Preface .................................................................................................................................................. xvi

Section 1
IPR Issues

Chapter 1
Innovative or Indefensible? An Empirical Assessment of Patenting within Standard Setting ............. 1

Anne Layne-Farrar, Compass LexEcon, USA

Chapter 2
Assessing the Link between Standards and Patents ................................................................. 19

Anne Layne-Farrar, Compass LexEcon, USA
A. Jorge Padilla, LECG, UK

Chapter 3
Interpreting and Enforcing the Voluntary FRAND Commitment ........................................... 52

Roger G. Brooks, Cravath, Swaine & Moore, USA
Damien Geradin, Tilburg University, The Netherlands

Section 2
Competing Standards

Chapter 4
The Standards War between ODF and OOXML: Does Competition between Overlapping ISO Standards Lead to Innovation? 79

Tineke M. Egyedi, Delft University of Technology, The Netherlands
Aad Koppenhol, Sun Microsystems, The Netherlands

Chapter 5
The Battle Within: An Analysis of Internal Fragmentation in Networked Technologies Based on a Comparison of the DVB-H and T-DMB Mobile Digital Multimedia Broadcasting Standards .......... 91

Håkon Ursin Steen, University of Oslo, Norway
Section 3
Standards Education

Chapter 6
Implementing Standardization Education at the National Level
Henk J. de Vries, Erasmus University, The Netherlands

Chapter 7
The Role of Standards in Engineering Education
Todor Cooklev, Indiana University, USA & Purdue University Fort Wayne, USA

Section 4
Consumers in Standardization

Chapter 8
Where Are You? Consumers’ Associations in Standardization: A Case Study on Switzerland
Christophe Hauert, University of Lausanne, Switzerland

Chapter 9
The INTERNORM Project: Bridging Two Worlds of Expert- and Lay-Knowledge in Standardization
Jean-Christophe Graz, Université de Lausanne, Switzerland
Christophe Hauert, Université de Lausanne, Switzerland

Section 5
Shaping Factors

Chapter 10
Beyond the “Point of No Return”: Constructing Irreversibility in Decision Making on the Tetra Standard in Dutch Emergency Communication
Anique Hommels, Maastricht University, The Netherlands
Tineke M. Egyedi, Delft University of Technology, The Netherlands

Chapter 11
The Significance of Government’s Role in Technology Standardization: Two Cases in the Wireless Communications Industry
DongBack Seo, University of Groningen, The Netherlands

Chapter 12
An Exploratory Analysis of the Relationship between Organizational and Institutional Factors Shaping the Assimilation of Vertical Standards
Rubén A. Mendoza, Saint Joseph’s University, USA
T. Ravichandran, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, USA
Section 6
Standards for Learning Technology

Chapter 13
Analysis and Validation of Learning Technology Models, Standards and Specifications: The Reference Model Analysis Grid (RMAG) ................................................................. 223
  Jan M. Pawlowski, University of Jyväskylä, Finland
  Denis Kozlov, University of Jyväskylä, Finland

Chapter 14
Key Challenges in the Design of Learning Technology Standards: Observations and Proposals ...... 241
  Adam R. Cooper, University of Bolton, UK

Chapter 15
Community-Driven Specifications: XCRI, SWORD, and LEAP2A .................................................. 250
  Scott Wilson, University of Bolton, UK

Chapter 16
Concepts and Standardization in Areas Relating to Competence .................................................. 264
  Simon Grant, JISC CETIS, UK
  Rowin Young, JISC CETIS, UK

Chapter 17
Application Profiles and Tailor-Made Conformance Test Systems ................................................. 281
  Ingo Dahn, University Koblenz-Landau, Germany
  Sascha Zimmermann, University Koblenz-Landau, Germany

Chapter 18
A Data Model for Describing and Exchanging Personal Achieved Learning Outcomes (PALO) ..... 296
  Jad Najjar, WU Vienna, Austria
  Michael Dernt, University of Vienna, Austria
  Tomaz Klobucar, WU Vienna, Austria
  Bernd Simon, WU Vienna, Austria
  Michael Totschnig, WU Vienna, Austria
  Simon Grant, JISC CETIS, UK
  Jan Pawlowski, University of Jyväskylä, Finland
