

Dedication

I dedicate this book to my family, my beloved husband, John, and to my children, Nicholas, Brandon, Christopher, Maria, and Kevin. It is because of them that I embarked on the study of health outcomes.

I also wish to dedicate this book to my students, who became as fascinated with the study of health outcomes and data mining as I have been, and who have always strived to extract meaningful results from the data.