

Acknowledgments

I wish to acknowledge the help of all involved in the process of bringing this book from a feeling that there was a need for a book in this field, through to a tangible product. The support and flexibility of the publishing team at Idea Group Inc. (IGI) has been invaluable in guiding, prompting, and dealing with problems in a very positive and timely manner. Particular thanks go to Medhi Khosrow-Pour, Jan Travers, Michele Rossi, Renée Davies, and Kristin Roth at IGI for their very professional and helpful approach.

My sincere thanks go to the many contributors who made this book possible. Not only did they write the chapters, but many of them also served as domain-specific reviewers for one or more chapters. I must also offer special thanks to those contributors whose supportive and encouraging e-mails and phone calls convinced me that this was a valuable project to work on.

Other constructive and insightful reviews were provided by “volunteers” who provided the perspective of educators who have not (yet!) been involved in ARS activity, but who are all very experienced in the higher education sector. My thanks go to the following individuals for taking on the role of reviewer of at least one chapter:

Judi Baron, University of Adelaide, Australia

Renay Buchanan, Central Queensland University

Stephen Burgess, University of Victoria, Australia

Allan Carrington, University of Adelaide, Australia

Bill Dempster, University of Strathclyde, UK

Don Falconer, University of South Australia

Brenton Fiedler, University of South Australia

Kay Fielden, UNITEC, New Zealand

Michael Gendron, Central Connecticut State University, USA

Jim Gotaas, University of Central Lancashire, UK

Tom Gray, University of Strathclyde, UK
Robert Hamilton, University of Strathclyde, UK
Jo Hanisch, University of South Australia
Chris Johnson, University of Arizona, USA
Ann Monday, University of South Australia
Chris Stewart, University of South Australia
Shirley Wheeler, University of South Australia
Graeme White, RMIT University, Melbourne, Australia
Trevor Wood-Harper, University of Manchester, UK

Not only did Jim Boyle contribute and review, he also managed to convince some of his colleagues to take part in the review process, so special thanks to him. Thanks also go to Kay Fielden for helping identify ARS users in New Zealand, and to Renay Buchanan for helping identify Australian contributors.

Thanks go to Fran Benson of IML UK for providing some leads to potential authors in the UK, and to Sally Bateman of KEEpad Australia for suggesting potential Australian contributors.

I must acknowledge the efforts of those individuals who worked hard to make a contribution to the book, but were unable to complete the process due to personal or work circumstances. I hope that we may be able to work together in the future, should the opportunity arise.

This process does not take place in a vacuum, and I must thank Maureen and Magnus, my ever helpful neighbours, for inviting me in for mind-saving cups of coffee and a change of subject when they saw me wandering around at those times when I could not face the screen any more.

And last, but certainly by no means least, I must thank my partner, Ann, for her patience and support, particularly at those (extensive) times when piles of papers threatened to swamp every available surface.
