

Acknowledgment

This book could not have been possible without the gracious support of the editorial advisory board members from all continents of the world who accepted to peer review the chapter proposals and the final chapters. Their names are Drs. Linda Price (The Open University, UK), Margaret Watts (Springfield College, USA), Su-Yan Pan (University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong), William H. Young III (University of South Florida, USA), Elbie Mwenesongole (North West University, South Africa), Avoseh Mejai (University of South Dakota, USA), Mustafa YAVUZ (Selcuk University, Turkey), Marcie Boucouvalas (Virginia Polytechnic and State University, USA), Peggy Hui-Chuan Wei (National Chung-Cheng University, Taiwan), Penny Garcia (University of Wisconsin Oshkosh, USA), Eddie Blass (Swinburne University of Technology, Australia), Noeline Wright (The University of Waikato, New Zealand), Leah Savion (Indiana University, USA), Kaye Lowe (University of Canberra, Australia), Joshua Olusola Akande (Obafemi Awolowo University, Nigeria) Nooreiny Maarof (Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia, Malaysia), Marilyn M. Parrish (Millersville University, USA), and Laura Blasi (St Leo University, USA). Their contributions put an authentic transcultural flavor in this book. Furthermore, this book would not be what it is without the chapter contributors whose backgrounds represent a convenient sample of all continents of the world. Thanks and congratulations to all the contributors! They make this book a truly transcultural attempt. In that context, the book is a transcultural project in its intent and in the fact that the chapters are connected to unique realities that can include aspects of sameness at time. Finally, I have to acknowledge Sandra Schaeffer, my graduate assistant, who contributed to the editing of three chapters. Finally, thanks to IGI Global and the staff who have made the entire process fun and enjoyable! Although I thank the editorial advisors, contributors, and other people who supported the book, the responsibility for any remaining errors is my own.
