

Acknowledgments

I wish to thank the team — Mehdi Khosrow-Pour, Jan Travers, and Michele Rossi at Idea Group Inc. — who made the publication of this book possible by accepting my proposal. My special thanks to Kristin Roth and Amanda Appicello for guiding me through the maze of publication requirements. This book benefited due to the comments made by several experts: Neal Hannon (University of Hartford) and Kinsun Tam (University at Albany) provided insightful comments on the XML/XBRL chapter. Also, Somnath Bhattacharya (Florida Atlantic University), Jeffrey Romine (Truman State University), Ido Millet (Pennsylvania State University – Erie), and two anonymous reviewers provided many helpful comments. I also wish to thank corporations that allowed me to use their products and screen shots from their Web sites for illustrative purposes. Finally, I am grateful to Altova Corporation for providing me with the XML Spy software. All errors are my responsibility.