

Acknowledgment

It is typical of a work of this nature, involving as it does the co-ordination of a large number of people across several continents, that many unseen hands have assisted us in the preparation of this volume. At the top of the list must go our Development Editor with IGI Global, Julia Mosemann, who has been long-suffering, patient and gentle throughout the process. We also sincerely appreciate the hard work and support of our always friendly and helpful Editorial Assistant, Beth Ardner. Unknown by us—and this is written in advance of their work—a thank you to the copy editors whose labour is so often forgotten.

Our thanks go also to the authors of these chapters. Their work is only rewarded by appearing in print and the task, as we know—is arduous. The main bearers of the burden of our work as editors have been our families. They have had to cope with early starts, late nights and absent weekends. It is appreciated.

The last comment is that the good qualities apparent in this volume are the work of those people we identified above. Any shortcomings belong to us.
