

Acknowledgment

First, we want to acknowledge the support and assistance of the IGI Global staff members who made the process of putting together this book enjoyable and efficient. Editorial Assistant Myla Harty, in particular, helped us to stay on track as we moved into production. Her assistance and patience were invaluable.

Sincere thanks to editing assistants from the University of Central Florida David Dadurka, Arwen Main, and Nicole Tallman, each of whom worked hard to get this manuscript ready for production. Their attention to detail, commitment to professionalism, and supportive attitudes kept us on our toes and ensured the project's success.

We value the support provided by our editorial board, including Dianna Baldwin, Shelley Billig, Kristine Blair, Sarena Seifer, and Trae Stewart. This team helped us to identify excellent potential authors and to review proposal and manuscript submissions. Other manuscript reviewers whose assistance we deeply appreciate include Marco Adria, Brian Blackburne, Maggie Boreman, Aminata Cairo, Thomas Cavanagh, Lisa Day-Lindsey, Amy Garrett Dikkers, Michael Dougherty, Sheri Dressler, Mary Ann Eastep, Doreen Fisher, Jim Gleason, Charlotte Gray, Morgan Gresham, Meghan Griffin, Glenda Gunter, Amy Kimme Hea, James Henry, Naim Kapucu, Kathy Keltner, MaryAnn Kolloff, James Lawler, Bernadette Longo, Katherine Loving, Yuping Mao, Eric Main, Alex McClimens, Rudy McDaniel, Lorraine McIlrath, Don Merritt, Rick Mott, James Kariuki Njenga, Clancy Ratliff, Erin Saitta, J. Our deepest appreciation goes to the 86 authors who contributed to this volume. We thank them for the hard work they put into creating and revising their chapters and cases, but even more for the amazing efforts represented in these words. We are humbled to think of the number of communities, schools, organizations, and individuals around the world who are touched by the projects described here. We have gained great insight and inspiration through the process of working closely with this inspiring group of people who are making a difference in the world. It has been a privilege.

Finally, we would not have been able to complete this project without the help and support of Barbie Carpenter, David Fenenbock, the University of Central Florida and Eastern Kentucky University.
