Putting together a comprehensive publication of this magnitude requires a tremendous contribution and much assistance from everyone involved. The most important goal of editing this encyclopedia, as with most publications, was identifying and selecting quality contributors. I am indebted to all of the authors for their excellent contributions. The degree of quality that this publication reaches could not have been achieved without the valuable peer reviews the authors had provided me through their expertise and their rigorous, unbiased assessment of the manuscripts assigned to them on a double-blind basis. I am extremely grateful for their contribution to this publication. I would also like to express my gratitude and deep appreciation to the members of the Editorial Advisory Board for their wisdom, guidance, and assistance in deciding on different issues related to this publication.

I would also like to convey my deep appreciation and gratefulness to IGI Global's Vice President of Editorial, Ms. Jan Travers, for all of her wisdom and encouragement. Additionally, I would like to express my appreciation to the editorial staff of IGI Global for their assistance in this project: Jan Travers, Vice President of Editorial, Kristin M. Klinger, Director of Editorial Content, Meg Stocking, Assistant Executive Editor, Kristin M. Roth, Managing Development Editor, Jennifer Neidig, Director of Production, Deborah Yahnke, Assistant Development Editor, Heather Probst, Assistant Development Editor, and Amanda Steel, Editorial Assistant.

Finally, I would like to express my warmest thanks to my wife, Beth Peiffer, for her support, wisdom, encouragement, understanding, patience, and love. My heart also goes to my two young girls, Basha and Anar, for the joys that they have brought to my life. Finally, much gratitude goes to all those who have taught me immeasurable amounts during the past few decades.
