

Acknowledgment

The editors are grateful for the generous assistance and support of various organizations and individuals. Without their dedication, this project could not come to a successful completion. Taiwan Electronic Governance Research Center (TEG) is our most significant institutional supporter. It provided both personnel and financial support in the formulation and implementation of this volume. Dr. Jay N. Shih deserves a special mention as he was instrumental in founding TEG. Moreover, Dr. Yu-Hsien Sung, the leading e-government official in Taiwan, has provided significant support for this project via TEG.

The editors would like to recognize several members of the Editorial Advisory Board. We thank Charles Schweik for providing his insight into improving the quality of this volume. Chris Reddick was kind in sharing his experience with developing an edited volume.

Moreover, we would like to thank our assistants for their timely and outstanding service. Dr. Chu would like to thank Luo-Wei Li, Chih-Cheng Kung, and Li-Jung Yang for their thorough administrative assistance during various phases of the book development. Jianchuan Zhang assisted Dr. Chen in implementing the electronic review process and in putting together the final package for submission. Zhang's attention to details is much appreciated.

Chu's deepest gratitude goes to her family for their unflagging love and support. She would like to thank her parents for providing her with the opportunity to be where she is. She would like to thank her husband, Yehliang, and her sweetest daughter, Yang, because they have been her biggest support throughout her professional career.

Chen would like to express his gratitude for his family. The loving memory of his father has propelled him in pursuit of excellence and quality. He appreciates the support of his mother and elder brother. Li-Fen Lu, his wife, and Wesley, his toddler son, have provided much needed balance.
