

Acknowledgment

This publication could not have been written without the support of several “actors”, to whom I address my deepest regards. Similarly to the overall book configuration I advocate the existence of institutional/organizational, groups and individual “actors”, whose contributions assume different forms however with equal importance.

My sincere thanks to IGI Global for the unbelievable invitation and for believing in my work, as well as, guidance and support throughout the entire book editing process; nonetheless, I need to express my gratitude to my “personal assistant” at IGI Global, Mr. Joel Gamon, whose help was incomparable and far beyond my personal expectations.

I would like to acknowledge the support provided by all the educational institutions whose authors have contributed for this book. Likewise, I sincerely hope that these institutions recognize the tremendous effort of its researchers, in order to help me creating an innovative and critical publication concerning knowledge management status quo. Moreover, I want to thank to the Centre for Computing and Social Responsibility at De Montfort University, for its doctoral program experience, represented by my supervisors, Professor Mary Prior and Professor Simon Rogerson. Their intellectual guidance, judicious support, encouragement, and challenging ideas (some expressed in this book), have been the input of my evolution. Finally, it is essential to acknowledge the additional support that my lecturing institution in Portugal had provided me: to ISLA Leiria University my sincere esteem.

Moving forward, it is also necessary to remember the positive attitude of all the non-educational organizations that directly or, indirectly had contributed for this publication: to all my gratefulness. Therefore, I sincerely hope that the answers and new ideas presented in this book, become a useful tool for an ethical organizational innovation of their internal procedures.

Although, is time to scrutinize which were the various groups of actors that allowed the dream come true! Thus, the actors were:

- The Editorial Advisory Board: I am speechless, and as you all know it is not a ordinary situation. I felt deeply honoured with your marvellous support, comments, ideas and contributions, as well as, I had never expected that leading authors, whose knowledge and expertise I respect, could accept my challenging invitation. So: Nino, Bernd, Chuck, Kiyoshi, Krystyna, Mario, Mary, Simon, Terrell and Ugo, I am indebted to you.
- The contributors: A special regard is mandatory for all that believed that this publication could at some extent promote important changes. I am confident that those changes will occur, due to the high quality and unique contributions that you have produced. Therefore, without reasonable doubt I am a privileged editor.

- The reviewers: From a miscellaneous mixture of the Editorial Advisory Board and contributors a list of reviewers arose. And, once more the result was outstanding, because everyone understood the level of criticality regarding the reviewing process.
- Family: To my parents, brother, wife and daughters, I require their forgiveness due to my lack of time. Nonetheless, I know that you are proud of my achievements.
- and, my students: To my past and present students I thank their support and continuous challenges, because without them it was impossible to accomplish so different objectives. In fact, this book also represents our hopes and dreams concerning a more ethical knowledge society.

Finally, my thoughts go to a specific actor: Nuno Sotero Alves da Silva (my PhD comrade), and to Tiago Filipe Rodrigues da Fonseca (my honourable apprentice). Thank you to both for the continuous support, insightful comments and critics, and above all your friendship. It has been truly an honour to “serve” with both...
