

Acknowledgment

Numerous people and resources have contributed significantly to our book, including the authors, leading researchers, practitioners, and consultants whose insights we have relied on in developing our book. In addition, the members of our Editorial Advisory Board and our panel of the reviewers have worked at length to help us develop a high quality product.

In particular, we wish to gratefully acknowledge Professor John Pourdehnad for kindly agreeing to write the Foreword and thank all the authors who have contributed their chapters to our book.

We are also very pleased to thank Austin DeMarco our IGI Global Editorial Assistant for his thoughtful suggestions, care, and support in the finalizing, publishing, and marketing phases of our book's publication process.

Peter Smith is pleased to have this opportunity to recognize with sincere thanks the especially generous contribution made by his co-editor Dr. Tom Cockburn. When Peter was hospitalized for a lengthy period during a particularly onerous editing phase of our book, without Tom's efforts there would be no book.

Lastly, but by no means least importantly, we wish to thank our spouses—Lorraine Smith and Mary Cockburn—and our families, for their considerable support and unbelievable patience during the researching and writing/editing of this book.
