

Acknowledgments

The editors would like to acknowledge the help of all involved in the collation and review process of the book, without whose support the project could not have been satisfactorily completed.

Deep appreciation and gratitude is due to Kristin Roth, our development editor, and, most important, our friend. Her editorial support, her encouragement, and her good advice during this year have turned this project into a worthwhile book. Special thanks also go to all the staff at Idea Group Inc., whose contributions throughout the whole process from inception of the initial idea to final publication have been invaluable. In particular, thanks go to Mehdi Khosrow-Pour, whose enthusiasm motivated us to initially accept his invitation for taking on this project.

We also want to sincerely thank all those who offered constructive and comprehensive input for the different chapters. Some of these colleagues should actually be mentioned as their reviews set the benchmark. Those who provided the most comprehensive, critical, and constructive comments include Ben Bellows, Ana Sofia Cardenal, Scott D’Urso, Anatol Gremalschi, Eddie Halpin, Mahad Ibrahim, Seth Kahan, David Keogh, James Lawson, Rebecca Lekoko, Shirin Madon, Firoze Manji, Bolanle Olaniran, Stephanie Petrasch, Bruno Piotti, Steve Rains, Josep M^a Reniu, Melessa Rogers, Jean-François Tardiff, Erik Timmerman, Antony Trowbridge, and Yanina Welp.

In closing, we wish to thank all the authors for their insights and excellent contributions to this book. They have shared with us their priceless expertise, carrying out an outstanding work. Thank you to all of you for helping us spread your knowledge in the field of ICTs for development.

Finally, we want to thank our loved ones for their understanding and support throughout this project.

To Marcos, our dear “big boy,” who pretended to be Tarzan, Captain Hook, Mowgli, Mr. Incredible, and many others while we were working on this book (Mila and Fran’s special thanks). To Hawa, our Ethiopian princess, who enlightened our lives with her arrival when this book was already finished.

To Sandra, my wife, for being an objective and sympathetic sounding board for my projects and ideas. To Mila Gascó for inviting me to take part in this particular one and her helpful guidance for some years now. To Douglas Evangelista for our long conversations about ICT and changes in the international cooperation system, and his companionship in some risky projects. And finally to the late Sharon Capeling-Alakija (formerly executive coordinator of UN Volunteers) who allowed me to dream up big projects and get them off the ground (Manuel's special thanks).
