

INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF USER-DRIVEN HEALTHCARE

January-March 2012, Vol. 2, No. 1

Table of Contents

GUEST EDITORIAL PREFACE

- i Challenges for Indian Medical Education in the New Millennium: A Concept Note
Vinay Kumar, Pritzker School of Medicine, The University of Chicago, USA

RESEARCH ARTICLES

- 1 Reforming Medical Curriculum in India in Recent Years: Conflicts of Political, Regulator, Educationist and Professional Natures and Strategies for their Resolution
Rita Sood, All India Institute of Medical Sciences, India
N. Ananthkrishnan, MGMCRI, India
- 14 Lived Experiences in 'Active' Small Group Learning
P. Ravi Shankar, KIST Medical College, Nepal
- 18 Creating Awareness for Using a Wiki to Promote Collaborative Health Professional Education
Karishma Sharmin Haque, Bangladesh Institute of Health Sciences, Bangladesh
Abu Md Akteruzzaman Bhuiyan, Bangladesh Institute of Health Sciences, Bangladesh
Mou Bhowmick, Bangladesh Institute of Health Sciences, Bangladesh
Ziauddin Ahmed, Bangladesh Institute of Health Sciences, Bangladesh
S. N. Sarbadhikari, Bangladesh Institute of Health Sciences, Bangladesh
- 29 Experiences of a Student Elective at McGill University
Mohsin Bin Mushtaq, Dow University of Health Sciences, Pakistan
- 33 The Process of Medical Curriculum Development in Malaysia
V. K. E. Lim, International Medical University, Malaysia
- 40 Adolescent Medicine Curriculum at Faculty of Medicine, Universiti Teknologi MARA, Malaysia
Alam Sher Malik, Universiti Teknologi MARA, Malaysia
Rukhsana Hussain Malik, Universiti Teknologi MARA, Malaysia
- 49 Creating a User-Driven Student Perspective in a Nepalese Medical School
P. Ravi Shankar, KIST Medical College, Nepal
- 53 The Politics of Medical Curriculum Accreditation: Thoughts, Not Facts?
Evelyne de Leeuw, School of Medicine - Deakin University, Australia
- 70 The Patient is Dead: Continuing Medical Education and the Hidden Curriculum
Shaifali Bansal, Peoples' College of Medical Sciences and Research Centre, India

INVITED COMMENTARIES

- 76 Reforming Medical Curriculum While Ignoring Examinations: A Commentary on Sood and Ananthkrishnan's "Reforming Medical Curriculum in India in Recent Years: Conflicts of Political, Regulator, Educationist and Professional Natures and Strategies for their Resolution"
Sabyasachi Sircar, University College of Medical Sciences, Delhi
- 79 A Multi-Stakeholder 'User Driven' Medical Curriculum to Improve Health Care Outcomes: A Commentary on Sood and Ananthkrishnan's "Reforming Medical Curriculum in India in Recent Years: Conflicts of Political, Regulator, Educationist and Professional Natures and Strategies for their Resolution"
Suptendra Nath Sarbadhikari, Supten Institute, Coimbatore, India
- 82 Curricular Battles: Is it Possible to Win the War even if a Few Battles are Lost?
N. Ananthkrishnan, MGMCRI, India
Rita Sood, All India Institute of Medical Sciences, India
- 86 Creating Awareness for Using a Wiki to Promote Collaborative Health Professional Education
James Heilman, University of British Columbia, Canada
- 88 There is More Wrong with Medical Education than Accreditation: A Commentary on de Leeuw, "The Politics of Medical Curriculum Accreditation: Thoughts, Not Facts?"
Joachim Sturmberg, Monash University and The University of Newcastle, Australia
- 94 Continuing Medical Education and the Hidden Curriculum: A Commentary on Bansal's "The Patient is Dead: Continuing Medical Education and the Hidden Curriculum"
Shruti Sarkar, People's College of Medical Sciences, India