Case Study I

ICTs for Intercultural Dialogue (ICT4ID)

Victor Giner Minana, UNESCO ICT4ID Programme, Spain

This case study will focus on UNESCO’s cross-disciplinary programme spanning the sectors of communication and culture, “Information and Communication Technologies for Intercultural Dialogue: Developing Communication Capacities of Indigenous Peoples (ICT4ID).” It will show a general overview of the five ongoing pilot projects. This programme aims at preserving indigenous peoples’ cultural resources by fostering access to ICT. These are the expected results:

- Indigenous community representatives trained in media content production and ICT use.
- Indigenous cultural content produced for television, radio and news media.
- Awareness raised at an international level of indigenous creativity.
