

Acknowledgments

The editors would like to acknowledge the many people who have made this book possible. For us, and hopefully for all those involved, this has been an intense, rewarding, and highly successful practical experience in networked communications across countries and continents. First and foremost, we would like to thank the authors of the individual chapters for sharing their valuable insights in the important field of networked communications and for their disciplined and dedicated work throughout the many stages of planning, writing, and editing the book. Most of the authors of the chapters included in this volume also have served as referees for articles written by other authors. In addition, some of our colleagues at Roskilde University have served as referees. Thanks go to all those who have provided highly competent, constructive, and comprehensive reviews.

A special note of thanks goes to Ms. Kristin Roth of Idea Group Inc., whose timely and encouraging contributions throughout the whole work process have been extremely valuable. Also, special thanks to Mr. Andrew Somerville for correcting the language of a number of the chapters. Our gratitude also goes to the head of the Roskilde University Department of Communication, Professor Kim Christian Schrøder, for providing extra funds for proof reading.

Finally, we would like to thank our spouses, Lise and Søren, for their patience, support, and love throughout the long and sometimes stressful process of moving our project forward from initial idea to printed book.
