international academic associations (including Academy of International Business, Strategic Management Society). She has a significant project management experience gained both in Poland (Ernst & Young) and abroad (French headquarters and Portuguese branch of BNP Paribas).
About the Contributors

Krzysztof Wąsowski, PhD., is a collaborator of Project Management Department at the Warsaw School of Economics. His research interests include project management and public sector management. In 2012, he defended his PhD. dissertation on project management and public private-partnerships. He has published a number of papers and books. He has a significant professional experience gained both in Poland (banking and advisory sectors) and abroad (European Commission&EBRD projects).

Andrea Zanoni is full professor of Business Strategy at the Department of Management of “Alma Mater Studiorum – Università di Bologna” (Italy). He published books and articles at national and international level. His main research interest is in the field of Operation management, with a specific focus on Procurement Policy and Supply Chain Management. He also studied the Italian industrial system with a particular focus on the SMEs and on the inter-organizational network. From 1999 to 2001, he was President of AiIG (Italian Association of Managerial Engineering Scholars). He has been member of Board of Directors of the “Alma Graduate School – Università di Bologna” (2004 up to now) and Technogym Spa (1999-2008).