

Acknowledgment

The editors of this book would first and foremost like to thank all of the authors who contributed to this handbook. It has been a pleasure working with such a great team of talented individuals. Not only did this book emerge from all of our collaborative efforts, but many new alliances and innovative ideas and projects were formed. We appreciate everyone's effort, support, insight and dedication over the last year of this project.

We would also like to thank the editorial review board who significantly assisted in many phases of this project. The reviews and constructive comments were much appreciated and essential to the outcome of the handbook. Many anonymous colleagues also assisted in the distribution of the initial call for chapters and helped to spread the word of this project's creation, to which we also would like to acknowledge and thank.

The publishing team at IGI Global has been a tremendous asset as well. Their guidance and support has been truly appreciated. We would like to personally thank Julia Mosemann, Christine Bufton and Jan Travers for their personal assistance with this project. Many times they stepped in and answered our questions and provided support.

We sometimes forget the amount of time, energy and commitment projects like these take out of us all, and would like to thank all of our families, friends and colleagues for their encouragement and support throughout the duration of this project.

James Braman, Towson University, USA

Giovanni Vincenti, Gruppo Vincenti, S.r.l., Italy

Goran Trajkovski, Laureate Higher Education Group, USA

September 2008