Information Access and Library User Needs in Developing Countries

Mohammed Nasser Al-Suqri (Sultan Qaboos University, Oman), Linda L. Lillard (Clarion University, USA) and Naifa Eid Al-Saleem (Sultan Qaboos University, Oman)

While high quality library and information services continue to thrive and strengthen economic and social development, much of the knowledge that exists on user’s needs and behaviors is fundamentally based on the results of users in English-speaking, western developed countries.

Information Access and Library User Needs in Developing Countries highlights the struggles that developing countries face in terms of information gaps and information-seeking user behavior. The publication highlights ways in which users in developing countries can benefit from properly implementing LIS services. Researchers, academics, and practitioners interested in the design and delivery of information services will benefit from this collection of research.

Topics Covered:
- Library Information Systems
- LIS in Developing Countries
- Online Information-Seeking Behavior
- Public Services
- Theories and Models of Information-Seeking
- User Needs and Behaviors

Market: This premier publication is essential for all academic and research library reference collections. It is a crucial tool for academicians, researchers, and practitioners. Ideal for classroom use.
